Roosevelt Assails N.R.A. Objectors and Malcontents

U.S. President Pleads for United Effort in Economic Rehabilitation Drive — Hotheads in Workers Ranks Seeking Results by Noise and Violence Are Cutting Small Figure

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt today publicly assailed the N.R.A. "objectors" who are handicapping his recovery programme, and asserted this was no time "to seek special privilege, undue advantage, or personal gain, because we face today a crisis."

Before entering a conference at the White House to see manufacturers to see if they could not settle the soft coal strike in their mines in Western Pennsylvania, Mr. Roosevelt told the American Federation of Labor that "unselfish patriotism" must come first in the economic rehabilitation effort.

DEDICATES MEMORIAL
His address was delivered in dedicating a huge bronze memorial to Samuel Gompers, who served thirty-eight years as president of the federation before he died in Mexico in 1924.

"The President said there were 'hotheads' in workers' ranks, 'who think that results can be obtained by noise and violence,' and some employers who prefer 'government by a privileged class instead of by majority rule.'"

"But it is clear," he asserted, "that the sum of the objectors on both sides cuts a very small figure in the total of employers and employees alike, men and women who are going along wholeheartedly in the war against depression."

MUST SETTLE DISPUTES
He said the federation, which had halted its annual convention here for the dedication, must settle its jurisdictional and other disputes if the recovery programme was to go ahead full speed.

Mr. Roosevelt added that the "overwhelming majority" of workers and employers were co-operating in the share work drive. But he likened the few recalcitrants to kicking horses that would have to be "lassoed and put in a corral."

Contests Election as Conservative

W. C. MORESBY, K.C., Victoria school trustee and barrister, who announced he will run as a Conservative in Victoria.

Unable to Speak Without Swastika

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7 (AP).—Dr. H. Luther, German Ambassador to the United States, today declined to deliver an address at the 25th anniversary of the first landing of Germans in America, and the founding of Germantown, because a swastika banner was not displayed on the speakers' stand.

A member of the ambassador's party explained that German diplomatic regulations prohibit him from making a speech in his official capacity unless the new German emblem is displayed.

CARD EXPERTS WAR IN COURT

Shepard Barclay Suing Ely Culbertson for $100,000 for Libel

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP).—Whether Ely Culbertson must pay another contract bridge expert for describing him as more adept at bumble-puppy than bridge, or whether otherwise criticizing him is a matter progressing toward decision in the New York State Supreme Court.

Shepard Barclay, bridge writer, lecturer, critic and club and tournament conductor and brother of McClelland Barclay, noted artist, is suing Culbertson for $100,000 on the ground of libel.

Since the suit was filed Barclay has won a legal point. Just as Julius Miller struck out from Culbertson's answer the contention that the criticism was justifiably fair comment. He restricted the defendant to pleading that partial truth of the criticism and the right of fair comment should mitigate damages.

Nazis to Authorize Happy Release for Incurable Patients

Memorandum Issued by German Ministry of Justice—Religious Bodies Opposed to Policy—Medical Fraternity Sees Difficulties

BERLIN, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Ministry of Justice, in a detailed memorandum explaining the Nazi aims concerning the German penal code, today announced its intention to authorize physicians to end the tortures of incurable patients.

The memorandum, still lacking the force of law, proposed that "it shall be made possible for physicians to end the tortures of incurable patients, upon request, in the interests of true humanity."

FUNDAMENTAL PROBLEMS
This proposed legal recognition of euthanasia, or the method of providing a painless and peaceful death, raised several fundamental problems of a religious, scientific and legal nature.

The Catholic newspaper, Germania, hastened to observe: "The

TWO KILLED IN CRASH AT PALACE GATE

ASSEMBLED TO SEE CHANGING OF GUARD

LONDON, Oct. 7 (CP).—Two persons were dead tonight, and five others were injured, recovering from injuries received in a spectacular automobile accident outside Buckingham Palace.

One man was killed almost instantly, and another fatally injured, both unidentified, when a car driven by P. H. Hills got out of control going down Constitution Hill from Hyde Park Corner, and after crashing into a lamp post, careened into a crowd of people gathered to witness the changing of the Palace Guard.

COULD NOT ESCAPE

As the car rushed down the steep incline, the crowd below, standing several deep around the Palace railings, rushed for safety; but a number of those who had been standing in the front rank, failed to get away.

The car crashed through the railings, ploughed through the crowd, and ended its mad flight by demolishing a lamp post on the other side of the road, near the Palace.

Ambulances rushed to the scene, took the injured to St. George's Hospital, a short distance away, where one man, who had both feet amputated, died several hours later.

MANY BONES BROKEN

Three of the injured suffered broken legs, while another had a broken leg and fractured skull, and the driver of the car head injuries.

His Majesty, who was in the Palace at the time of the accident, sent an equestrian to the hospital to inquire about their conditions.

Knocked down by the car as it crossed the road, a sentry picked himself up, and resumed his rigid pose of attention as if nothing had happened.

Spectacular Fire Causes Heavy Loss

SCHUYLER, Neb., Oct. 7 (AP).—A spectacular fire today destroyed the wells about Nieman Mill & Elevator here. First estimates placed the loss at $400,000.

The flames were confined to the mill section, which had not been operated recently.

Sparks were carried far over town, and set small fires which were checked before serious damage was done.

The plant had a capacity of 3,000 barrels daily.

Einstein on His Way to New York

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Oct. 7 (AP).—Professor Albert Einstein sailed for New York tonight on the liner Western Land with his wife, who had emigrated to Antwerp.

The couple is en route to Princeton, N.J., where Dr. Einstein will carry out scientific studies and lectures.

Norwegian Ship Burns and Sinks

ARCHANGEL, Russia, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Norwegian steamer Rothold, bound from this port to Rotterdam with a cargo of lumber, caught fire tonight and was sinking in flames seven miles off Murmansk. Two of the crew were lost but the others were rescued by Soviet coastguards.

Arctic Trader Locked in Ice

SAILORS running a tow line over the ice to the Arctic trading vessel C. S. Holmes, after she had been caught in the ice off the northern tip of Alaska. At the other end of the line the motorship North Star towed the Holmes nearly 100 miles through the ice to Point Barrow, Alaska.

Score of Arrests Follow Death of Night Club Man

Suicide Tears Cloak of Secrecy From United States Government's Roundup of Chicago Bandits and Disposers of Their Loot—Bonds to Value of $150,000 Are Recovered

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (AP).—Twenty-two persons were in custody in six widely separated cities tonight, and $150,000 in bonds had been recovered by Federal operatives, who have tracked for ten months the perpetrators of a daring $250,000 Chicago mail robbery.

Postal inspectors asserted the actual bandits, who tore sacks of registered mail from two Chicago postmen on December 8, were known. They expect to recover another $50,000 worth of the stolen securities. The rest of the loot, non-negotiable bonds, was destroyed, they believe.

ROUNDUP DISCLOSED

The suicide, according to a coroner's jury, of Edgar Lebensberger, night club owner, tore the cloak of secrecy from the Government's gigantic roundup of the bandit quintette and the syndicate which attempted to dispose of the loot.

Lebensberger knew he was to be indicted that day, along with John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, a former state legislator, and Joe Sans, credit manager at Lebensberger's cabaret, as the "brains" of the raid on the mails.

A few hours after his body was found in his luxurious Lake Shore home, the indictment became public. Then the chain of underworld connections, radiating through the states, was uncovered.

IN ALL DIRECTIONS

Walter Johnson, postal inspector, disclosed that McLaughlin and Sans were in jail for want of bond; that three men and a woman were held at Denver for investigation; five more at Kansas City; two in New York; two in Minneapolis, and one or more in Boston. The stolen bonds, turned in here and there for what cash they would bring, led to the arrests.

Besides McLaughlin and Sans, seven others have been arrested in Chicago: Ralph Bierce, saloonkeeper; James Weinber, his partner; Sam Levick and Sol Stern, bond salesman; Joseph L. Vodak, Gus Anders and Clark Ritchie, an attorney. Their bonds ranged from $5,000 to $20,000.

THE DENVER BAG

Those detained in Denver were Raymond Howell, Denver stock broker; Theodore Norrell, also of Denver, and Francis Sullivan and his wife, Mrs. Bernice Sullivan, of Chicago. A fifth suspect, Robert E. Bartlett, former private detective, was sought in Denver.

MAY REARRANGE CUBAN CABINET

Rumors of Changes Stir Up the Political Situation Again

HAVANA, Oct. 7 (AP).—Unofficial and unconfirmed reports of impending Cabinet changes stirred up the political situation here tonight as negotiations between the factions supporting and opposing President Ramon Grau San Martin continued secretly.

The National Hotel, scene Monday of a day-long blood battle between former army and navy officers and soldiers, reopened with the undamaged portion of the building in use. Soldiers remained on guard on the damaged floors.

Reports reaching here that several Jamaicans had been killed at the Genado sugar mill in Camaguey Province, apparently were baseless.

The strike of Pan-American Airways employees at Neivitas continued as little change was reported in the general labor situation throughout the island.

The A.R.C. Radical group, one of the secret political societies, announced it would abandon its headquarters on the Prado.

SHERIFF AND COWBOY KILLED IN NEVADA

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., Oct. 7 (AP).—Sheriff Graham Lamb, sixty-five, veteran of a number of thrilling outlaw hunts of the Nevada Desert, was shot and fatally wounded near here today by an enraged cowboy, who, in turn, was killed by a deputy sheriff.

Thirty Candidates Seek Election to Four Legislative City Seats

Seven Announcements of Candidature Made Yesterday—W. C. Moresby, K.C., and Robert Cassidy, K.C., Running as Conservatives—Alderman McGavin Is Independent

CANDIDATES in Victoria riding in the Provincial election mounted sharply yesterday to thirty. Seven new entries were contributed during the day, including ex-Mayor Herbert Anson, W. C. Moresby, K.C., Robert Cassidy, K.C., Alderman Andrew McGavin, Mrs. Agnes Helen Mason, R. C. Gibson and John Rowland. Alderman R. T. Williams, Mr. Anson and Mrs. Mason have filed completed nomination papers, which late yesterday were found in order by F. A. Willis, returning officer in the city, and receipts given for them. Twenty-three other candidates are preparing their papers.

Former Mayor Will Contest Riding

Mr. Willis is appealing to all Victoria candidates to complete their papers by Tuesday, so that the returning officer may have sufficient time to see that each is in order before the close of official nominations on Thursday, at 1 p.m.

W. C. MORESBY, K.C., announced definitely that he would be a candidate for election in Victoria riding as a strategic Conservative, without any tags or reservations.

"I am coming out as a straight Conservative, and there are no tags attached to it," Mr. Moresby declared. "I am annoyed at the disintegration of the Conservative party, which has stood for so much that is sound and sensible in the upbuilding and development of our country. I am still for the old Conservative party and am proud to say so."

"I believe in a sane, business-like government, with its budgets actually balanced, whereby the expenditures will be within current revenue, as they should be," Mr. Moresby stated.

Herbert Anson, Former Mayor, IS IN RACE

Herbert Anson, former mayor of Victoria, and well-known chartered accountant of the city, yesterday announced his candidature in Victoria riding as an Independent.

Anson will run on an eleven-plank business platform, and Independent of several groups with which his name has been linked successively in recent weeks.

It is known that many sought Mr. Anson's name on their ticket, but he has decided that in a period of stress such as at present the greatest individuality possible must be accorded to all representatives. After the election, in the event of no party or group support, he will support any satisfactory and stable coalition government, made up of all factions, Mr. Anson stated.

One of the best known of the younger business men of the city, Mr. Anson was chosen reeve of Oak Bay for 1926, 1928 and 1929, and was elected mayor of Victoria for three terms, commencing in 1929 and ending in 1931. He has been president of many of the city's major public and business organizations in the past few years, and has given generously of his time to all efforts in the interests of the community.

He is proposed on the official nomination papers, filed yesterday.

May Force Conference To Adjourn

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—If the Disarmament Conference at Geneva fails, Great Britain will saddle the blame "where it rightly belongs," Lord Hallahan, Minister of War, indicated in a speech this afternoon at Birmingham.

A few hours earlier, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, former Foreign Secretary, had left for Geneva, optimistic in the face of probably the most critical problem which has confronted the disarmament session in nearly two years. Henderson declined to discuss the possibility of adjournment. While admitting the difficulties at Geneva, he insisted an arms convention was not impossible at an early date.

The acute position arises from the question of arms supervision and Germany's claims to token equality in armaments.

Allege Forgery Of Wood Vouchers

SEATTLE, Oct. 7 (AP).—Alleged wholesale forgeries of county wood vouchers were disclosed today, authorities said, when the signatures on eleven vouchers for $2,950 were described as spurious by the men whose names appeared on them.

The vouchers, on file in the county auditor's office, reported the alleged purchase of 360 cords of wood at $8 and $6 a cord for distribution to the indigent.

Huge Cruisers Will Put Grave Obstacle In Limitation's Way

British Representations to Washington Fulfilled Obvious Duty in View of International Attempts to End Competition

(The writer of this dispatch is the naval expert for The London Daily Telegraph.)

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Surprise, and even resentment, has been expressed in certain quarters at the British Government's action in making representations at Washington in regard to the new United States cruisers. Some American critics profess to see in this action an attempt to interfere with American domestic affairs.

Nothing could be wider of the mark. Our demarche at Washington was merely one among the many legitimate efforts made by this country to solve the vexed question of naval limitation, a question in which the United States is just as interested as we are. The antecedents of this latest move may be shortly summarized.

BRITAIN'S CONSTANT AIM
For the past seven years it has been a constant aim of British policy to secure a reduction in the size of warships, with the two-fold purpose of restricting their aggressive powers and diminishing their

CONVICT KILLS TWO IN PRISON

VICTIMS Stabbed Fatally While Listening to Broadcast of World Series Game

POLSON PRISON, CAL., Oct. 7 (AP).—Fatally stabbed above the heart while listening to a radio broadcast of the world series baseball game, two convicts dropped in the prison yard here today, and died later in the hospital. One of the victims named as his assailant a third inmate, with whom he had had trouble.

The dead are: Juan Garcia, twenty-two, sentenced from Los Angeles for assault with a deadly weapon, and Stanley Price, twenty-five, Los Angeles, convicted of attempted kidnapping.

Warden Court Smith said Juan Garcia named Harry Garcia, sentenced from San Francisco for first degree robbery, as his assailant, and that six other prisoners said they saw Harry strike Juan. The Garcias are not related.

ATTACK POLICE WITH HOT FIRE

Disorder in County Kerry Reaches Climax, Before Attackers Flee

TRALEER, County Kerry, Irish Free State, Oct. 7 (CP).—Violent disorders following an attack on General Eoin O'Duffy and others of the United Ireland party reached a climax today when a hot fire was opened on the police barracks with rifles, revolvers and machine guns. The attack came from men stationed on the roof of a nearby house and apparently the attackers believed General O'Duffy was taking in the barracks. So far as could be learned, no one was injured.

NO PROTECTION

General O'Duffy had already left Traleer for Kilmaree, where he was charged members of the police made no attempt to protect him from attackers who struck himself and E. J. Cronin, general secretary of the new position party, on the head. All through the night sporadic outbreaks of fighting broke out between groups of sympathizers of the new party, but how many were injured it was impossible to estimate, for the victims went home to nurse their bruises.

FIRE AND FLEE

Finally one band, apparently fully armed, even to the extent of a machine gun, made its way in the morning darkness to a roof overlooking the police barracks and concentrated a sharp fire on it for a short time before they fled.

His first connection with public finance was in the handling of budgets of the May 24 celebrations, in a period in which he was successful in returning a surplus consistently through the years. He was elected alderman of the city in 1911, and opposed the Sooko waterworks construction contract, which turned out subsequently as a costly enterprise.

For nine years Mr. Moresby has been chairman of the finance committee of the Benchers of the British Columbia Law Society, and for eight years a school trustee in Victoria. As chairman of the building and grounds committee of the school board he has consistently returned a balanced budget of the appropriations in that branch of the civic service.

Mr. Moresby will take as his chief plank, careful control over provincial highways for the restoration of

PREMIER GETS GREAT OVATION

Saanich Audience Cheers Dr. Tolmie to Echo—Speakers Support

"The past five years have been the most strenuous that any government in British Columbia has ever been called upon to face. During that time we have done our best in the face of conditions that have affected every country in the world. If you will return us to office again, we will do all in our power to hasten recovery of this province by safe, sane and constitutional methods."

With these words, Premier S. F. Tolmie closed an appeal to the voters of Saanich at St. Luke's Hall last night, at a meeting which was notable for its enthusiastic reception of the Premier's address and which ended by cheering him to the echo.

MANY FORMULAS
The Premier stated that in times such as these, on the eve of the most important election in the history of British Columbia, there were naturally dozens of formulas put forward, all intended to put an end to the depression in short order. Chief among these, he said, was the platform of the C.C.F., which proposed among other things to socialize industry, public utilities and banks.

"We have no better example of the havoc that can be wrought by state-controlled transportation systems than that of the Canadian National Railways," he declared. "The socialization of industry would immediately exclude any outside capital from coming into the country. As for the banks, the present Canadian banking system is an outstanding one, and careful thought should be given to any plan which proposes to change it."

OUTLINES PLATFORM
The Premier outlined the Government platform and its proposals for the finding of markets for British Columbia products; the market stabilization of agricultural products; construction and improvement of roads and the financial policy of living within income.

"The statesmen of Great Britain are acknowledged to have great experience. They are among the best in the world. They have not plunged on to any new or untried road. They are maintaining a policy of careful planning and slow, but sane progress. Their methods have resulted in a greater measure of progress for Great Britain than any other country."

"There is a greater need than ever that we should have sound, reasonable and sane government under the hardest conditions that we have ever known."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE
Frank Ireland made an ardent appeal for support in the matter of compulsory, contributory unemployment insurance. He claimed that it was far better for a man out of work to draw money that he himself had previously contributed than that the taxpayer should be made to bear the burden.

"If there had been contributory employment insurance since 1921," he said, "the unemployed would have been a surplus of $600,000,000 in the funds from which the unemployed could have drawn."

"England has handled the unemployed situation in this manner for a number of years with notable success. Some persons call it the dole, but that is incorrect. You are not drawing a dole if you are drawing something that you previously paid in."

SPEAKS IN SUPPORT
Colonel H. T. Goodland spoke briefly in support of the Premier, declaring that the people of Saanich could not do anything else but return him to office.

Brian Hogg also spoke briefly, outlining the tremendous difficulties

ONE-SIDED LIMITATION

This process of one-sided limitation cannot continue indefinitely. If very large ships are built for one navy, their duplication by other first class navies is only a question of time. It follows, therefore, that the size of the new United States cruisers, so far from being a purely domestic matter, is a subject of immediate concern to all her partners in the naval limitation treaty.

For these reasons Great Britain, in making the recent demarche at Washington, was not merely exercising a right but fulfilling an obvious duty.

AT WHOSE REQUEST?
The legal question of who may request the application of euthanasia has not been definitely solved. The Ministry merely have proposed that either the patient himself shall "expressly and earnestly" ask, or "in the case of the patient no longer able to express his desire, his nearer relatives, acting from motives which do not contravene morals, so request."

Humming birds, swallows and martins cannot walk or hop on a horizontal surface with any degree of ease.

PREVIOUSLY ANNOUNCED
Other candidates already named include—Unionists: Hon. Joshua Smith, M.P., J. S. Brown, Col. H. T. Goodland, F. J. Crowhurst, Liberals: John Hart, Alderman W. H. Kineman, J. B. Clearhouse and J. C. Macdonald, B.C. Independent: W. J. Bowser, K.C., Alderman Walter Loney, Capt. George McGregor and Charles R. Bishop; C.C.F.: Rev. Robert Connell, Capt. T. Guy Sheppard, W. B. Caird and V. R. Midgley; Labor: Harry Owen, Independents: Reginald Hayward, Louis Ross, P. J. Simpson, Dr. Clem Davies and Joseph North.

In Victoria and Vancouver candidates will appear on the nomination paper in a definite order. Government candidates will come first, the official Opposition (Liberals) second, and then all other groups in alphabetical order.

Only one class of Independent will be recognized. It is stated, that of straight Independent, without qualifications as to nomenclature. A bright candidate yesterday invented "Absolute Independent," possibly with knowledge of this fact. He will go down in the ballot papers, however, as an Independent.

long been recognized as much too large by every power save the United States.

At the abortive Geneva conference of 1927, at the London gathering in 1928, and repeatedly at the Disarmament Conference since, Great Britain has urged a drastic scaling down of the existing standards. Briefly, she proposes a limit of 22,000 tons for battleships, and a limit of 7,000 tons on cruisers.

ONE HOLDING BACK
Japan, France and Italy have all lent a sympathetic ear to these proposals, and it is probable that they would accept them with certain modifications. Only the United States has held back, and has refused to accept the proposals.

"An efficient administration is not possible where business methods are blocked by consideration of a purely party nature. Strict business methods are essential today, and offering my services as an Independent, I am prepared to devote time and energy in helping to formulate sound constructive policies for the good of the province and its people."

MRS. AGNES MASON
To Mrs. Agnes Helen Mason, of 137 Clarence Street, goes the distinction of being the first woman to announce herself as candidate in Victoria riding. Mrs. Mason will run as an Independent in the city.

Co-operation between elected members in the Legislature, along the lines of the National Government in Britain, is her proposal.

"There is a general economic war going on which is just as deadly as the Great War in 1914," Mrs. Mason states. "The country is so heavily in debt we must stop, look and listen before it is too late. We are all working to that end, but there is no concerted action."

Amicable adjustment of differences between capital and labor, more toleration in officialdom, and continued economy are advocated by this candidate. She proposes, further, a participating bond plan to reduce borrowings and lower interest rates. Provision of useful works is also recommended, but not on borrowed money. Election platform with pledges of "economy until it hurts" have become a byword for non-fulfillment, she states, and must be supplanted by performance instead of words.

Mrs. Mason is a believer in the city beautiful, and thinks Victoria has unique opportunities in this regard.

R. C. GIBSON
R. C. Gibson, 2506 Prior Street, will run as an Independent candidate in Victoria on a social reform platform. It was announced in a written communication to The Colonist on his behalf.

Revision of old age pension, workmen's compensation and other acts, to meet changing conditions of the day, is sponsored by Mr. Gibson.

JOHN ROWLAND
John Rowland, 1941 Craigdarroch Road, announced himself "Coalitionist," explaining that he favored the adoption of a non-party form of government in British Columbia for the present. He pointed to the National Government in Britain, and similar methods adopted in Australia and New Zealand, to overcome problems beyond solution by other means.

A newspaperman by profession, Mr. Rowland has traveled and written extensively about Vancouver Island, and will make Vancouver Island issues the theme of his campaign.

Alderman R. T. Williams, whose largely signed nomination paper was the first to be in the hands of the returning officer, has been before the public for many years as a business man and representative of the electorate.

Asked as to measures which he would advocate at this critical period in our history, Alderman Williams declared himself as a strong sympathizer in the cause of labor, which he looks upon as the chief creator of wealth.

Another matter which he strongly favours is that of legalizing sweepstakes, under Government control, the proceeds of which might be utilized for the maintenance of our hospitals. Alderman Williams has consistently placed himself on record as being in favor of submitting this question to a plebiscite of the people, and should a favorable decision be rendered, immediate legislation would be in order to put the will of the majority into effect.

The building of automobile toll bridges across Seymour Narrows has ever been a live issue with Alderman Williams, and, if elected, he intends to use his best endeavors towards having such a desirable undertaking kept alive, and the work proceeded with at the earliest possible moment.

Justice for Vancouver Island finds a strong advocate in Alderman Williams, who promises to use all his effort to insure a square deal for this somewhat neglected part of the province.

With wise economy in every way, a progressive policy of public enterprise of a productive character, Alderman Williams believes that "the clouds of depression which now envelop us are due to lift, and a period of real and lasting progress entered upon, in which every resident of Vancouver Island who is prepared to work should find a share."

With these words, Premier S. F. Tolmie closed an appeal to the voters of Saanich at St. Luke's Hall last night, at a meeting which was notable for its enthusiastic reception of the Premier's address and which ended by cheering him to the echo.

PREMIER GETS GREAT OVATION

Saanich Audience Cheers Dr. Tolmie to Echo—Speakers Support

"The past five years have been the most strenuous that any government in British Columbia has ever been called upon to face. During that time we have done our best in the face of conditions that have affected every country in the world. If you will return us to office again, we will do all in our power to hasten recovery of this province by safe, sane and constitutional methods."

With these words, Premier S. F. Tolmie closed an appeal to the voters of Saanich at St. Luke's Hall last night, at a meeting which was notable for its enthusiastic reception of the Premier's address and which ended by cheering him to the echo.

MANY FORMULAS
The Premier stated that in times such as these, on the eve of the most important election in the history of British Columbia, there were naturally dozens of formulas put forward, all intended to put an end to the depression in short order. Chief among these, he said, was the platform of the C.C.F., which proposed among other things to socialize industry, public utilities and banks.

"We have no better example of the havoc that can be wrought by state-controlled transportation systems than that of the Canadian National Railways," he declared. "The socialization of industry would immediately exclude any outside capital from coming into the country. As for the banks, the present Canadian banking system is an outstanding one, and careful thought should be given to any plan which proposes to change it."

OUTLINES PLATFORM
The Premier outlined the Government platform and its proposals for the finding of markets for British Columbia products; the market stabilization of agricultural products; construction and improvement of roads and the financial policy of living within income.

"The statesmen of Great Britain are acknowledged to have great experience. They are among the best in the world. They have not plunged on to any new or untried road. They are maintaining a policy of careful planning and slow, but sane progress. Their methods have resulted in a greater measure of progress for Great Britain than any other country."

"There is a greater need than ever that we should have sound, reasonable and sane government under the hardest conditions that we have ever known."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE
Frank Ireland made an ardent appeal for support in the matter of compulsory, contributory unemployment insurance. He claimed that it was far better for a man out of work to draw money that he himself had previously contributed than that the taxpayer should be made to bear the burden.

"If there had been contributory employment insurance since 1921," he said, "the unemployed would have been a surplus of $600,000,000 in the funds from which the unemployed could have drawn."

"England has handled the unemployed situation in this manner for a number of years with notable success. Some persons call it the dole, but that is incorrect. You are not drawing a dole if you are drawing something that you previously paid in."

SPEAKS IN SUPPORT
Colonel H. T. Goodland spoke briefly in support of the Premier, declaring that the people of Saanich could not do anything else but return him to office.

Brian Hogg also spoke briefly, outlining the tremendous difficulties

TO AID JEWS IN GERMANY

Petition Being Circulated in Victoria—Appeal Is to Prime Minister

Jews throughout the Dominion have prepared a petition for signature asking R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, to make representation to the Government of Germany such as may assist in bringing to an end the oppression of Jewish nationals in that country.

The petition will be in circulation in Victoria during the present week and, for some time to come, it will be available at many points, including the newspapers offices, and all those who are opposed to the German attitude towards the Jews are asked to sign, so that there may be popular approval of the attitude which Canada is being asked to assume.

OFFICIAL PETITION

The petition reads: "Whereas the policy of the present German Government, officially proclaimed and ruthlessly enforced, is to deprive its citizens of Jewish birth or descent of the usual rights of citizenship and the protection of the law;

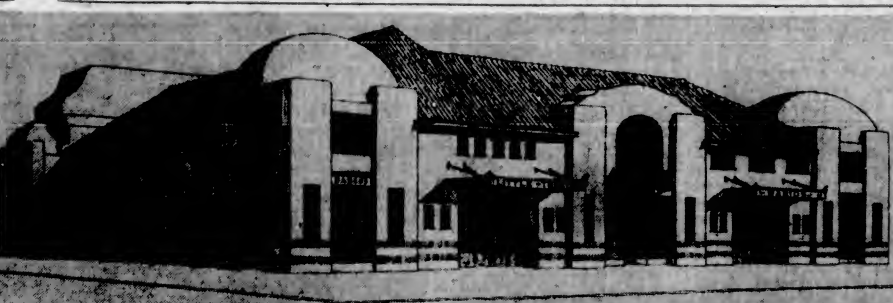

"And whereas in pursuance of such policy such citizens are subjected to discriminatory laws which prevent them from pursuing their ordinary occupations, businesses and professions and from earning their livelihood;

"And whereas these citizens of Jewish birth or descent are being denied in the country of their birth the most elementary of human rights;

"And whereas equally before the law of every citizen, regardless of race or creed, is a fundamental principle upon which civilized states are constituted and the denial anywhere of that principle undermines the spirit of international co-operation upon which the peace and well-being of the civilized world depend;

"Now therefore, the undersigned

Little Theatre Plan Now Rapidly Moving Toward Realization

Interested Patron of Arts Presents Site for Proposed Building Which Would Fill Role of Drama Centre in City

FOR years past, citizens of Victoria have been discussing the need of a "Little Theatre," a building which would serve the needs of a large number of citizens interested in dramatic and musical productions of the best kind. Interviewed by a Colonist representative, Harry Langley, of this city, outlined a proposal which he has been working on for some time, for the building of such a "Little Theatre" as would, he thought, adequately meet the needs of this city.

The day for the large theatre, he argued, has gone. People today want to be entertained in smaller and cozier buildings, where the contact between the performers and the audience is closer and more intimate. "Little Theatres" have become popular in most of the large cities on this continent, and they are able to offer entertainment of greater variety and at smaller cost both to the public and also to the travelling companies or artists.

SITE OFFERED

A site at the corner of Courtney and Douglas Streets has already been offered for a "Little Theatre" building on Douglas Street by a Victoria citizen who is deeply interested in the spoken drama and high-class music, and it is hoped to raise the necessary funds locally for the erection of the proposed building, plans of which appear on this page.

The seating capacity of the building will be 850, with stage accommodation for forty performers. The essential features of the building will be the most perfect acoustics possible; modern lighting equipment, comfortable seats, where every person can see and hear without question.

COMPLETE ACCOMMODATION
It is expected that accommodation will also be found in connection with the theatre building for a new broadcasting studio, to be operated in connection with the Canadian Broadcasting Commission, with a power station on Mount Tolmie. Provision is also to be made for a lecture-room, to form the nucleus for an art gallery, on the north side of the building. A first-class restaurant and refreshment parlor will also be provided in the complete building scheme, giving facilities of a unique character for visitors and tourists, as well as supplying a long-felt need of the citizens generally.

It was the opinion of Mr. Langley that the "Little Theatre" would be able to take care of the needs of travelling companies from England and the United States, by the assembling of the very latest stage and lighting equipment, and with adequate accommodation for any opera company which might appear in the city. It would also furnish the much-desired conveniences for the various musical and dramatic groups which have grown so rapidly in Victoria and district during the past few years.

Plans and estimates for the "Little Theatre" are already in hand, and may be seen at the office of Mr. Langley, at 312 Union Building.

TWO GATHERINGS HEAR CANDIDATE

C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, Liberal candidate in the Esquimalt riding, addressed two gatherings in his riding, Friday night, one at Jordan River and the other at Otter Point. Supporting him on the platform were C. A. Helgeson and W. A. Walker.

Reforms proposed by the Liberal party for the absorbing of unemployment were outlined by the speakers, who charged other political groups with stealing the Liberal platform.

WAS BURIED YESTERDAY

The funeral of Mrs. Lillian Valentine Campbell was held yesterday afternoon, Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell conducting the service. There was a large attendance of friends and many beautiful floral tributes received. The following acted as pallbearers: T. F. Bolton, R. H. Ella, W. T. Cook and J. M. Cookston. The remains were laid at rest at Royal Oak Burial Park.

LOCHGOIL IN PORT FROM GREAT BRITAIN

From the United Kingdom, via Panama and Colon, the Lochgoil, Captain Arthur Cocks, arrived alongside Ogden Point Piers shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The liner discharged 200 tons of general cargo here, and loaded some local products for the outbound voyage. There were several passengers aboard the ship. She proceeded to Mainland ports late in the afternoon.

To discharge gasoline at the old Chemical docks, the tanker, Aleutian Native, was here yesterday morning. She left on the return trip to Seattle early in the afternoon.

RELIEF FUNDS TO BE RAISED

Friendly Help Welfare Body to Start Drive on Tuesday for $35,000

A campaign to raise $35,000 for the relief of distress in Greater Victoria will be opened Tuesday by the Friendly Help Welfare Association. This organization, which has absorbed all Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt friendly help and social service bodies, will be the sole agency in Greater Victoria for supplementing Government and municipal relief.

Co-ordination of welfare work under one authority is expected to increase efficiency, decrease administration costs and insure a more equitable distribution of supplies to those who need them.

During the past four years, the City Council granted to the Friendly Help Society $75,522, an average of $18,000 a year. Voluntary contributions to welfare work in the city of Victoria during that period brought the amount to approximately $50,000 a year; this, for residents of Victoria only.

The sum required for the whole of Greater Victoria is only $35,000. The officers of the new organization are convinced that the reduction of administration costs and the more efficient methods which have been adopted will enable all reasonable demands from every part of the extended area to be supplied from this sum.

The work of the Friendly Help Welfare Association will be carried on entirely by voluntary contributions. Grants from Victoria and the surrounding municipalities will not be sought. Fred Landsberg, campaign manager, is appealing to the volunteers to help in the headquarters office at 1111 Government Street, or to canvass for contributions.

ILLNESS OF JUDGE POSTPONES CASE
The bigamy case of Rex vs. Baboo which was to have been continued in the County Court yesterday, was adjourned owing to the illness of Judge P. S. Lammiman. The taking of evidence will be continued at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday.

The adjournment on Friday was taken in order to allow Rev. Dr. A. O. Thomson, from Creston, to be present to give evidence respecting the marriage of the accused to Lou Angelase Jones. Dr. Thomson arrived yesterday morning, but, in the absence of the judge, court could not be proceeded with.

Stuart Henderson, counsel for the accused, however, expressed his readiness to accept the documentary evidence as to the second marriage, when court reassembles, which allowed the clerkman to return to Creston without having to remain here until the hearing proceeds on Tuesday.

LAID AT REST
The funeral for Carl Edward Anderson, who passed away at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, took place yesterday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. J. S. A. Bastin, with many old-time friends present. The casket was covered with beautiful flowers. The pallbearers were V. T. Wright, William Derrington, L. Hagan, J. Holden, J. Black and C. John. The remains were laid at rest in the Shady Creek Cemetery, Saanich.

IMPROVEMENT IS APPARENT

Insurance Man From Dutch East Indies Sees Better Conditions in World

"I don't think there is any doubt at all that the corner has been turned, and in nearly every country that I have visited during the past six months, conditions are a great deal better and people generally are in a much more confident frame of mind," declared W. N. Ballment, superintendent for the Dutch East Indies of the Sun Insurance Office, of London, who arrived in Victoria yesterday.

Mr. Ballment, whose home is in Semarang, has come in a round about route, having visited during the past six months Australia, Italy, France, Holland and Canada.

"At the present time," he said, "the Dutch East Indies are suffering badly as a result of the fact that Holland is still on the gold standard. Sugar is the principal industry of the islands, and conditions have become so bad that farmers have decided not to plant any sugar crop at all this year because they still have 3,000,000 tons that they cannot sell."

"Australia is forging ahead at a great rate and the people feel that prosperous days are not far away. The main cause of their upturn, of course, is the increase in the price of wool, their main export commodity."

"Italy does not appear to be feeling the depression at all, and with all due deference to this critic, I think there is considerable credit coming to Mussolini for the changes he has made in that country. France, on the other hand, is badly in the doldrums, and Paris is not attracting the tourists as it once did."

"London has now become the gay city of the world," continued Mr. Ballment, "and tourists from all points of the compass are swarming there in thousands."

Asked about his impressions of Canada, which he has never visited before, Mr. Ballment was enthusiastic. "Never in my life," he said, "have I been so impressed as I have been with the confident spirit and the friendliness of your people, and with your wonderful service and food in your trains, boats and hotels. In spite of all that has been said in praise of European cooking, I have never tasted such excellent fare as I have during my journey through Canada, and England could learn much from her senior Dominion about service."

HAVE GREAT CONFIDENCE
"While I am not in a position to make comparisons, not having been here previously, it struck me that Canadians as a whole are not suffering excessively, at the present time. They have a supreme confidence in the future of their country, and that, I think, will help them back to prosperity faster than anything else."

Mr. Ballment was high in his praises of Canadian trade commissioners.

A.Y.P.A. to Convene in Toronto, October 19-22

Stanley C. Hawkins and Jack Aylwin Are Victoria Delegates — Discussions Pertaining to Co-operation and Church Work Will Be Held

The Anglican Young People's Association will hold a Dominion conference in Toronto this year from October 19 to 22, when leaders from every part of the Dominion will gather together to formulate plans for the future welfare of the association. The A.Y.P.A. is the recognized organization for young people of the Anglican Church, its aims being to promote the religious, social and intellectual welfare of its members, in which the spirit of Christian fellowship is strongly emphasized in its motto, "For Christ and the Church."

During the past five years, the A.Y.P.A. has made rapid growth, until today it numbers more than 900 members, one of which is located at Dawson, in the Yukon. It has a total membership of approximately 300,000 young men and women. It is interesting to note that a branch has been organized in England.

FOUR UNITS

In order to cope with the work entailed, the organization consists of four units: The Dominion executive committee, composed of outstanding leaders in young people's work throughout the Dominion; provincial councils in each of the ecclesiastical provinces; local councils and branches, all of which are being efficiently carried on by those leaders.

who, seeing the advantage to be gained in fostering a sound programme for young people, are devoting their time and energy to furthering the welfare of the young people, without any other reward for their work other than the effect of the service they so willingly render.

In British Columbia the A.Y.P.A. has made a good steady growth, and both in Victoria and Vancouver, as well as other localities, such as Courtenay, Prince Rupert, New Westminster, it has come to be a vital factor in the life of the church, and one might rightfully name the A.Y.P.A. as a service organization under the auspices of the Anglican Church, for the reports of its many activities show that many charities have been benefited by the assistance rendered.

LOCAL COUNCIL

In order that the work of the A.Y.P.A. in Greater Victoria may be carried out effectively, a local council is in existence solely for the purpose of promoting the work within the territory comprised in the Victoria deanery. Some twelve branches send delegates to this local council, which meets once a month to discuss the problems of the various branches, and formulate plans for any united action when such affairs as rallies, conferences, picnics, etc., have to be arranged.

Four delegates are going from British Columbia to the Dominion conference in Toronto, including two from Victoria, both of whom have been very instrumental factors in the success of the movement, and it is significant that Stanley C. Hawkins, for four years Western secretary for the Dominion executive, and for the past two years Dominion vice-president for British Columbia, in which capacity he was the first president of the B.C. Provincial Council along with Jack Aylwin, present vice-president of the B.C. Council, and president of the Victoria and District Council for the past two years, will be going. The A.Y.P.A. feels confident that these two young men are fully conversant with their problems here, and will make a valuable contribution to the discussions at the Toronto conference, the theme of which is "Co-operation and Co-operation for Christ and the Church."

LAST RITES TUESDAY

There passed away on Friday after a lengthy illness at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Walter Turner Holt, of 520 Menzies Street. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the parlors of the S. J. Curry & Son Funeral Home. Rev. James Hood will officiate, and interment will be in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

TURKEYS POPULAR ON LOCAL MARKET

Thanksgiving Birds in Great Demand—Mushrooms Are Becoming More Common

With Thanksgiving just two days away, turkeys were the big sellers at the Public Market here yesterday. Almost all the meat stalls carried them, and all reported heavy sales.

Fall vegetables were also popular, notably Hubbard squash, pumpkin, cabbage, turnip, and cauliflower. A few late green beans were apparent on some stalls, while hothouse tomatoes were plentiful and sold well. All forms of meats, cooked and raw, sold in good volume, while various forms of delicatessen foods and prepared dairy products were unusually popular.

Local mushrooms were shown on numerous stalls, and owners reported that this delicacy is becoming more and more popular with market shoppers, since they have discovered that it can be grown in Victoria and obtained for reasonable prices.

Cakes and candies enjoyed their usual popularity.

THOMAS UPHILL PLEADS FOR AID

THOMAS UPHILL

Thomas Uphill, of Fernie, Labor candidate in that riding for the legislature, was in the city yesterday. He paid a visit to the city for the special purpose of urging the claims of the residents of the coal city to assistance in a time of dire necessity with the winter weather approaching.

It is pointed out by the former member that he came to meet Hon. W. M. Bennett, a former member of the legislature, and E. W. Griffiths, relief administrator, on this subject, which is very near to his heart. When seen last evening, Mr. Uphill expressed himself as pleased with the reception accorded him. He said he was met in a very frank way and an assurance was given him that the situation would be investigated at once, in order to see what could be done.

SHOWED SYMPATHY

Mr. Uphill points out that he feels better assured of something worth while, in view of the fact that there was some special aid meted out to children of school age recently, which made it possible for the obtaining of some needy clothing for these children.

It was pointed out by Mr. Uphill that, in addition to the ordinary depression which has affected all parts of the province at this time, there was in Fernie a tense situation produced before the depression came, in the cutting down of coal mining a year or two in advance. This has left the conditions in his district very distressing.

Mrs. E. Mitchell Dies At Home of Daughter

The remains are resting at the S. J. Curry & Son Funeral Home pending the arrival of members of her family from the Prairies. Announcement of funeral will be made later.

CLUBS TO HEAR RUSSIAN COUNT

CLUB CALENDAR

TUESDAY—Men's Canadian Club and Kiwanis Club, joint luncheon meeting, 12:10 p.m., Empress Hotel; Women's Canadian Club, business meeting, 2:45 p.m., Empress Hotel.

THURSDAY—Rotary Club, luncheon meeting, 12:10 p.m., Empress Hotel.

FRIDAY—Capital City Commercial Club, luncheon meeting, 12:30 p.m., Empress Hotel.

Count Ignatieff was born in Russia and received his early education there. However, his family was forced to flee the country, and he completed his education in St. Paul's School, London, and King's College. He is highly recommended as a public speaker and his address should prove interesting.

Rev. E. F. Church will address the Rotarians in the Empress Hotel, Thursday, on "The Science of Psychiatry and Its Presence in Our Social Lives." The club orchestra will be in attendance. Mr. Church's address is sponsored by the Canadian advisory committee of the club.

The Capital City Commercial Club will meet for luncheon in the Empress Hotel on Friday afternoon.

And the Greatest of These Is Character?

A Message to Parents and Educators on the Need of Character-forming as a Part of Every Child's Training

Character, Capacity and Capital are the three standards by which business men judge applicants for credit. And Character comes first!

For a man may have Capital — PLENTY OF MONEY. He may have Capacity—THE ABILITY TO EARN MONEY. But without Character — THE WILLINGNESS TO PAY PROMPTLY ACCORDING TO AGREEMENT—his promises are worthless. The man with Character can be depended upon to keep his promises and meet his obligations.

Character is a child's heritage, strengthened by the example of the parent and the precept of the teacher during the early years—the formative period.

Character is honor—a high sense of personal responsibility and respect for one's obligations. And every child has the right to be trained in the tenets of honesty and fairness in meeting his obligations. Otherwise his education is incomplete—his chance for success impaired!

Set the example by meeting YOUR obligations when due.

Annual Floral Show Rewards Society for Supporting Amateurs

A. M. Scott Wins Banksian Medal for Aggregate Points—Nearly 180 Pounds of Potatoes Grown From Pound of Seeds—Many Fine Displays

PROBABLY no organization in the city has done more to encourage amateur gardening than the Victoria Horticultural Society, but its efforts in this regard were rewarded at yesterday's chrysanthemum show, when many gorgeous displays of not only chrysanthemums, but dahlias, michaelmas daisies, begonias, French marigolds, and a number of other fall varieties attracted a large attendance.

There were nearly 300 entries in the show. The outstanding honor, that of the highest aggregate points, went to A. M. Scott, who won the Banksian medal of the Royal Horticultural Society of England with twenty-five, fourteen seconds and two thirds.

POTATO DISPLAY
First prize in the annual potato competition went to A. E. Powell. Each member of the society was given a pound of Columbia Russet seed to see who could grow the best quality and most weight from the pound. Mr. Powell grew 177 pounds of potatoes from the one pound of seed, the same weight as he grew last year to win the same prize. The weight of the second prize was ninety-nine pounds, and the third was ninety-nine pounds, with the quality not quite so good.

Some splendid non-competitive displays were shown by Angus McKay, W. Elder, R. O. Lamb, H. W. Whiteoak, J. Unwin, Mrs. J. A. Hibberson, Mrs. R. C. Phippard, M. O. Mayhew and R. Rigby. Considerable interest was taken in the smaller varieties of dahlias that are being developed here. Of particular interest was a basket of Baby Royals, flowers from which last year won the Royal Horticultural Society Medal in England in 1931. They have the appearance of chrysanthemums from the distance, and make a splendid showing as a cut flower for smaller homes. The Lady Ponsonby and other large varieties were on view in huge baskets, suitable for larger homes.

AUCTION BLOOMS
At 9:15 o'clock, last night, Fred Lansberg auctioned off the blooms, the auctioning bringing the show to a close.

Following is a list of the results: Not more than three blooms to vase, disbudded.

Six vases chrysanthemums, distinct varieties—1, C. Baldwin; 2, Mrs. S. W. Broek; 3, A. M. Scott.

BURIED WOMAN REMAINS ALIVE
Rev. Muriel Isles Gives Demonstration Here of Mind Over Matter

Being buried alive is no novelty for Rev. Muriel Isles, formerly of this city, but to those who watched her perform this feat in the Spiritist Temple Friday night it caused a mixture of feeling. Some went away wondering, others left convinced that a new power had been discovered.

At exactly 8:55 p.m. Mrs. Isles went into a trance, known, she says, to science as suspended animation. She came out of that trance at 9:25 p.m. During that time she spent approximately thirty minutes in a casket covered with nearly a ton and a half of earth. It took five minutes to cover the box and five minutes to uncover it.

MAKE EXAMINATION
Prior to Mrs. Isles going into a trance, several men examined the box and several women examined Mrs. Isles to make sure she had no oxygen containers or tubes about her person.

She explained that medical men calculated that death would occur within twelve minutes to a person remaining in the box under normal conditions. This gave her a margin of fifteen minutes after the box was covered. When she was again exposed to view, she showed no signs of perspiring such as would be expected of a person in so confined a compartment.

Nicholas Ignatieff Ends Hitch-Hiking Tour of Dominion—Has Had Varied Career

Count Nicholas Ignatieff, Russian engineer, who has hitch-hiked his way across Canada, has arrived in Victoria.

The Count, who was born in Kiev, Russia, later lived in St. Petersburg, when his father became Minister of Agriculture, and in 1915 Minister of Education. He was educated in a Soviet school, and when his family was forced to leave Russia in 1919, continued his education at St. Paul's School, London, and later graduated from King's College, London University.

He came to Canada in 1924 as an immigrant, and since that time his adventurous career has included work as an axeman for a survey party, a laborer in a pulp mill, agricultural work in the Peace River country, assistant engineer on the Ghost River project, near Calgary, editorial writer for The Toronto Saturday Night and Canadian Comment.

On his present trip, which is his second visit to Victoria, he traveled from Edmonton to Winnipeg by cat train. From Winnipeg he hitch-hiked and rode freights through Northern Manitoba and Northern Saskatchewan. After arriving back at Edmonton, the Count traveled by rail to the Pacific Coast.

HOTEL MAN SEES TRAVEL INCREASE
"Although the tourist business to the Pacific Coast was below par this year, owing to the attraction of the World's Fair at Chicago, there is every indication that the Coast will benefit from more travel next year," said Charles A. Stewart, owner of the Stewart Hotel, San Francisco, who is holding in Victoria.

Mr. Stewart estimated that the Knights Templar convention, scheduled for next August, should alone draw from Edmonton to Winnipeg by cat train 10,000 persons to San Francisco.

"While the hotel business has been hit harder than any other by the depression, I am glad to say that the hotels are doing better now," said Mr. Stewart.

A hub of one of the wheels grazed telephone pole, putting the truck out of control. The driver was not hurt, police reported.

Feel Like a New Person Tomorrow

THOSE ghastly hours of night-time tossing! Those exaggerated worries that loom like mountains when you cannot get to sleep. How they sap your strength—unstring your nerves—and unfit you for your work.

Why suffer them any longer? Why endure the physical and mental handicaps they inevitably bring?

For 20,000 doctors will tell you that sleeplessness is needless folly now. They tell you there is now a drugless way that brings you sleep—naturally, quickly.

It is a tuftless spring-filled mattress. Your body is supported by soft resilient springs, enabling the hip and shoulders to indent and the spine to lie straight.

You fall asleep almost as soon as you touch the mattress. And you get eight hours of sound, natural sleep.

Next morning you notice the difference the instant you arise from bed. You feel refreshed—rejuvenated—clearer—minded—clearer by far. No longer a prey to the worries that always seem so mountainous when your system is starved for sleep.

This new mattress does more than induce sound sleep. It rebuilds your nerves, your body, your tissues—during the hours you sleep. Thousands are now using this remarkable mattress. Thousands are turning to it largely on doctors' advice. In fairness to yourself, your health, your nerves—try it without fail. See how quickly you fall asleep—how vastly refreshed you feel next morning.

Seven Houses of Prayer Available Sixty Years Ago

Anglicans, Catholics, Jews, Methodists and Presbyterians Had Attractive Churches in Victoria of 1873 — Jewish Synagogue and St. Anne's Chapel Still in Use

By Rev. Dr. J. K. UNSWORTH

THE contrast between the good old days of sixty years ago and the Victoria of today has recently been brought to public attention through the jubilee observance of one of the city's large mercantile concerns. It suggests a comparison between the churches and churchgoing of that distant date and the present ecclesiastical status. Grandmother's spinning wheel, Hudson's Bay bastion and James Bay bridge, horse and buggy and "boneshaker" bicycles loom through a haze for the youth of 1933, who drive automobiles, listen-in on big league games, and fly to Vancouver in forty minutes.

The younger ones among The Colonist readers may not, but some of the older may wonder whether in the early seventies the people of Victoria went to church, and if so, where. Some notes on the church life of those days may lift, if but for a moment, the curtain, that so soon darkens yesterday and all the past.

At the present time in Victoria there are about seventy places that are open every Sunday for the worshipful churchgoer. In 1873 there were seven. Today there are more than twenty-five denominations, sects, cults and religious bodies that meet regularly; sixty years ago there were but five. The five were Anglicans, Catholics, Jews, Methodists and Presbyterians; the first and last named had two churches each. The seven were all fine edifices and well above the general standard of local architecture. Several of them were of marked beauty. Spirea were much in evidence. Two of these fane of prayer are still in use. The first is St. Andrew's Cathedral, now the beautiful chapel at St. Anne's Convent; the second, St. Anne's Synagogue on Blanshard Street, has an interior today as attractive as at its dedication in 1863.

FROM CHURCH TO CHURCH

To hurriedly walk from church to church with almost unseeing speed, and spend a minute at each place is all that is possible in today's survey. First is the most recently erected, Christ Church Cathedral, standing on the hilltop of Burdett Street, built in 1872 to replace its fire-ravaged predecessor. Here Rev. Edward Oridge was rector and dean, and here Sir James Douglas and many notables of that period worshipped. Under Bishop Hills and his successors it was the diocesan House of God for fifty-seven years until the see was transferred to the more spacious and more stable walls of the new cathedral on Quadra Street. The now deserted building that for sixty years stood out on the skyline from almost every point of the compass, is dismantled and the place thereof shall know it no more.

Down on Humboldt Street was St. Andrew's Cathedral, whose chaste design, with Roman Doric arches and delicate wood carvings (the work of one of the priests) must have been a source of inspiration to the devout ones of that time, as it is to the charms of the visitor who has the privilege of entering what is now the chapel of St. Anne's Convent. It was built under good Bishop Demers in 1858 and consecrated on St. Andrew's Day, the consecration of Victoria's first Catholic bishop having taken place, it may be noted, on the same saint's day in 1847. The memory of this missionary bishop, who for twenty-four years gave himself to all white people and especially to his beloved Indians, will linger long around the cathedral of the past and of the present.

Coming back nearer the centre of the little town of some 4,000 souls, one comes to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, a brick structure at the corner of Courtney and Gordon streets. Rather unexpected were the vaulted white arches that would draw the visitor's eyes on entering the beautiful interior. Inquiring steps, even of today, will reveal the beauty, though somewhat beamed, at the back of what is now a garage. Here stood in the pulpit for eleven years, from Sabbath to Sabbath, the scholarly and urbane Rev. Simon McGregor in his Geneva gown and bands. He came in 1871 to assist Rev. Thomas Somerville and retired in 1882, leaving many inspiring memories. He was a friend of young people, as of all, here held the honored office of elders of the kirk session such men as John Robson (later to be premier of British Columbia, John Finlayson and George Postinger, citizens all of the first rank.

CHURCH OF THE THISTLE
Some blocks north rose the spire of First Presbyterian Church, on Pandora Street, which was built ten years before the year now under observation. A thistle on the steeple advertised the nationality of the worshippers below. What was described as the "deep, heavy lones of the fine new bell," now rings out from the tower of First United Church on Quadra Street. The church suffered from a fire in 1882 but was rebuilt and was the convictee of Presbyterians until 1915. In 1873 services were intermittent, on account of the heavy depletion of the congregation by the withdrawal of many members to form St. Andrew's. Rev. Robert Jamieson was the faithful minister in the seventies, but he had to look after Nanaimo and New Westminster as well. Anglicans worshipped in Pandora Street church after their church was burned.

Diagonally across, at the corner of Blanshard Street, was Emanuel Synagogue, which was consecrated on September 13, 1863. The laying of two corner stones, one by the Masonic order and the other by the Hebrew ritual, which took place the preceding Spring, was a gala day in Victoria, with processions and band playing. This synagogue had the distinction of being the first Jewish house of worship on the Pacific Coast, and it was said to have been the first time that the Masonic order had officiated at a Jewish ceremony of this sort.

To the north, along Douglas Street, was the Church of St. John the Evangelist, the corner stone of which was laid by Sir James Douglas on land donated by the Hud-

CITY ESTIMATES BEING COMPILED

First Draft of 1934 Budget Now in Preparation to Be Ready Next Month

Completion of the 1934 budget is now in progress, it was announced yesterday by D. A. Macdonald, city comptroller.

The policy of preparing the first draft of the next year's budget in the fall of the year was instituted last fall by Mayor David Leeming so that an earlier start could be made in revising the budget and striking the mill rate.

It is expected that the 1934 budget will confront the council with a colossal task of civic economy due to the fact that reductions in the 1934 assessment roll have lowered the amount collectable on the present forty-one mill rate by $12,000. This means that more than $100,000 will have to be cut from the budget to keep the estimates within last year's budget regardless of any additional burdens that may have been imposed upon the city during the past twelve months.

It is expected that the first draft of the estimates will be ready by the first week in November.

Some parents become indignant, others are surprised, and still others pay no attention to the notice from the school dentist, doctor, or nurse. Now, do physical defects interfere with the progress of the child at school?

The records show that children suffering with defects are not able to do their best work and fall behind what they really could accomplish were they free of these defects.

The director of health and physical education, Fresno, California, made an analysis of the health and school records of 811 children in the first to sixth grades.

In the matter of eyesight, for instance, it was found that few children in the group who were advanced in their studies for their age had any eye defects, or poor eyesight.

In the group who were of normal age for their grade, an equally small number had defective eyesight.

However, among those pupils who were behind in their school work for their age the number with defective eyesight was double that of the other two groups.

What happened when all the parents of children with defective vision were notified?

It was found that the parents of those children who were advanced in their school work for their age, and also those whose children were in the normal grade for their age, responded to this notice from the school, three times as often as did those parents whose children were behind in their school work for their age.

You can readily understand that if a youngster doesn't see some of the work on the blackboard, practically the whole of that instruction may be lost, as little or no attention will be given. It is this lack of attention that will interfere with the youngster's progress, and this can really be blamed on the defective eyesight.

The thought then is that from the information the above figures give us, parents should see the importance of early examination for children and of prompt correction of defects.

The story is told that when Joseph Priestly discovered oxygen in 1773, he was so struck by the fact that flames burnt vigorously in the gas, and that the "rate of living" of animals was much increased when they breathed it, that he asked himself why a Benevolent Deity had not provided mankind with an atmosphere of pure oxygen. He ultimately concluded that we probably got as good an atmosphere as we deserved!

The annual dinner of the Naval Veterans' Branch, No. 42, of the Canadian Legion, will be held on Trafalgar Day, October 21, at 7 o'clock, in the Hudson's Bay dining room, it was announced yesterday by W. J. Johnston, secretary of the branch.

Over 200 naval and ex-naval men are expected to attend the function, while a number of honored guests will also be present. Among those are Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor; Commander Victor Brodeur, senior naval officer at Esquimalt; and Mayor David Leeming.

The dinner will be followed by a concert, which will include several dancing items arranged by Miss Eileen Chislett, and the singing of sea chanteys by the assembled guests. Tickets for the affair may be obtained from the secretary of the Naval Veterans' Branch of the Canadian Legion.

An application by Eric H. Stevens for the erection of a fox farm on Resting Crossroad, near Mount Newton High School, was refused by Saanich Council Wednesday night. This action was taken on the advice of Dr. David Berman, medical health officer for the municipality, and J. G. Little, building inspector. The council authorized the purchase of $2,000 District of Saanich 5 per cent bonds due 1961, and sale of 1,000 British Columbia guaranteed P.O.E. 4 1/2 per cent bonds due 1942. Accounts amounting to $4,626.72 were ordered paid.

A Chilesagon, visiting Fond du Lac, Wis., had occasion to call Appleton. Upon asking what the charge was, he was told fifty cents. "Fifty cents. For that distance? Great Scott! In Chicago you can call hell up for fifty cents!" "Possibly," coolly answered the operator, "it's in the city limits."

Benedictine Native Son Of Victoria

A recent visitor at the Bishop's Palace, View Street, was Rev. Father Sidney Pollard (Don Martin Pollard), of the Benedictines stationed at Mt. Angel, Benedictine Abbey, Portland, Oregon.

Father Pollard, who is a native son of Victoria, and in whose career Bishop Alexander MacDonald was deeply interested, left Victoria in 1926 for Mt. Angel, where he made his novitiate, remaining there two years, and spending the next six years in Rome, where he was recently ordained priest, after taking his papal degree of Ph.D. and in theology, at San Anselmo.

To be known hereafter as Don Martin Pollard, he is at present engaged in teaching at Mt. Angel, which abbey he is attached for life, and which has been rebuilt and restored since the devastating fire of seven years ago. His friends in Victoria friends greeted him during his few days' stay as the guest of Bishop Gerald Murray.

World Day for Animals' Tea Is Supported

A very delightful and well-attended event was the Victoria section of the Canadian Anti-Vivisection Society's "World Day for Animals" celebration, held yesterday afternoon, at the R. Thought Hall. The hall looked its gayest, with flower-decked tea tables scattered about, and two or three attractively-trimmed stalls ranged along the walls. The programme by the Italian School of Music and Dance, and the prize-giving by Mayor Leeming, constituted the chief features.

In presenting the awards to the winners of the essay-writing contest, Mayor Leeming made an impressive speech in which he very highly praised the Canadian Anti-Vivisection Society, and the excellent standard of their compositions, which were a great credit to parents and teachers as well.

FINE PROGRAMME
The programme of music and dancing was contributed by the following: Banjo solo, Miss Grace Atfield; string ensemble, Miss Atfield, Minnie Lane, Grace Atfield, Annie Provan, Lona-Marie Atfield, Albert Marshall, and Miss Evelyn Holt (at the piano); French dance, Muriel Marshall; patter dance, Betsy Newcomb, Lona-Marie Atfield.

Skilton, Miss Skilton and Miss Betty Adamson had charge of the candies. Mrs. Bonavia bought the autographed photograph presented to the society by the Canadian Anti-Vivisection Society. Miss Vivenot was at the receipt of custom. Thanks to Mayor Leeming and all helpers and donors was expressed by G. B. Kitto.

What Today Means

"LIBRA"
If October 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 to 8:30 a.m., from 12 noon to 12:45 p.m., and from 4 to 5:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 to 11 a.m., from 2 to 3 p.m., and from 7:50 to 9 p.m.

Your efforts on this day will be applauded and you will receive much encouragement. You will overcome obstacles with a minimum of effort. Children will be physically and mentally alert and will enjoy sports that call for great physical exertion and agility. Old people will feel spry and will be in unusually fine fettle.

The child born on this October 8 will probably be a querulous little one and almost impossible to please. At times he will show great affection for his parents, but generally he will seem quite indifferent to them. Will show good taste in selecting his reading material and best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., and from 3:40 to 4:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., from 1:30 to 2 p.m., and from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

It is possible that you will not feel at ease in the presence of strangers on this date; this will be due undoubtedly to the fact that you are troubled by some difficult and personal problem. Do not worry or fret over it, and the chances are that everything will clear up in short order. Respect, but do not fear, public opinion.

The child born on this October 9 will probably be a chivalrous little one, courteous and well-mannered and alert to every opportunity to be of service to his elders. An unusual little one, not particularly interested in the activities of the average youngster, but much more inclined to seek his pleasures in the company of older people. A philosophical little individual.

If October 9 is the date of your birth, you are a progressive person, one who believes that each day should offer landmarks to prove that you are further along the road of success. It is not at all unlikely that you have planned your life for years ahead, setting forth a yearly schedule of attainments and advancements that you expect and intend to reach. You are probably a very material person, and success to you is no doubt measured in dollars and cents. You manage to mix in a good deal of pleasure with your work on the basis that you have earned that at least. You are pretty much of a sport and are inclined to drink a bit too freely. The men are less restrained than the women in this respect, and many of the men, even after marriage, seem to find it difficult to settle down to a quiet home life.

Born on October 9, you like to gamble; no man who has any sort of worth playing as far as you are concerned unless you can put up a wager of some kind on the outcome. It is not likely that you will ever gamble excessively, although at times you will win or lose fairly large amounts. The women born on this date are more often than not real home builders. Taking a keen interest in running their homes, they are economical and they love to throw open their doors to their many friends. Both sexes are generous hosts, and many a big business deal has been formulated and put across in the cheery and cozy atmosphere of their homes. The women are most tactful in handling their husbands.

A vote of thanks was proposed, seconded and carried to the following members: Mrs. R. Rush, who had acted as accompanist; Mrs. G. B. Young, as conductor, and to Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson, for their assistance in lending their house on many occasions.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Alex Scoones; vice-president, Mrs. J. D. Halley; secretary-treasurer,

PRaises Spirit OF PRAIRIE MEN

E. Crockett, Superintendent of Bank of Nova Scotia, Thinks Worst Is Over

"They are a wonderful people, those men and women on the Canadian prairies," declared E. Crockett, of Toronto, superintendent of the Bank of Nova Scotia, who is in Victoria after completing an inspection tour of the bank's branches and business conditions throughout the Dominion.

"In spite of the discouraging crop and the low prices obtaining for their wheat," said Mr. Crockett, "the prairie farmers are already looking forward to better times next year." It was surprising at the volume of traffic west from the prairies, but stated that as far as Canada generally was concerned, he felt there was a growing conviction that the worst had been passed.

FIRE CHIEF ASKS ALL TO CO-OPERATE

Chief Munroe Urges the Need for Aid of Each Citizen

Don't let Fire Prevention Week go by without playing the role of fire inspector within your own home. That is the request of Fire Chief A. Munroe, who urges that the citizens of Victoria do their part from October 8 to 14, which is officially set aside as National Fire Prevention Week. Fire Chief Munroe pointed out that during the last year the total loss from fire in Victoria was $57,283.54. The Fire Department received 457 fire alarms, thirty-nine of these calls turned out to be false alarms. The following don'ts are emphasized by Fire Chief Munroe as the best insurance against fire:

1. Clear all premises of the things that cause fires, such as rubbish, trash and papers piled in cellars, attics and closets.
2. Use metal cans for ashes, instead of wooden containers; and never pile ashes against wooden partitions.
3. Have chimneys, flues, stoves and furnaces cleaned and inspected before winter use.
4. Do not try amateur dry-cleaning with such dangerously inflammable liquids as gasoline, benzene or naphtha.
5. Learn the correct method of turning in a fire alarm, so that no time need be lost in a sudden emergency.
6. Always disconnect any electrical appliances, such as toasters, electric irons and curling irons.
7. Insist on frequent inspection of the wiring of your buildings, to locate defects before they cause danger. Be sure that your radio equipment is properly installed. Do not experiment with fuses and wires yourself—call an expert.

8. If you smoke, be sure that all fire is crushed out of cigar or cigarette stubs when they are thrown away; and do not smoke in bed.
9. Use a fire screen in front of an open grate fire.
10. Never start fires in stoves with benzene, gasoline or kerosene.
11. Do not allow curtains or draperies to hang near flames, as a sudden gust of wind might blow them in contact with the fire.
12. Keep all gas jets and other open flames sufficiently far away from the woodwork or other readily combustible material.
13. Be sure that matches are kept in a closed container which is inaccessible to the investigating hands of young children. Always dispose of used matches properly, making certain that they are completely extinguished before they leave your hands.
14. Never lock small children in the house and leave them alone—be helplessly burned in case of fire.
15. Remember that being a hero during a fire is very noble—but that it is even more admirable to keep your premises free from every type of fire hazard, not only during Fire Prevention Week but throughout the year.

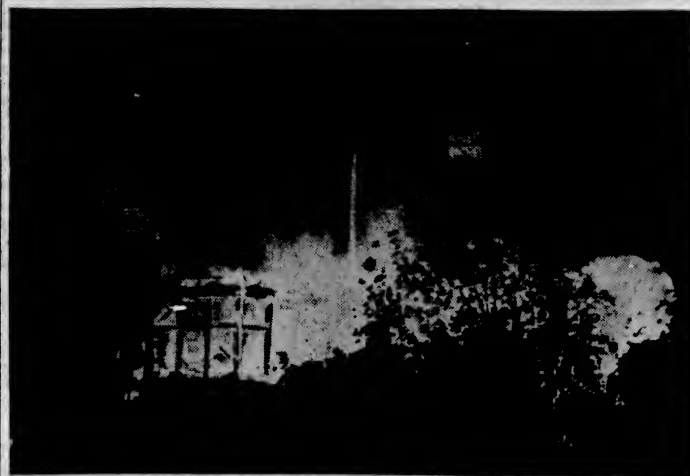

Teach yourself and children the danger of fire. Use safety matches. Observe good housekeeping rules. Keep your premises clean. Tell your neighbor to do the same.

Don't start fires in stoves, furnaces, or fireplaces unless you are sure the flues and chimneys are clean.

Don't overvalue your property when placing insurance.

According to the most widely accepted theory, Canada is derived from the Iroquois Indian word "kanada," meaning village, settlement or collection of huts or cabins.

Where Fire Demon Takes Full Toll

One of the Victoria Residences That Has Fallen Victim to the Ravages of Fire, a Grim Lesson in the Need for Co-operation in Fire Prevention Week.

Fire Prevention Lesson Impressed On All This Week

Summons to Duty Is Sounded in Every Part of the Country in Order That the Individual May Better Realize His Responsibility and Thus Co-operate

OCTOBER 8 to 14 has been set aside as "Fire Prevention Week," not only in Victoria, but throughout the Dominion. This summons to a national duty sounds no less clearly than the beat of drums and the blare of trumpets that called all loyal citizens to arms against a common danger in bygone days. With all of us rests the responsibility; for every person, either by direct carelessness or indifference has contributed to the tremendous loss and suffering by fire. We may easily ignore the fact that in science and carelessness which we choose to do.

Individual responsibility for loss by fire seems a drastic corrective to the ordinary anarchist, who believes that his neighbors can look after themselves, no matter how unneighborly his own acts may be. There is nothing revolutionary in the idea that the individual should be responsible to others for his acts of negligence, yet in the application of the principle to the subject of fire the idea seems revolutionary.

The responsibility of a man for loss to his neighbors lies not in any special enactment, but in the fact that every person is responsible and liable for any acts of his through which any person may sustain loss or damage of property, injury or loss of life. The correction of such people cannot be achieved by any ordinary methods of police education. They must be held responsible for the acts of trespassing. A man who has a preventable fire picks the pockets of his neighbors, either through the medium of fire insurance, or an unjustified use of the public fire department, which all must support.

Fire departments are not maintained to protect a man from the results of his negligence; hence when he calls upon the city for any such aid from the fire department he should be made to pay for it. Citizens are asked to awaken from their lethargy with regard to fires and to do their duty.

WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE

CHAPTER XXXI

Hendron turned to the crossed hands of the optical instrument and began to count. Every man in the room stiffened to attention. "One, two, three, four, five—His hand went to the dial. The room was filled with a vibrating hum. "Six, seven, eight, nine, ten—The sound of the hum rose now to a faint shriek. "Eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, ready! Sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty—His hand moved to the instrument that was like a rheostat. His other hand was clenched, white-knuckled, on his straps. "Twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five—Simultaneously the crew shoved levers and the rheostat moved up an inch. As he counted, signals flashed to the other ship. They must leave at the same moment.

A roar redoubting that which had resounded below the ship on the night of the attack, deafened all other sound. Tony thought: "We're leaving the earth!" A quivering of the ship that jarred the soul. An upthrust on the feet. Hendron's lips moving in counting that could no longer be heard. The eyes of the men of the crew watching those lips so that when they reached fifty, a second switch was touched, and the room was plunged into darkness relieved only by the dim rays of tiny bulbs over the instruments themselves. A slight change in the feeling of air-pressure against the eardrums. Another forward motion of the steady hand on the rheostat. An increase of the thrust against the feet, so that the whole body felt leaden. Augmentation of the hideous din outside.

An exchange of glances between Hendron and Duquesne—both men's eyes flashing with triumph. Tony reached toward Eve, and felt her hand stretching to meet his. The fiery trail of the second ark rising skyward on its apex of scintillating vapor already was miles away. Below, on the earth, fires broke out—a blaze that denoted a forest burning. In the place where the ship had been, the two gigantic blocks of ice must have crumbled and collapsed.

Far away to the south and west, the President of the United States, surrounded by his Cabinet, looked up from the new toll engendered by the recommending earthquakes, and saw, separated by an immeasurable distance, two dimly moving arcs from the earth. The president looked reverently at the phenomenon; then he said: "My friends, the greatest living American has but now left his homelands. He is in the passenger-chamber of the unendurable noise rose in a steady crescendo until all those who lay there were prostrate, gasping for force upon the deck. Nauseated, terrified, overwhelmed, their senses floundered, and many of them lapsed into unconsciousness.

Tony, who was still able to think, despite the awful acceleration of the ship, realized presently that the din was diminishing. From the rather scanty knowledge of physics, he tried to deduce what was happening. Either the Ark had reached air so thin that it did not carry sound waves, or else the Ark was traveling so fast that its sound could not catch up with it. The speed of that dimly moving arc increased. The chamber became quieter and quieter. Tony reflected, in spite of the fearful torment he was undergoing, that eventually the only sound which would afflict it would come from the breeches of the tubes in the control-rooms, and the rooms themselves would insulate that. Presently, he realized that the ringing in his ears was louder than the noise made by the passage of the ship. Eve had released the grip on his hand, but at that moment he felt a pressure.

It was impossible to turn his head. He said, "Hello," in an ordinary voice, and found he had been so deafened that it was inaudible. He tried to lift his hand, but the acceleration of the ship was so great that it required more effort than he was able yet to exert. Then he heard Eve's voice and realized that she was talking very loudly: "Are you all right, Tony? Speak to me." He shouted back: "I'm all right. How are the children?" He could see them lying stupefied, with eyes wide open. "It's horrible, isn't it?" Eve cried. "Yes, but the worst is over. We'll be accelerating for some time, though."

Energy returned to him. He struggled with the bonds that held his head, and presently spoke again to Eve. She was deathly pale. He looked at the other passengers. Many of them were still conscious, most of them only partly aware of what was happening. He tried to lift his head from the floor, but the upward pressure still overpowered him. Then the lights in the cabin went out and the screen was illuminated. Across one side was a glimpse of the trail which they were leaving, a bright hurtling yellow stream, but it was not that which held his attention. In the centre of the screen was a picture of a disk. Tony realized that he was staring at half of the northern hemisphere of the Earth.

Tony thought he could make out the outline of Alaska on the west coast of the United States, and he saw pinpoints of lights which he identified with the renewal of volcanic activity. The screen flashed. Another view appeared. Constellations of stars, such stars as he had never seen, blazed furiously in the velvet blackness of the outer sky. He realized that he was looking at the view to be had from the side of the ship. The light went out again, and a third of the four periscopes recorded its field. Again stars, but in their centre and hanging away from them, as if in miraculous suspension, was a small round bright body which Tony recognized as Mars.

Once again Eve pressed his hand, and Tony returned the pressure. In the control-room, Hendron still sat in the sling, with his hand on the rheostat. His eyes traveled to a meter which showed their distance from the Earth. Then they moved on to a chronometer. He had already determined the time necessary for acceleration—one hundred and twelve minutes—and he could not shorten it.

Tony felt that he had been lying on the floor for an eternity. His strength had come back, but they had been instructed to remain on the floor until the speed of their ascent was stabilized. Minutes dragged. It was become possible to converse in the chamber, but few people cared to do anything. Many of them were still violently ill.

At three minutes of five, Hendron slowly moved back the handle of the rheostat, and almost abruptly conditions in the ship changed. The volume of sound radiating from the engine-room decreased. Hendron unbuckled his bonds and stepped from them. Duquesne, who had unlocked himself, reached unsteadily to take the hand of Hendron.

Magnificent! Stunning! Beautiful! Perfect! How fast do we now travel? He was compelled to shout to make himself heard.

Hendron pointed at a meter. Its indicator hovered between the figures 3,000 and 3,500.

"Miles?" the Frenchman asked. Hendron nodded.

"Per hour?" Hendron nodded again.

The Frenchman made his mouth into the shape required for a whistle, although no note could be heard. Hendron operated the switch controlling the choice of periscopes. In the midst of the glass screen, the Earth now appeared as a round globe, its diameter in both directions clearly apparent. More than half of it lay in shadow, but the illuminated half was like a great relief map. The whole of the United States, part of Europe and the north regions were revealed to their gaze. In wonder they regarded the globe, which had been their home. They could see clearly the colossal changes which had been wrought upon it. The great inland sea that occupied the Mississippi Valley sparkled in the morning sun. The myriad volcanoes which had sprung into being along the western cordillera were for the most part hidden under a pall of smoke and clouds. Duquesne pointed solemnly to that part of Europe that was visible. Hendron, looking at the screen for the first time, said: "The disappearance of the Lowland Plain."

The Frenchman moved closer to him and shouted in his ear. "We abandoned the ship outside of Paris when we realized it was not on high enough ground. We started a new one in the Alps. I told those pilots, 'Gentlemen, it will melt. It is but wax. I know it.' They replied: 'If it melts, we shall perish.' I responded: 'If you perish, it shall be without me.' Suddenly the Frenchman popped out his watch. 'Baptiste! The world has turned so that these fools are to leave now.' He moved his lips while he made a rapid calculation. 'We shall observe, is it not so? In an hour my idiot friends will burn themselves to death, I shall laugh, I shall roar. I shall shout. It will be one grand joke. Yes, you will give me a focus upon France in this remarkable instrument of yours an hour from now, will you not?'

Hendron nodded. He signaled a command to his crew, who had been standing unbuckled from their slings, at attention. They now seated themselves. When Hendron reached the first deck of passengers' quarters, he found them standing together comparing notes on the sensations of space-flying. Many of them were rubbing stiff arms and legs. Two or three, including Eliot James, were still lying on the padded deck in obvious discomfort. They had turned on the lights, apparently more interested in their own condition than in the astounding vista of the Earth below. Tony had just opened the doors of the ladder and was on the point of distributing the sandwiches.

LIBERALS CLOSE COMPLETE SLATE

David Ramsay Named as Liberal Candidate in Cowichan-Newcastle, as Final Entrant

By the nomination of David Ramsay, of Saanich, as candidate in the Cowichan-Newcastle riding, the Liberals yesterday completed their entire election slate of forty-seven candidates in the thirty-nine electoral districts of the Province.

The desire of a full slate is having some curious reactions, notably in Fernie, where Thomas Uphill, veteran Labor member in the Legislature, has run for years unopposed by any other party. Mr. Uphill, in the city yesterday, in the course of a brief visit to the Coast, said he was prepared to do battle with the Liberals at the polls and was undaunted by the Liberal nomination in his area.

Your Health and Your Weight

BUILDING UP THE BODY AND THE BLOOD

By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.

When cool weather arrives it is only natural that the average person will eat more and put on three to five pounds.

This little extra weight is really helpful, as it is a sort of buffer to the body in withstanding cold and fighting colds or minor illnesses.

But you may be a little below weight and not feeling up to normal. Your doctor, after testing your blood, informs you that your blood is thin; that is, the little red corpuscles are not rich enough in iron. He may prescribe some iron pills for you, but suggests that regular meals, fresh air, and plenty of sleep is really the best method of enriching your blood and removing that tired feeling that is present when the blood is thin.

Unfortunately patients do not always ask their doctor about the foods to eat, or it may be that the doctor takes it for granted that the patient knows what foods are considered best for blood building. In addition to the food there are other little habits of health that should be followed, as it is the everyday way we live that counts as much as the food we eat.

Thus food should be taken at regular meal times; a definite hour or as near as possible to definite hours should be followed. Water is a real necessity in these cases of thin blood. It might be thought that water would dilute or thin the blood, but it is needed for the body processes in thin individuals even more than in those who are fat.

However, water and other liquids should be taken in small quantities only with meals. The best time to drink water is about one hour before meals. Three or four glasses a day may be taken. Another important point is that in thin individuals the blood is thin it is not wise to eat when tired or excited. A few minutes sitting, or lying down on right side, relaxes mind and body.

Dr. Sanford Blum, San Francisco, the well-known food and diet authority, suggests that thin and anemic (thin blood) individuals should have a day's diet about as follows:

"A glass of water to be taken on arising, about 11 o'clock, and at 5 o'clock."

Breakfast—Cocoa, coffee or milk; bread and butter; fruit (also an egg may be taken).

Luncheon—Meat; green vegetables; salad; bread and butter; tea or plain cake.

Dinner—Consomme or grapefruit; roast or entree; green vegetable; potato; salad; light dessert.

The general rules include: Eat fresh meats, fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, and, in general, all fresh foods.

The foods which are unnecessary are: salt, preserved, canned and spiced meats and fish, alcoholic and condiments.

Likewise, plain dishes are preferable to made dishes and rich foods. Creams and pastries should be omitted.

Although all kinds of vegetables may be used by the average person, Dr. Blum advises that the following vegetables should not be eaten.

Ald. W. H. Kinsman told the gathering that the election of the Liberal party to power, it would introduce unemployment insurance. Just how far the party will go in the matter at first, or when it would introduce this benefit, the speaker stated he was not prepared to say. Credit was taken into the Liberal party by Ald. Kinsman for the introduction of old age and mothers' pensions. These pensions are not considered charity, and would not be withdrawn on any decree of his party, the speaker said. Opponents of his party have attempted to steal many planks in the platform of Liberals, Mr. Kinsman contended.

EXTRAVAGANCE GIVEN DENIAL

Four Liberal Candidates Expound Policies—J. Hart Answers Charges

There were no extravagant expenditures by the Liberal Government between the years 1917 and 1924. John Hart, former finance minister, declared Friday night at a meeting of the Oak Bay Liberals in St. Mary's Hall.

Although the provincial debt increased $55,000,000 during the Liberal term of office, the money was spent in the direct interest of the people, Mr. Hart said. On demands from Vancouver that the P.E.C. be extended, $12,000,000 was spent on this project. Further demands from all parts of the province for new roads took $15,000,000, but the gas tax is taking care of this expenditure. Five million went to the University of British Columbia, an obligation of the previous administration, it was pointed out. In an honest effort to help the farmers following the war, $6,000,000 was spent for land settlement; while $2,000,000 more was loaned on security to the interior farmers and ranchers as a conservation measure when irrigation systems became disrupted. Returns on these securities were slow, the speaker admitted, but declared they would come.

J. B. CLEARHUE

Controlled mild inflation for a short time in British Columbia and Canada would not hurt, asserted J. B. Clearhue. Declaring the Liberals have a definite programme of recovery, the speaker said it would be operated on the basis of increasing wholesale costs. With this increase the farmer would receive greater return for his crops. The farmer in turn would demand more merchandise, and business would prosper in that way. Mr. Clearhue made it plain he would advocate the establishment of an economic council where trades, labor and industries representatives would meet the government. With a "give and take" programme, he said it would be possible to raise wages and shorten working hours. The Liberals, he stated, are the only party which has a programme of recovery with labor and capitalism combining in effort.

He declared that at no time would it be necessary for Liberal members to remain quiet when they are not in accordance with any bill entered by their own party on the floor of the House. Miss Barbara Groves brought the house down with her original song, "Reggie the Rambler," and an imitation of Cicely Courtneidge. ## VARIED CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Benefit Performance at Shrine Auditorium Proves Popular—Many Artists Are Heard

Sustained action and a varied programme were the keynotes of a splendid concert, Friday night, at the Shrine Auditorium by many well-known entertainers, in aid of an unfortunate family.

Harold and Arthur Groves, former professionals in the English music halls, and now members of the "Troubadours," supplied the main thread of a comedy with their songs and stories. Miss Noel Cusack and Archie MacCorkindale were very amusing in a comedy number.

Character impersonations by Mrs. Gordon Downes were well received. The Warncliffe Trio played two selections, while soprano solos were

ESQUIMALT AND VICTORIA WEST PLAY TO DRAW

Dockers Score Pair In Final Period to Gain 2-2 Deadlock

Tallies in Last Canto Give Dockers Even Break With Greenhairs in Coast Football League — Saanich Thistles Blank Victoria City in Second Fixture, 3 to 0

LEAGUE STANDING	W	L	D	P	A	P
Esquimalt	1	0	1	5	3	3
Victoria West	1	0	1	5	4	3
Saanich Thistles	1	0	1	5	3	2
Victoria City	0	2	0	1	6	0

Kicking in the final half to drive in a pair of tallies, the first after ten minutes and the second fifteen minutes later, Esquimalt's champion football eleven gained a 2-2 draw with Victoria West, in the feature match staged in the local division of the Pacific Coast Football League, yesterday afternoon, at the Royal Athletic Park. Saanich Thistles gained their first win of the season in the second game of the twin attraction by blanking Victoria City, 3 to 0. The matches attracted a fair crowd and the soccer was good, but indifferent. The greenhairs took a commanding lead against the lads from the dockyard village and were enjoying missed on a cross from Youson, heading wide of the corner from close in. However, after several more minutes on the offensive, Victoria West went two goals in the lead when Robinson scored from a melee in front of the net. Referee Alcock consulted both linesmen about the goal and then the ball was centred. Esquimalt broke away fast, but good back division work sent them back to their own area, where De Costa made a brilliant save by pushing out Youson's low shot. Collins missed the rebound and then Robinson smashed it over the crossbar. The Wests were still leading at the interval, 2-0.

DOCKERS TIE SCORE

Gibbons went to left wing in place of Collins as the teams opened the final period. Mottishaw went to right wing for the dockers. Ten minutes after the change over, John Watt got possession and went clean through the Wests' defence and centred the ball to the goal. Watt flipped the ball to one side of the goal into the net. Several flag kicks were forced by the greenhairs, but De Costa cleared most of them after some narrow escapes. Twenty-five minutes had ticked away when Mike Wagland equalized from close range and from then on the teams battled away at a fast pace for the winning goal, which never came either way. De Costa made a sensational save when he deflected Robinson's terrific drive for a corner kick.

Alcock refereed and teams follow: Victoria West—Lorandini; Wright; Storey; Cockin; Barnes; Okell; Youson, Musgrave, Robinson, Betteridge, Collins and Gibbons. Esquimalt—De Costa; Joe Watt, March; R. Stewart, Sweeney, Hicks; Hall, A. Stewart, John Watt, Wagland, McLean and Mottishaw.

With Joe Crowe back in the line-up at centre half, Saanich Thistles whitewashed Victoria City for their first decision of the season to take hold of second place. The Thistles' City showed up better than last week, but, at that, their playing was far below the standard. Farquhar had a busy afternoon in the City net and pulled off some fine saves, while Rowe distinguished himself in the Thistles' goal in the late stages.

Eddie Viggers opened the scoring early in the first half when he took a pass from Mitchell and drove in a fast shot which Farquhar saved by a fine save. Shortly after Joe Crowe missed a set-up and shot wide. Play was about even for the rest of the half. Before the half ended, Holmes replaced Helming on the City's front line.

The City lost Rolfe Moody early in the last half when he injured his left leg and McEllan went on in his place. Alex Duncan substituted for Mitchell on the Thistles' firing line. Noel Morgan put the Thistles two in the lead when he cut in fast for a pass from the right wing and rifled a wicked shot past Farquhar. A few minutes later Farquhar saved but fumbled, and Morgan swept in and drove the loose ball into the net for the last tally. Magee turned in a wonderful game at centre half for the losers, breaking up numerous dangerous rushes.

NATIONAL LEAGUERS TAKE FIFTH GAME TO WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

lin up. Goalin walked, the fourth ball being low and inside. Manush up. Manush grounded to Jackson and Goalin was forced at second. Jackson to Critz, but Manush beat the relay to first. Cronin up. Cronin fouled out to Mancuso. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

FIFTH INNING—GIANTS
Critz up. Critz flied to Goalin, who made a running catch in right centre. Terry up. Terry lined out to Bluege. Ott up. Ott flied to Manush. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING—SENATORS
Schulte up. Schulte dribbled to Jackson and it was a close play. Jackson scratched in on a close play. Jackson had to come in fast and make the throw from an awkward position. Kuhl up. Kuhl checked a single to left, Schulte stopping at second. Bluege up. The Giants went into a huddle with Schumacher in the centre of the diamond. Bluege bunted foul and was automatically out, the ball rolling off the first base line. The play was scored as a strikeout with Mancuso getting the putout. Sewell up. Sewell lined out to Moore, who jumped for the catch. Crowder up. Mancuso failed to hold a wild pitch and Schulte ran to first. Crowder protested Moran's decision. Crowder grounded to Ryan and was thrown out at first. No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

SIXTH INNING
Giants: Davis up. Davis lashed a hit down the third base foul line for a double. Jackson up. Jackson bunted and the ball rolled off the third base line. Jackson bunted and was thrown out. Bluege to Kuhl, sending Davis to third on the sacrifice. Mancuso up. Mancuso drove a long hit to left centre for a double, scoring Davis. Schulte got his gloved hand bare on the ball but could not hold it. Crowder was taken out of the box. Jack Russell, the right-handed relief man was summoned to the rescue. Ryan up. Ryan fanned. Schumacher up. Schumacher fanned, swinging at a curve. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

SEVENTH INNING
Senators: Myer up. Myer raised a high fly to Jackson. Goalin up. Goalin grounded out to Critz. Terry up. Manush drove a line single to right for his first hit of the game. Cronin up. Cronin dropped a single over Ryan's head, and Manush beat the throw in a fast dash to third base. Cronin halted at first. It was the hit-and-run play. Schulte up. Schulte drove a home run into the left field pavilion, scoring Manush and Cronin ahead of him and tying the score. Moore backed up against the short fence, but the ball sailed several feet over his head into the crowd. Kuhl up. Kuhl shot a single through Critz's legs. It was a terrific smash, and much too hot for Kuhl to hold. Bluege up. Bluege grounded to Jackson, who made a sensational stop as he fell to the ground, but made a poor throw to Terry. Bluege was safe at first, and Kuhl reached third. It was a hit for Bluege and an error for Jackson, due to the extra base gained by Kuhl. Schumacher was taken out of the box, and Adolfo Luque, the Cuban veteran right-hander, was called to pitch for the Senators. The Senators' front netted for five straight hits against Schumacher, after being held in the first five innings. Sewell up. Manush walked on for Black with Luque. A wild pitch got away from Mancuso, but he recovered in time to prevent any damage. There was a conference in front of the plate among the Giants' inner workers. Sewell reached out and poked a grounder to Critz, who threw him out at first. Three runs, five hits, one error, two left.

SEVENTH INNING
Giants: Moore up. Moore grounded out on a happer to the box, Russell to Kuhl. Critz up. Critz batted out to Cronin to Kuhl. The Senators were showing a lot of pepper. Terry up. Terry drove a long fly to Schulte in left centre. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators: The crowd stood up and roared for another rally in the lucky inning. Russell up. Russell fanned swinging, and Mancuso tagged him after dropping the ball. Myer up. Myer fanned on a called third strike. Goalin up. Goalin struck out, missing a curve ball that broke close to him. It was the second time in the series that the Senators had been retired on three successive strike-outs. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

EIGHTH INNING
Giants: Ott up. Ott lifted a high fly to Manush. Davis up. Davis lined a single to left centre for the first hit off Russell. Jackson up. Jackson hopped a grounder to Cronin, who stepped on second base as he grabbed the ball and threw to first. Russell up. Russell fanned swinging. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators: Manush up. Manush grounded out to Jackson. Terry up. Terry lined out to Kuhl. Manush's head for his second straight hit. The crowd was in an uproar. Schulte up. Schulte raised a high fly to Davis, who made the catch near the bleacher fence. Kuhl up. Kuhl grounded out, Jackson to Terry. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

NINTH INNING
Giants: Mancuso up. Mancuso popped to Myer. Ryan up. Ryan lifted a short fly that got away from Goalin, but he was thrown out trying to make second base. Goalin to Cronin. It was a single for Ryan. Luque up. Luque drove a single over second base. Moore up. Moore fanned, swinging at a low curve. No runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Senators: Bluege up. Bluege fanned on a called third strike. Sewell up. Sewell rolled to Ryan and was thrown out at first. Russell up. Russell walked, the fourth ball being low. Myer up. Myer grounded to Critz to Terry. And the game went into extra innings for the second straight day. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

TENTH INNING
Giants: Critz up. Critz lifted the first pitch to Manush in short left centre. Terry up. Terry batted out to Myer and was thrown out at first. Ott up. Ott lashed a long drive to the pavilion in deep left centre. Schulte dove into the stands in an attempt to spear the ball and the umpires ruled it was a two-base hit, then reversed their decision and gave Ott a home run. Apparently the first verdict was that Schulte got his hands on the ball before it left the field, but this was not obvious from the stands. Manager Cronin and the Senators gathered around Umpire Pifman back of second base, and argued long and loud. Schulte limped back to the field after being shaken up by his tumble over the short fence.

The Senators claimed the hit should have been held to two bases under ground rules, on the theory that Schulte touched the ball. They finally gave up the argument and went back to their positions. Davis up. Davis lined out to Russell. One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

Senators: Goalin up. Goalin grounded sharply to Terry and was out on a neat play. Terry to Luque. Manush up. Manush lined out to Critz. Cronin up. Cronin lashed a single to left for his third straight hit. Schulte up. Schulte walked, the fourth ball being low and outside. Kuhl up. The Giants huddled around Luque. Time was taken out while Cronin came back and ordered a pinch runner for Schulte, who appeared to have a sore leg from his tumble into the stands. Kerr up. Kerr fanned, swinging. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

TOTTENHAM HOTSPURS TAKE LEAD IN SOCCER

Defeat Sunderland 3 to 1 to Go Into Premier Position

'Spurs Take Over Leadership When Portsmouth Drops Game to Leicester City 2-1—Motherwell Keeps Unbeaten Record Intact in Scottish League

LONDON, Oct. 7 (CP).—The fighting Tottenham Hotspurs today finally reached undisputed leadership of the First Division of the English Soccer League, eliminating their rivals, the Portsmouth, with a 3-1 win at home over Sunderland. The Spurs went to the top when Portsmouth, the leaders, dropped a 2-1 game at Leicester City, and Huddersfield, who had been bracketed with the Tottenham XI, absorbed a 4-3 defeat at the hands of Aston Villa.

Bolton Wanderers slightly improved their position at the top of the Second Division, winning 1-0 over Oldham, while Fulham picked up only a single point in a 1-1 draw with Hull City. Notts County and Preston North End both took a defeat, the former losing 2-0 at Notts Forest, while Preston were beaten 1-0 at Manchester United.

All three leaders who have been sharing the top rung in the Southern section of the Third Division, were beaten, with the result that Exeter City, who won 2-0 over Gillingham, go into a one-point lead over Chesterfield, lengthening their lead.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 7 (CP).—Motherwell's great eleven kept their unbeaten record intact when they trounced Kilmarnock 3-1, on the latter's grounds, in a feature battle of the First Division of the Scottish Soccer League, today. It was their seventh victory in twelve starts, one match being a draw, and kept Motherwell nicely in front of the pack. Rangers, league champions, remained right behind the leaders, however, with a 3-0 win over St. Mirren, at Ibrox Park. Hearts and Aberdeen took the opportunity of Kilmarnock's defeat to draw on even terms with them for third place, Hearts winning 1-0 over Partick Thistle, at Edinburgh, while Aberdeen blanked the luckless Celtic eleven, 3-0.

The deadlock in the Second Division between Morton and King's Park remained unbroken, after these two eleven's wound up with a single point, each scoring two goals in their struggle to decide the issue. Meanwhile, Dunfermline routed St. Bernard's, 4-1, to get into the lead, just a point ahead of Morton and King's Park.

Entries Increased To 700 for Course In Colonist Swim

Two Hundred More Registrations Will Be Issued to Take Care of Those Disappointed in First Rush to Obtain Free Lessons

So great has been the response on the part of Victoria children to the announcement of The Colonist "Learn to Swim" campaign that the officials in charge have decided to extend the entry list to include a further two hundred members. Scheduled to commence Monday, October 16, and to be held at the Crystal Garden, the announcement of this free course of swimming lessons for children between the ages of eight and fourteen was made last Sunday. By early Tuesday afternoon the entire number of five hundred registrations had been issued to children, eager to take advantage of the offer. Many were turned away when the required number had been reached, and it is to give those disappointed in the first issue of tickets a chance that the arrangements of two hundred extra was made. Registration will reopen 9 a.m. tomorrow, and those wishing to enroll are advised to make an early appearance as it is impossible to again extend the number. In this connection the officials request any child who, having registered, finds it impossible to attend the six-week course, to turn in his registration card in order that it may be released to someone on the waiting list.

STARTS OCTOBER 16
The Colonist "Learn to Swim" campaign will be held at the Crystal Garden, Monday, October 16, to November 24, inclusive. The children, all non-swimmers, will be divided into classes sufficiently small to allow individual supervision. The time and day on which each class will be called is printed on the registration card issued on enrolment.

For those who have not yet registered the necessity of quick action is stressed. With a long waiting list it is expected that the extra two hundred cards will be soon exhausted. All that need be done is for the child to clip the coupon from this issue of The Colonist, present it, filled out and signed by parent or guardian, at the Crystal Garden.

TOTTENHAM HOTSPURS TAKE LEAD IN SOCCER

Defeat Sunderland 3 to 1 to Go Into Premier Position

Spurs Take Over Leadership When Portsmouth Drops Game to Leicester City 2-1—Motherwell Keeps Unbeaten Record Intact in Scottish League

LONDON, Oct. 7 (CP).—The fighting Tottenham Hotspurs today finally reached undisputed leadership of the First Division of the English Soccer League, clinching their position by defeating Sunderland 3-1 at home.

The Spurs went to the top when Portsmouth, the leaders, dropped a 2-1 game at Leicester City, and Huddersfield, who had been bracketed with the Tottenham XI, absorbed a 4-3 defeat at the hands of Aston Villa.

Bolton Wanderers slightly improved their position at the top of the Second Division, winning 1-0 over Oldham, while Fulham picked up only a single point in a 1-1 draw with Hull City.

Nottingham Forest and Preston North End both took a defeat, the former losing 2-0 at Notts Forest while Preston were beaten 1-0 at Manchester United.

All three leaders who have been sharing the top rung in the Southern section of the Third Division, were beaten, with the result that Exeter City, who won 2-0 over Gillingham, go into a one-point lead.

Chesterfield lengthened their lead in the Northern Section with a 3-0 win at Mansfield Town.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE
GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 7 (CP).—Motherwell's great eleven kept their unbeaten record intact when they trounced Kilmarnock, 3-1, on the latter's grounds, in a feature battle of the First Division of the Scottish Soccer League, today.

It was their eleventh victory in twelve starts, one match being a draw, and kept Motherwell nicely in front of the pack. Rangers, league champions, remained right behind the leaders, however, with a 3-0 win over St. Mirren, at Droy Park.

Hearts and Aberdeen took the opportunity of Kilmarnock's defeat to draw on even terms with them for third place. Hearts winning 1-0 over Partick Thistle, at Edinburgh, while Aberdeen blanked the luckless Celtic eleven, 3-0.

The deadlock in the Second Division between Morton and King's Park remained unbroken, after these two eleven's wound up with a single point, each scoring two goals in their struggle to decide the issue.

Meanwhile, Dunfermline routed St. Bernard's, 4-1, to get into the lead, just a point ahead of Morton and King's Park.

Pitts and Summerville Together at Dominion

"Her First Mate" Stars Noted Comedy Team in Hilarious Farce With Locale on the New York Waterfront

Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts are back in town. This delightful comedy pair open an engagement tomorrow at the Dominion Theatre in "Her First Mate," their latest Universal co-starring vehicle, and to say that they have outdone their previous efforts is to put it mildly. The picture is a positive riot of merriment.

Summerville and Miss Pitts are presented as a married couple living in a "thick" town on the shore of Long Island Sound, with the husband dreaming of a career as captain of an ocean-going freighter and working in a menial position on an Albany River night boat. The fun begins in real earnest when his wife, in an attempt to satisfy his longing, secretly spends their entire joint savings to buy him the little ferry boat which operates out of their town, notwithstanding the fact that the ambitious Slim regards the ramshackle tub with lofty contempt.

Never before have Summerville and Miss Pitts been so aptly cast as in "Her First Mate," and never before have they appeared together in a picture so plentifully supplied with funny situations and dialogue. The comic climax of the picture is noticeable in the cast which has made the most of every situation.

In the House of Commons during a debate on prohibition, a member of Parliament asked: "Does the mover of the motion know that during the South African War 50 per cent of the teetotalers in a famous Scottish regiment died? You may think that is an exaggeration," he continued, "but I knew the man who died."

Glamorous Film Star

Mae West, Popular Paramount Star, Who Will Be Seen at the Capitol Theatre in Their Thanksgiving Midnight Frolic Along With Their Stage Attractions.

Thrills and Heart-Throbs Combined in Capitol Film

Ronald Colman Turns in Splendid Performance, Playing Dual Role, in "The Masquerader"—Excellent Supporting Cast

Through the fog and the mystery of night, Ronald Colman emerges into the living image of himself and so starts off the stirring story of "The Masquerader" at the Capitol Theatre.

The thrills and the heart-throbs of the famous stage melodrama are brilliantly revised by Colman in a smooth and polished production by Samuel Goldwyn. Howard Estabrook and Moss Hart adapted the screen play from John Hurst Booth's dramatization of the Gashlynn Cecil Thurston novel.

Playing with Colman in the dual roles are the patrician Elissa Landi and the dark, stately beauty of Juliette Compton, the one as wife, the other as mistress.

The story itself is one of the most cherished and the most intriguing of modern legends. John Chlicote, estranged from his wife, Eve, is dispassionate very much. Making a critical speech in the House of Commons, he collapses. Stumbling home then in the fog, he collides with his double, whom he installs in his place in the seat of government and his home.

The strange plot, reported as Colman's last for two years, is certainly a fitting swan song to the Hollywood career of a distinguished actor and a gentleman.

4. Jack Oakie; 5. Bing Crosby; 6. George Raft; 7. Sylvia Sydney; 8. Gary Cooper; 9. Claudette Colbert; 10. Richard Arlen; 11. Carole Lombard; 12. Charles Ruggles; 13. Kathleen Burke; 14. ## COLUMBIA OFFERS WESTERN PICTURE

Ken Maynard Seen in "The Trail Drive"—George Arliss in Added Film

Ken Maynard's latest, greatest whirlwind Western, "The Trail Drive," is coming to the Columbia Theatre tomorrow.

The two-gun, two-fisted, triple-threat king of the cowboys and his silvery steed, Tarzan, run riot in a smashing action picture chock full of surprises and excitement. "The Trail Drive," a super-Western with Ken and Tarzan running the gauntlet of ambushers, rustlers and cattle crooks to deliver the greatest herd of longhorns ever assembled across Texas to save the ranchers and to win the love of the sweetest girl in the West, played by Cecelia Parker.

For several weeks, during the production of "Voltaire," a Warner Bros. picture, which is the added feature, George Arliss hunched himself in a stooped posture, which characterized Voltaire in life. Mr. Arliss is a small man, but he made himself smaller and shorter by bad carriage in the picture, based on a dramatic incident in the Frenchman's life. Since he was almost constantly before the cameras for six hours daily, he feared he would become round-shouldered. To counteract it, the actor, on his customary morning walks in the Hollywood mountains, kept his head up and his chest out.

Screen Newsmen Have Hard Time Securing Shots

HUNDREDS of top-notch cameramen in every part of the globe risk their lives every day to photograph the latest news pictures now to be seen on the screen of the Dominion Theatre in "The Daily Colonist Universal news reel."

Members of a highly complex and efficient organization, these men work at top speed through the year to bring the big news stories to the screen. They are specialists in their field and are largely responsible for the speed in which "hot" stories are seen all over the country as soon as possible after the event takes place.

Working under the direction of Allyn Butterfield, editor, these technical experts, including cameramen, sound men, film cutters and writers are constantly seeking to increase the speed of the news reel's production.

News reel men know no holiday. When not actually on the scene taking pictures, they patrol the world, from the centres of culture to the outposts of civilization, watching for the spark that will grow into a bonfire of news. Twenty-four hours a day these experts are on duty. When news does "break," speed is vital. They rush to the scene, plan their picture, photograph it, rush back to their offices, describe it and then place it aboard a speeding airplane, an express train or a fast ship.

DANCE SCHOOL TO PRESENT CONCERT

Italian School of Music and Dancing Programme Is Slated for October 20

The annual musical and dance revue to be presented by the Italian School of Music and Dancing in the Shrine Auditorium on Friday, October 20, under the directorship of Madame Attfield, promises to surpass all previous productions of this school.

A kaleidoscopic and colorful programme has been prepared to suit the varying tastes of patrons. As in the past, the productions of this school continue to feature instrumental, musical and stage dancing of a high order. The musical section will include, in addition to a number of compositions by instrumental groups, a number of lighter compositions. Lively banjo solos, characteristic Southern melodies on the Hawaiian guitar, and well chosen compositions in the ensemble groups comprise part of this section.

The dancing section includes a number of skillfully arranged group and novelty dances under the direction of Grace Attfield, who has charge of the dancing at the Italian School. This popular terpsichorean and musical artist needs no introduction to Victorians. All the dances are new and original, and include such novelties as the banjo tap and skeleton and toe banjo. The "Cowboys Frolic" is an ambitious production, comprising a medley of dancers, instrumentalists and vocalists, with plenty of action throughout the theme. "Raising the Flag" and its accompanying tableau of Britannia is a divertissement of patriotic interest, depicting the ceremony of a time-honored custom which has a never-failing interest for old and young.

Pupil—Dad promised me a shilling if I got good marks in arithmetic. Teacher—Well! What are you doing about it?

Pupil—Give me full marks and we share the shilling.

YOU CAN ASSIST IN PREVENTING LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Every year, in Canada, fire destroys property valued at more than $40,000,000, and causes the loss of hundreds of lives.

You can help to prevent this tremendous sacrifice by removing the causes of fire in your own premises.

Among the common causes of fire are: Defective chimneys and flues, defective electric wiring, careless use of coal oil stoves and gasoline, carelessness with matches, carelessness with cigarettes, carelessness with cigars, accumulation of trash and rubbish in basements, closets and yards.

Footloose In Victoria

By
R.A. DIESPECKER

Buildings? There is nothing that I can think of more ludicrous or extraordinary than the sight of chickens, feeding contentedly on the lawns of a great legislative building.

Some day, early in the morning preferably, take a walk down beside the Postoffice and turn your face towards Government Street. Then, if a cyclist or a two-wheeled cart drawn by "old Dobbin" happens to be passing that way, as they sometimes do, you would swear you were in some old town in Europe, with its quaint streets and ancient buildings, forgotten by the business-mad world, and content to muddle along in its complacent routine as it has done for centuries.

Our Lady of Lourdes

OR go out to the chapel of Our Lady of Lourdes in the Willows, and there, beside the small wooden church you will find an exact replica of the famous cavern in France where the halt and the maimed have gone for hundreds of years to be cured of their ills. You will see everything there, except, of course, the crutches that cover the walls of the original, left there by the lame who were made to walk again and the sticks left by the blind who were given their sight.

One of the most diverting pastimes, if you have the opportunity, is to listen to some of our American cousins, of the class commonly known as tourists. Of course, there are the well-known stories of tourists who want to know whether the figure on top of the Parliament Buildings is George Washington, if the building house our Congress or the Senate, or if it is the House of Lords.

But there are two or three that I was fortunate enough to overhear, and which will, I think, bear repeating.

Terrible Tourists

I HAD been one day to be standing at a store counter when a lady and gentleman entered who were quite obviously from the other side of the line. The lady asked for a three-cent stamp, while her husband gazed rapidly at a number of picture postcards. When the stamp was handed to her, she looked at it for several minutes and then asked "Is this your President?"

The sales clerk stared at her in amazement. "No, ma'am, that's George," he said. "Oh, is he your Vice-President?"

"No, no. King George, ma'am, King George of England," replied the salesman, exasperated by this time.

"My gosh, Jack," shrieked the lady excitedly, "come here. Look, there's their King. See, that's their King, King George."

I only overheard one that was worse, and that, strangely enough, was in the same spot. This time, a gentleman of large proportions, accompanied by a cigar almost as large, strode forcefully in from the street.

"Say, how long will it take me to drive to Nanaimo?" he demanded.

"About two hours?" he was told.

"Two hours! What the h—! do you think I'm driving? Why, your Island is only about thirty miles long."

"Excuse me, sir, but the Island is nearly 300 miles long."

"What, Vancouver Island? You sure you don't mean Canada?"

Which only goes to show that there are still some people in the world who think Canada is a land of everlasting snow, inhabited by ranchers, Redskins, mounted policemen and fur traders, and that it is about the size of the State of Arkansas.

And it also goes to show that you don't have to travel very far afield to find novelty, oddity, beauty or humor. Take a closer look at your own city some day.

It is a strange, but nevertheless a true, fact that people can live in a locality all their lives and find nothing at all unusual or particularly interesting about it. Others, who travel abroad, are still of the same opinion about their own homeland, yet they find something in every other land they visit that is exotic or novel, something queer or eccentric.

It almost leads one to believe that we walk our own streets, day after day, with our eyes blindfolded and our ears closed to everything but what we expect to hear or see. I know that in my own experience, and such is probably that of the average person, that I have passed by countless things that a traveler would notice at once, but which we who live here, never can see because they are right beneath our noses.

I have proved this, to my own satisfaction, at all events, by setting out in a deliberate attempt to find something a little out of the common run of things, and the results have amazed me.

Still Blacksmiths

I FOUND, among other things, that there are still blacksmith shops in Victoria; that there are at least two rice mills, a silversmith's and a hat factory. Within a few miles of the city itself is a lavender farm, whose owners grow the fragrant flower and manufacture lavender water for milady. Also within a few miles of the city are holly farms, whence the scarlet-berried Christmas decorations are shipped to every part of the continent.

Another flourishing industry which calls Victoria its home, but like many other Victorians I had never heard of, is that of Angora rabbit wool-growing. Though little is heard of the industry in Victoria, the demands for its products are so great that the entire output is shipped to Great Britain every year.

In many cases, both in Victoria and elsewhere, certain facts are more or less taken for granted. It never enters anyone's head to enquire whether or not they may be so.

Not Oak Bay Avenue

FOR instance, how many of us take it as a matter of course that when we pass the junction on the way to Oak Bay, we are on Oak Bay Avenue? Yet officially, at all events, Oak Bay Avenue does not commence until you are past Foul Bay Road. Up to the time you reach that point you are still in the City of Victoria, and therefore on Pandora Avenue.

Over behind the massive grey beauty of the Parliament Buildings is a small and unimportant looking structure that houses the Provincial mineral exhibit and other supplementary offices of the Department of Mines. Just a red, wood and brick weather-beaten building that has become as familiar to the average Victorian as the Sooke Hills, but it once stood proudly as part of the first Legislative Buildings of the Colony of Vancouver Island, and under its roof the first legislators gathered in solemn and dignified conclave.

The Provincial Archives themselves provide a fertile field if you are looking for something you forgot to notice before. There are, of course, the hundred and one Indian relics; the historic pictures of Victoria and Vancouver Island points; the famous documents of the early times of the province, and the model of the old Beaver.

Indian Medals

BUT have you ever seen the medals that were to be presented to the Chilcotin Indian chiefs for their parts in the capture of Paul Spintum and Moses Paul, the Indian outlaws, who, in 1912, terrorized the Cariboo country and murdered a white rancher, a Chinaman and a provincial policeman? Those medals, hidden away amongst a host of other small exhibits in a glass case, are the only medals ever to be struck off by the Government of the Province of British Columbia, and it is likely that they will always retain this distinction. The Indians for whom they were designed refused to accept them.

In the rotunda of the archives, lying almost unnoticed in another glass case are some very badly printed, and rather worn looking tomes. The majority of them are the works of William Shakespeare, and two of them alone, a second and fourth folio are valued at almost $50,000. I have never been accused of being particularly unobservant, yet in countless visits to the archives during past years I have passed those treasures without being aware of their existence.

A Sylvan Glade

MOST of us have at one time or another walked through the beautiful gardens behind the Empress Hotel. I have, and I thought I had seen all of them until one day I noticed a little path leading off into the trees from the north driveway. Curious, I walked down it and there barely ten paces from the busy street was a perfect sylvan glade. Around me were graceful trees—weeping willow, chestnut, maple and arbutus; before me a rustic bridge of gnarled and knotted wood and at my feet a lily pond, fed by a tiny, bolsters water-fall and emptied by a miniature brook which wound away until it was lost to sight among the shrubberies.

Back in the city proper, I turned off Government Street, where once a bastion of old Fort Victoria stood, and passed down into the quiet confines of Bastion Square. To barristers and other men of law, this spot is quite familiar, but not so much, perhaps, to those who do their best to keep away from such unpleasant places as courts of law.

If you have never been to Bastion Square, then by all means make a point of visiting it some time. It has an air about it which no other part of the business district has. Those old grey stone and red brick buildings radiate dignity. They frown down upon you as if they resented your intrusion into the quiet and peace of their resting places. The very shrubs in the centre of the square seem to look askance at you. It is a sanctuary of the old world, with its massive, dusty old buildings, the narrow lane-like streets that stumble out of it, and the law chambers that look solemnly down in an unwinking line of stoney silence.

Fig Tree in Town

BELOW the chambers, twisted and weather-beaten, a fig tree leans crazily against the wall, struggling desperately to drag sustenance from the hard-packed earth beneath it. And without moving a step, you can see at the bottom of the square, where the worn cobblestones flaunt their bald heads in the sun, the old warehouse of the Hudson's Bay Company. Its crumbling red bricks all came from "Tusland and every nail and bolt that went into its construction was manufactured in a Victoria blacksmith shop.

There is a narrow lane leading off to the right as you face this historic old landmark that leads you out on to Yates Street. Follow it and turn back towards Government Street and there you will see another forgotten old-timer. It was a beautiful building once, constructed of massive grey stone, carved and moulded into a splendid facade. Before it, wrought iron railings stood bravely defending the gold that lay in the vaults within, for if you had seen it in those days, you would have read, carved in stone across the facade over the great doors: "Bank of British North America."

But now you can no longer see those words. In their place a long placard announces that a religious sect calls it their home. The great central doors are plastered with notices and inscriptions, the windows are fogged with dust and the railings, rusty and peeling with age and neglect, frame and empty court, save for the flotam of the street that has drifted through their bars.

Prince's Feathers

FURTHER up the street if you turn your eyes upward you will see the familiar feathers of the Prince of Wales adorning the side of an apartment block. How they come to be there has already been described in The Colonist, but even so, it will bear repeating.

James Dupen, for many years a master gunner and leading seaman in His Majesty's Navy, had the honour fifty-seven years ago to be chosen for the work of making alterations in the uniforms of King Edward when he was Prince of Wales. Mr. Dupen's work was so excellent that he performed these duties for many years while serving on the royal yacht, Osborne.

Afterwards, when he left the navy and became a tailor, he was granted the privilege of displaying the Prince's emblem of the three ostrich feathers above his establishment. That right, once given, can never be taken away, and today, although not wielding a needle, Mr. Dupen may still display the Prince's emblem outside his home.

Pioneer Churchyard

WALKING up Quadra Street one day, I turned aside at Christ Church Cathedral, and strolled through the little square park that had once been a churchyard. Like many others, I had noticed that it was there, and had passed through it by way of its diagonal pathway, but I had never really examined it closely.

I found when I did examine it, that there is more than a suggestion of history in it. Under the kindly shade of the ancient oaks, the weather-stained headstones, half covered with moss, stand in their silent vigil, the letters carved on their faces almost obliterated. The graves that once lay beneath them have long since been emptied of their rough hewn mouldering coffins, and now only the monuments remain to tell of the hardy pioneers who helped to build the city as it is today.

I could not find a date later than 1863, most of them having been erected in the sixties. Many of them carried on the cold, grey stone, the names of naval ratings and of men and women who had met their death in some marine disaster. All of them, however, seemed to be pervaded with an atmosphere of dignity and quietude, an old world "ancientness" of lichen and ivy, that sends you away feeling that you have indeed been peering into the pages of history.

Many Strange Sights

ACTUALLY, such a list of interesting sights or objects—beautiful, historical, amusing or bizarre, is practically unending. You or I could go deliberately looking for them, and after having found scores of them, could still pass over the same route and find a hundred more. Sometimes it is simply a combination of circumstances that rewards your quest.

For instance, have you ever been lucky enough to catch a glimpse, as you sometimes can, of the worthy domestic fowl on a worming expedition on the lawns of the Parliament

THE SAILOR'S KNOT

By
PETER B. KYNE

WHEN Alexander McCurrie, at the age of ten, earned his first shilling, he did not, as he was expected to do, take it home to his mother. He hid it. Years later he punched a hole through this shilling, and it became his watch charm and a perennial exhibit. Accompanying the homilies on thrift which he visited upon his family and employees.

Of course, any man who treasures his first shilling may be expected, in the afternoon of life, to be the possessor of many pounds. Old Man McCurrie, as he was always alluded to by The Street, was no exception to this rule. He never forgot that a dollar invested at 6 per cent, with the interest compounded semi-annually, will double itself in less than twelve years.

Born on the Clyde, his earliest recollections was of ships, and to them he gravitated as naturally as a duckling runs to water.

As a lad of twenty he had emigrated to the Pacific Coast and secured employment in a shipping office. At thirty he formed a syndicate and built a steam schooner, of which he was managing owner. His successful management rendered it easy for him to organize other syndicates. At fifty he was worth close to $200,000, so he sold out his interests in the steam schooners and purchased two 3,500-ton steel cargo steamers from the receiver of a bankrupt shipping concern.

Almost immediately the Great War started, and shrewd Old Man McCurrie looked into the future, made a dozen time-charters on steamers for three years, bought and sold anything that would carry cargo, sold all his steamers and time-charters before the 1921 deflation period, put all of his fortune into tax-exempt bonds, and then sat back to await bargains in ships constructed by the Shipping Board.

In 1923 he organized the McCurrie Steamship Company, and his house flag was a green thistle on a field of white with scarlet borders. He was one of the first to begin sorting over the tremendous idle fleet of the Shipping Board, picking the best and buying them for a tenth of their cost.

By 1926 the McCurrie Line consisted of twenty ships operating in various trade routes, and Old Man McCurrie was working harder than he had ever worked, getting stinger and crustier with age, and, seemingly, planning to live forever.

For four years his management delighted his stockholders, for not once in those four years did the McCurrie Line pass its quarterly dividend. In fact, so pleasing to Old Man McCurrie was his own management that ultimately he began to consider it a very great wrong that dividends should go to men who had merely invested money in the McCurrie Line, while he did all the work. He owned 10 per cent of the capital stock from the beginning, and this holding, together with proxies from non-resident stockholders, gave him control of the company and enabled him to perpetuate himself as president and select his own board of directors.

EARLY in 1930 it occurred to him that while he had nominal control of the company and would, undoubtedly, be continued in such nominal control indefinitely, an opportunity was now developing to secure actual control. So he commenced yearning for 51 per cent of the capital stock, and, since it was an unlisted stock, he knew that those of his stockholders who had been hurt in the market crash of October, 1929, presently would be coming in to sell him their stock, at the book value or whatever Old Man McCurrie thought they ought to receive.

Of course, the old skinflint's appraisal was far below the book value of the stock, which in itself was far less than the actual value, for Old Man McCurrie believed in conservative accounting. He could have purchased all the stock he desired during those flurried days in October, 1929, and at bargain prices, but he declined to do so, for he knew that the unlisted stock of a steamship company which had half a dozen of its ships laid up, and which had passed the last quarterly dividend in 1929 and would pass all dividends in 1930, would not prove an attractive investment and hence would be difficult to sell. Yes, he wanted his fellow stockholders to take a further financial beating. That would mellow them and render them amenable to reason when he made up his mind to buy their stock at his own price.

Now, up until he had accumulated his first million, Alexander McCurrie's most discernible characteristic had been the desire to accumulate another million—a pardonable, if grandiose, ambition. After accumulating the second million, however, he developed delusions of grandeur. Once he had seen what to boast a little of the success of the poor Scotch lad who crossed to America so deep in the steerage he had never even seen the Atlantic Ocean. With the advent of the McCurrie Line, however, he dropped that self-satisfying reminiscence. He developed austerity and engaged an ex-newspaperman as his publicity agent, to promote him as an authority on world trade, finance, and economics. He would make a dull speech before any organization that requested it, and his sense of power demanding exercise, he developed a habit of discharging employees for reasons he would have ignored a decade before. He assumed the great captain-of-industry pose and made it as difficult as possible for people to see him at his office.

From being a tyrant in his office was but a step to being a tyrant in his home, although here he developed presently a baffling opposition—not from his wife, who had always deferred meekly to him, but from his only daughter, Margaret.

MARGARET possessed also a well-controlled intelligence—hence an amazing amount of common sense. While subscribing wholeheartedly to the commandment that one shall honor one's father and mother, her acceptance of this code did not blind her to the fact that her father was a cross she had to bear until some acceptable young man should remove her from the old man's dominating suzerainty. Whenever a suitor appeared in the office, Old Man McCurrie would look his father's rating up in the two standard commercial agencies, divide the supposed parental assets by the number of children in the family—and turn down both thumbs.

The actual reasons for her father's conduct were quite apparent to his daughter. The Scotch, like the Irish, are very clanish, and prefer marriage among their own kind. Following, therefore, his will to power, Old Man McCurrie had decided that he would select for his sole heir a husband wholly worthy of an alliance with the House of McCurrie.

He had an old friend—one of the few he still possessed—Angus McBride. McBride owned in its entirety a company operating a fleet of tugboats and barges on San Francisco Bay and its tributaries. Also, he owned a block of stock in the McCurrie Line and was one of its directors, and he had a son named Stuart, an only child, who was being trained to succeed his father in the latter's business.

Stuart was a decent enough creature, but wholly lacking in charm, physically and mentally. He was, however, a keen business man. Consequently, Old Man McCurrie's acquisitive mind began wrestling with the thought that Stuart McBride would make an ideal husband for Margaret.

THAT night at dinner Old Man McCurrie was very gracious. After dinner, by way of opening the subject, he said to Margaret: "It strikes me, lass, you're seemin' quite a bit o' Stuart McBride. 'Tis pleasin' to me. He's a fine lad an' will inherit—"

"Father," the girl interrupted, "would it please you very much if I married Stuart?"

"'Tis the fond wish o' my heart, doter."

"Well, I'm sorry to disappoint you," the girl laughed, "but Stuart is definitely out."

"And who," her father rasped, "is definitely in?"

"Nobody."

"You'll marry Stuart. I've made plans, and—"

"I'll not marry that homely, bow-legged, red-headed, butter-milk-eyed, dull, unimpressive fellow," Margaret replied with spirit. "And, besides, how could you expect me to marry a man who wears a celluloid collar?"

Ordinarily Old Man McCurrie spoke with a very faint Scottish burr, but in moments of stress he went altogether Highland.

"I'll nae be defied in ma ain hoose," he shouted.

"Strangely enough, you shall. And I don't care to hear another word about Stuart."

"I dislike him very much. You stick to ships, father, and leave to me the management of my own matrimonial destiny."

Just then the front doorbell rang, and Margaret left the room.

"Fah," said Old Man McCurrie to his wife, "she's got company in the parlor. And who might that be?"

"Captain Dorsey, the master of the Avalon," she answered demurely.

"What?" Old Man McCurrie almost shouted. "A skipper o' the McCurrie Line comin' to pay court to the owner's dotter? I'll nae believe it. I'll nae believe the man'd risk his job that far. Why, woman, 'tis not four hours since he docked the Avalon."

"He seems to be a very nice young man, indeed, Aleck," Mrs. McCurrie defended her daughter weakly.

"Where in thunder did she meet him?"

"Aboard his ship, of course—when you gave her that trip to Valparaiso on the Avalon for a birthday present, and she had the owner's suite."

"Aye, so I did," he groaned. "And 'tis like to be a dear birthday present I gave her, notwithstanding it cost me nothin'. Oh, the brass o' the man, presumin' to call on his owner's dotter! I'll fire him for that, for I'll have no man in the employ o' the McCurrie Line that don't know his place."

"Is he a capable master, Aleck?"

"He commands the Avalon, the finest o' the McCurrie fleet on the West Coast run. A rare passenger skipper—blast him!"

"Then why d'you dislike him? Why—"

"Why, indeed," Old Man McCurrie murmured in an altered tone. "Right you are, Eileen. Hah, I have it. I'll lift the young upstart out o' the Avalon an' give him a ship on the round-the-world run—a bigger an' finer ship." He commenced to cackle. "On that run he'll be in San Francisco four times a year—an' I'll see to it, when he's here, he's kept too busy to spoil any plan o' mine."

OLD MAN MCCURRIE was very sure of himself always.

In the morning he sent a clerk down to the Avalon to request Captain Dorsey to come up to the office for a conference. Half an hour later, when Kevin Dorsey walked in on him, he looked the skipper over more carefully than he had ever done and was disturbed at the result of his appraisal.

"Good morning, Captain Dorsey," he greeted his visitor cordially. "Have a seat."

Old Man McCurrie coughed. "Captain," he began, "you've done well in the Avalon, so 'tis in my mind to promote you. I'm givin' ye the Mariveles on the round-the-world run. The scale will be fifty a month more."

Kevin Dorsey inclined his head in acknowledgment. "Thank you, sir," he said. "I'll do my best."

Three months later, when Dorsey brought the Mariveles into San Francisco, he discovered that his employer and his family were visiting in Scotland.

DORSEY was halfway across the Pacific on his second voyage in command of the Mariveles when the McCurries returned. Old Man McCurrie had two months' accumulation of mail to look through, but to his surprise and disappointment there were no letters from financially harassed holders of stock in the McCurrie Steamship Company, suggesting they would be glad to sell their stock to him.

"Any transfers of stock been made while I was away?" he asked the secretary of the company, Mr. Thompson.

"One, sir. A man named Kent B. Appleton, of New York, sent in a certificate for fifty shares for transfer to his name. He bought the Van Tromp holding. Two weeks after I had mailed him his certificate he appeared in person and asked to look at the stock journal. As he was a stockholder, I let him. He made a list of all the stockholders, their addresses, and the number of shares held by each."

"I wonder," Old Man McCurrie murmured, "what the fool is up to."

The information worried him. However, as the date for the annual meeting of the stockholders approached, he sent out printed proxy forms for the non-resident stockholders to sign, if they desired, nominating him their proxy. Kent B. Appleton sent in his proxy for fifty shares. Half a dozen other stockholders mailed theirs in, also, but when the votes were counted it was discovered that less than 65 per cent of the outstanding stock was represented at the meeting.

MARGARET MCCURRIE was at home when the Mariveles reached her home port again, but even then Kevin Dorsey had no opportunity to call upon her, although from his wife Old Man McCurrie learned that he had telephoned. He had not been in port an hour before the old schemer sent him to Seattle by airplane, there to survey a freighter that might be acquired by the McCurrie Line at a ridiculously low figure. Dorsey was a day going up, two days on the survey and a day returning. The Mariveles was scheduled to sail at noon next day.

He reported to his employer. He did not recommend the freighter's purchase.

Old Man McCurrie glanced at his watch. "Well, ye'll have time to clear the Mariveles, if ye're sailin' at noon," he suggested.

But Kevin Dorsey was not to be dissuaded

"I am Captain Kevin Dorsey, late of the United States mercantile marine."

"Twas your plug hat that deceived me, Captain. You're not welcome in my hoose," and he shut the door in the visitor's face just as Margaret came down the stairs. Her father stared at her.

In his place he will elect Captain Kevin Dorsey."

"Aye?" said Old Man McCurrie in a harsh whisper.

"The company has not been doing so well under your management," Kent B. Appleton went on suavely. "However, it is desired that you remain in your present office for another year."

"Aye?" said Old Man McCurrie.

"Captain Kevin Dorsey will be elected vice-president and assistant general manager. He has some bright ideas for improving the general efficiency of the company. It is to be announced. He greeted Old Man McCurrie very cordially.

"It occurred to me, Mr. McCurrie," he began briskly, "that it might be well to hold the meeting of the stockholders before the official one. I have here a ticket for the new board of directors. Four of the five old members will remain, but Mr. Sanderson will be retired. In his place we will elect Captain Kevin Dorsey."

"It occurred to me, Mr. McCurrie," he began briskly, "that it might be well to hold the meeting of the stockholders before the official one. I have here a ticket for the new board of directors. Four of the five old members will remain, but Mr. Sanderson will be retired. In his place we will elect Captain Kevin Dorsey."

"Aye?" said Old Man McCurrie in a harsh whisper.

"The company has not been doing so well under your management," Kent B. Appleton went on suavely. "However, it is desired that you remain in your present office for another year."

"Aye?" said Old Man McCurrie.

"Captain Kevin Dorsey will be elected vice-president and assistant general manager. He has some bright ideas for improving the general efficiency of the company. It is to be announced. He greeted Old Man McCurrie very cordially.

so readily. "There's another matter I'd like to take up with you, Mr. McCurrie. While I was master of the Avalon Mrs. McCurrie and your daughter made a round trip to Valparaiso in her. I saw a great deal of Margaret and fell in love with her. Frankly, I want to ask your permission to marry her."

"Ye're askin' more than I'm wishful to grant, Captain. I'm not desirous o' seein' my dotter married to you—or any other skipper. There will no more talk o' this between us."

Kevin Dorsey stood up and disclaimed the matter with a shrug. From a drug store he telephoned Margaret, and exactly at 12 o'clock pulled out for another three months' cruise on the Mariveles.

When he returned, Old Man McCurrie came aboard and greeted him cordially.

"The master o' our steamer Orion was taken ill in San Diego this mornin', Captain," he said. "The chief officer hasn't a master's licence, so I'll have to send ye down to San Diego at once to bring the Orion to San Francisco. I have no other master in the employ available."

"Well, that's too bad, Mr. McCurrie, but I've a hunch that you've ordered the master of the Orion to be ill, so you could get me out of the city while my own ship is in port. You got away with that last time by sending me up to Seattle. So I'm going to add to your troubles now. You'll have to find two capable skippers instead of one, because I am resigning."

"I'll nae gie ye a recommendation," Old Man McCurrie's face was red with anger.

"That doesn't frighten me. Old Dynamic, you'd better make up your mind you're going to have to stand for an infusion of salt solution in the blood of the McCurrie family. Now, I suggest that you reconsider your attitude toward your daughter's happiness. I dislike to brag, but she might go farther and fare worse."

"Ye may straighten up yer accounts an' clear out," Old Man McCurrie choked.

Two hours later Kevin Dorsey telephoned Margaret McCurrie.

"I saw the Mariveles passing in," she told him, "and I thought you might telephone. Mother and I'd like so much to have you out to dinner at least one night while you're in port. We have had so little opportunity to see you the past year."

"Thank you very much for the invitation, but I'm afraid your father wouldn't second it. I've resigned."

"Captain Dorsey! I hope you haven't quarreled with father. He thinks you're a grand skipper."

"We haven't quarreled exactly, but he hopes he has seen the last of me."

Polopsy—A New Game for B.C. Voters!

By SANDHAM GRAVES

POLOPSY, the latest craze in political science, is here! It is a brand new game for Voters, at present exclusive to British Columbia, but, due to its popularity, is sure to spread. The pieces are politicians, forty-seven of whom must be used, out of choice of two hundred candidates. The game is played on a spacious board, like a chess table, known as the Balance Sheet of British Columbia. The object of the game is to move forty-seven opposing pieces about so that the game ends with a surplus.

The name Polopsy is derived from polygamous politics crossed with top-sided economy. Polygamous politics, of course, is the result of politicians forsaking the single standard, and being wedded to more than one political party at the same time. Top-sided economy is an art evolved by the universities, influenced to some extent by that post-depressionistic school, the New Dealers.

Choosing sides is the first move in the game. To do this intelligently it is necessary to put each candidate, or piece, to the Question. A special form, akin to the field service postcard in the Great War, will be found useful for this purpose. A copy of such a form, known as the Political Conscience Card, is here supplied. After forty-seven pieces have been selected, and sides chosen, actual play may start.

The game is played in five chukkers called Sessions, with a limit of five years for the production of a surplus. Failure to win a surplus is not necessarily fatal to the side making the bids, as the game may still go to that force by reason of a negative surplus smaller than that of their opponents in the game. The term deficit is never used. The form of The Question is herewith introduced:

Political Conscience Card

Candidates must answer truthfully all of the undermentioned questions, by marking an "X" over the reply intended, and by writing out alternatives.

My Name is _____ Alias (if any) _____
My Address is _____ (write in block letters)

I represent the _____ Party: the _____
I am willing to be a _____
I subscribe with all my heart to the _____

I believe in (please write very clearly): _____

I believe also in _____

For my vacation I could go to _____

On retirement I would accept a position as _____

Note 1.—Independents must certify the following declaration:

This is to certify that I am independent of _____

Note 2.—As there is no demand, Conservatives are not included on the form.

Pieces in Game

THE question must be put to each candidate firmly, but with a sympathetic understanding of his innermost sensibilities. No third degree methods may be used. After selecting their pieces, the Voters then place their men on the board, which can be made cheaply by tracing out the last copy of the Balance Sheet of British Columbia. A true copy may be found at Page K6 of the Public Accounts for 1931-32. But for the benefit of those Voters who may not possess a copy, the chief divisions of the board are here given.

The names of the pieces must first be explained, together with an outline of their ostensible movements on the board. Backbenchers move very slowly, and then only one square at a time, in the direction commanded. The Whips, two to a side, are capable of greater movement, but advance or retreat along oblique lines across the board. Cabinet Ministers Ordinary are solid, substantial pieces, advancing in swift rushes along their own squares. They can retreat rapidly, to the rear or even sideways, until blocked by a heavier opponent.

The Minister of Finance is the most important piece on the board; moving as does a queen in chess, along any line and overcoming all save the premier piece. The Leader on the dealer's side is a piece to be guarded against check, and is not exposed in play. Opposing Leader or Leaders, as the case may be, are considered to have a voice, but no immediate responsibilities, in the game.

The game is played between the sides of the Ins and the Outs; the duty of the Outs being to check and confuse the Ins, so that they will develop a negative surplus, in place of a surplus, the winning point in the game. The players may substitute pieces in the Cabinet of Ministers, but cannot change men on the board when play is in progress.

If Voters have the Public Accounts before them, they can now play the game. If not, the following description will serve to outline the chief squares on the Balance Sheet Board:

Hunting a Surplus

IN regarding the Balance Sheet the Voters will see squares named Assets and Liabilities. On the 1931-32 model board, the Assets are marked by the hieroglyphics $195,742,830.92. The Liabilities are similarly stamped, and that is why it is called a Balance Sheet. The real thing to look for is the word Surplus, meaning surplus of assets over liabilities. The Surplus is found marked $33,337,364.14 on 1931-32 boards, and is not to be confused with surplus in operating or current accounts, which are so rare as to be almost unknown here. Assets, of course, are those things we have with us, and Liabilities that proportion of them which have not yet been paid for. It is a neat square.

Under itemized Assets will be found Buildings and Furnishings, marked $17,377,579.96; Highways, $67,868,204.18; Bridges, $8,244,470.96; Wharves, $163,229.00; Ferries and Landings, $333,030.27; and a total marked $94,006,613.44. Don't worry about the price tags. Some are as old as 1893.

Projects, Loans and Advances will be seen labelled $65,436,417.46. If interested in period furniture, one should note the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, an Asset marked $44,951,674.24. It is but fair to say there is grave doubt about that twenty-four cents. South Okanagan, at $3,129,182.04, may be a bit shaky at the terminals to the right of the decimal point, too. Indian Reserves, at $1,973,990, are plainly obsolete and out of style.

As these are Assets, however, do not pause over them.

It is the Liabilities that pinch in the stress of the game. There are direct Liabilities marked $128,766,270.31 for bonds and stock, the pretty engraved paper sometimes used as public money. The Reserve for Losses and Contingencies is $6,498,200; and here we find Sumas Developments listed at $3,500,000, and South Okanagan Project at $2,850,000. This is mere penny-ante stuff. Let us move along the board.

Counting that Surplus of $33,337,364.14 with us, there appear to be $162,000,000 against us, in direct Liabilities. Indirect Liabilities, the concealed hazards of the game, are listed at $68,137,857.23; but they include two railways, the Canadian Northern Pacific and the Pacific Great Eastern, so we should get some action out of that. The Dominion is using our C.N.P. rails, but we hold the mortgage, so that is a comfort.

On to another square. After all, with Assets of $195,000,000 or more, we waste time on Liabilities and poor relations. Debt; there is a Square.

View of the Assembly Chamber in the British Columbia Parliament Buildings, With the Speaker's Chair on the Throne.

at the peak three years ago, $43.85; and now are estimated at $31.42, at about the 1922 level. Per Capita means per head, and it is a tricky move in the game to extract their due share of expenses from babies-in-arms, pensioners, nongenerations, and those on relief through no fault of their own. For that reason Per Capita squares are most uncertain.

Having selected the pieces and learned the squares on the board, Voters are now ready to play the game of Polopsy. The soundest move, after choosing sides, is to select a Leader, known as the Prime Minister. Next comes the Minister of Finance, who is Lord of the Treasury; and Ministers Ordinary, as directed. The Speaker, or referee, is important, and with proper training can be taught to yawn at precisely the right places.

The whole game is neatly housed in its own box, which has a large compartment called the Assembly Chamber, which holds the board and pieces in play. Around this are grouped smaller compartments for the storage of pieces out of play, for delegations, committees, etc., and for useful odds and ends. Proper assembly of the pieces is most important, and special compartments are kept for this purpose; and also for the deposit of valuable papers, and so on.

Sinking Funds, Debenture Redemption, Interest Charges, Funded Debt, Refunded Debt,

Double Refunded Debt, and details of Floating Debt and Treasury Bills may be kept safely in the compartment labeled Public Debt. Grants-in-Aid are kept in box by themselves.

Pandora's Box

UNLOOKED-FOR-CONTINGENCIES are kept in a regular Pandora's box of unpleasant surprises, which enhances interest in the game. There is also a compartment called the Storeroom, where may be kept unwanted trifles, including railways, land settlement schemes, irrigation projects, and advances to this and that.

The Vault is the most important compartment around the board. This must be kept sanitariously clean. Cluttered-up vaults are always fire traps, and breed no end of germs. It is, therefore, the rule to keep the Vault as empty as possible.

Kibbitzing is a regular part of the game. For this purpose the board is surrounded by public galleries, where High School economists and others may watch the progress of play. There is also a pressed gramophone attachment to supply incidental music; but this is not often in order, some of the best records sticking at that place on their discs which produce an endless repetition of the sound Yahi! Yahi! Yahi!

With a little practice, Polopsy becomes a most entrancing game. Using two hundred choices, and forty-seven pieces, an endless variety of moves can be played, no two sessions in fact ever being remotely alike. Counters are used, in the shape of dollars, but as this is all Other Peoples' Money, the players cannot suffer any serious setbacks such as make golf, bridge and strip poker so dangerous by comparison. Men have played Polopsy for years, under the title of Politics. The new game is much improved, and women are taking to it now.

Put a little purple edging around the board. Shake the pieces well before using. Watch the rules of play, and you have in Polopsy a game that will give you infinite pleasure at very nominal expense—a mere $22,000,000 per annum. But what is $22,000,000 when you have Assets of $200,000,000—nearly?

TRUE LOVE

By RUPERT HUGHES

THE true test of love is perhaps the silence, the mere habit of clinging close without speech. In many a home where there is little or no mention of love there is more true devotion than in all the fiery passions that flame high, roar loudly and die fast. Numberless poets of love really hug their dictionaries tighter than their sweethearts and take more rapture from a good rhyme than from a whole year of still communion with the beloved.

The writing of love letters is a lost art that is not likely to be found again. It is an art that lovers may well spare, though it will rob future historians and biographers of many a picturesque and humanizing document.

It is not that lovers love any less lovingly today but that they seize on better implements than the pen and the poet. The telegram and the telephone have done for the love letter, and there is no complaint from the lovers. It will not be long now before television will add its gifts and the Romeo and Juliet of the next generation will gaze into each other's eyes as they whisper their sweet nothings across the continents and under the oceans. They will leave no records but they will think poorly of mail-carriers as Cupid's messengers.

We have just grown used to radio performances conducted for the entertainment of Antarctic explorers and we are apt to forget the frightful dangers and hardships still undergone by the invaders of the world of ice, from whom we hear almost every day and who hear us all the while.

A century ago a girl who bade her lover good-bye when he sailed away in quest of fame and fortune resigned herself to a delay of months, perhaps of years, before she could expect a letter from him, and by the time she got it it was ancient history and she might never have another. They grew used to it somehow and love survived—perhaps because they did not expect much of it.

Today the young lover on the ship can send his sweetheart a radio and receive one from her at any hour. If he takes an express train he can drop off at every station and send her a telegram and he can receive one from her almost anywhere. When he reaches his destination he calls her on the telephone and murmurs into her ear how much he has missed her.

Under these conditions love itself becomes a new thing. Separation is still harrowing but in a different way, and the suffering of parted lovers finds all sorts of mitigations. Not so long ago the abandoned wife or sweetheart spent half the day or night writing long accounts of her anguish and the far-off husband or lover spent his evening in his hotel room using up reams of hotel stationery telling how dull life was without his other half.

Now the call is put through from San Francisco to New York or from New York to London, and gossip and the sweetest of endearments are exchanged. The sense of privacy is also changed, and the insistence upon it almost lost.

IN olden days it was horrible to think that a stranger or an acquaintance might catch a glimpse of a love letter or overhear a pet name. Nowadays lovers howl their most intimate secrets across a wire thousands of miles long, or sit in a telegraph office and write night letters of the most torrid sort, then hand them over to be read and transmitted by operators jaded with such literature.

Not many years ago the person who put into a telegram so much as a "Dear John" or a "Yours truly" was thought to be a joke. Today—and especially tonight—thousands begin, "Oh my beloved lily-wipsey" or words to that effect, and end with phrases flaming like a comet's tail.

A man shot a man the other day for staying in a telephone booth too long. Almost any jury would have given him a vote of thanks for justifiable homicide. He was keeping some impatient soul from explaining to his wife or sweetheart how intensely he was thinking about her.

The very fact that it is so easy to return swiftly from a distance or to converse from afar tends to make lovers more careless of separation. This brings about new dangers.

An absent lover receiving a fat love letter by mail every day had evidence that the adored one had spent hours in writing it and had been at least so long out of mischief.

Now a girl or man can carry on a dozen flirtations all day, dance her feet off half the night, and the far-off betrothed will never know the difference, provided a good long night letter is sent or the three-minute tryst is kept at the telephone after midnight.

In the olden times, however, when a lover or a loveless was certain not to see the betrothed for six months or three years there were also opportunities for double dealing—not to say triple and quadruple dealing, and many an Enoch Arden came back to find his wife wedded to other men. Those who left sweethearts never knew what to expect.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder—of someone else—if it is prolonged, and wise lovers will travel together. Now that women go everywhere and smoke everywhere, there is no reason why man and wife should be parted even in a foreign barroom or at an American prize fight.

If the truth about the past were better known it would be realized that lovers really love each other more and better now than ever before. The inventors are working for emotion as well as for other more material benefits.

TODAY'S sermon was suggested by the remark of a charming and beautiful woman who, like many another wife, had never quite realized how deeply her brilliant husband loved her. She had apparently come to believe, as many wives do, that she had become a mere habit of her husband, with no understanding of how pleasant a habit she was. Perhaps he had not understood this himself.

At any rate, when she was invited to take a long journey with a friend, her husband urged her to go and insisted upon her staying a long while—at least a month. "Take a good rest," he said.

He was thinking that she must be horribly tired of him and she assumed that he was worn-out with her and anxious for a vacation of his own. So she said she would go for a month. She was somewhat humiliated and much hurt by what looked more like being evicted than loved.

After a few days of homesick effort to enjoy herself in unusual surroundings she was awakened at half-past four in the morning by the furious telephone bell. Startled out of her lonely slumbers she heard her far-off husband's voice booming in her ear:

"Say, what the devil are you doing?"

"I was sleeping," she answered. "What's the matter? Are you ill? Are you hurt? What on earth is the matter?"

Her alarm was rather sleepily answered with a shy pretence of being alarmed about her. Being mutually reassured, they fell into a little homely or apartment conversation and finally bade each other good-night.

The wife who told me this added:

"I was so touched by his worrying about me that I came right home. Was there ever such a fool?"

"You were the wisest of the wise," I answered. "When a man loves a woman so well as that after so many years it is criminal folly to torture him with any unnecessary absence. Too many women fool with love and play with it and there is nothing that wounds a man deeper in the heart or kills love quicker than finding the precious loneliness of his heart ignored or tantalized."

There are many false philosophies abroad in the world and they do as much harm as quack medicines. One of the worst of these is the cynical opinion often cleverly propagated that the way for a woman to make a man love her or keep on loving her, is never to let him think that he is indispensable or that he is secure in his love.

This is undoubtedly true of certain men who love in a certain way certain women. To those to whom love is a sort of poker game, nothing is more necessary than concealing one's hand, bluffing when it is weak and looking weak when it is strong.

But poker rules are a poor guide for the conduct of that sweet solemn form of prolonged bliss that marriage ought to be.

Too many wives forfeit the fidelity of their husbands because they are afraid or ashamed or too proud or too something to lay their cards on the table and make it plain that their love is complete and their need is infinite. A man cannot love a woman just because she loves him. A woman cannot require every suitor who comes along. Yet it is as true as any generalization is ever likely to be that a heart worth loving loves the more it is loved, and a heart worth loving cannot love long without being loved.

I REMEMBER another young wife who left her husband on a love vacation. She had a good excuse for a brief absence but she prolonged it because she was having a gloriously good time, much attention, and apparently a good deal of downright flirtation. How up-right the flirtation was I could not know, but she showed me a long, long telegram from her husband begging her to return to him since he was in an agony of loneliness for her.

She was highly flattered and a little troubled as to whether she ought to keep him guessing or put him out of his misery by going home. I advised her to take the first train, saying:

"Any woman who can inspire anguish in a man by staying away from him had better inspire as little of it as possible. Such devotion is rare and precious but it is apt to die utterly the moment it suspects that it is not appreciated. When we suffer for others we have to be sustained by a feeling that our suffering is necessary and is appreciated. The moment a self-respecting man decides that his sweetheart or his wife is indifferent to his yearning, he is apt to stop yearning. If he ever learns that she has been enjoying his pain, his love is apt to turn to hate."

She took my advice and went back to her husband. They were divorced a year or so later. I cannot believe that the fault was in my advice. Anybody who is foolish enough to take my advice would be foolish enough to make some other dreadful mistake.

The Roman historian said, "Happy is that country which has no history." So one might say, "Happy is that married couple of which the least is known. Happy is that couple which has few love letters to show for long absences."

Believing this, one believes that there is a vast, almost infinite, amount of happiness flourishing in the quiet homes of multitudes of hard-working, soft-spoken couples whose jealousy is never suspected by outsiders. The worst of it is that it is not often suspected by the blase and lucky couples themselves.

WE learn of all too many loves when they have ended in fireworks in the ghastly recriminations of the divorce courts, or now and then in hideous murders. No one can ever know how many of those tragedies began in little habits of concealment on either side. The beloved never knew how well he or she was beloved and love turned to poison for lack of mutual understanding.

There are households where husband and wife are so incapable of exchanging words of love or of expressing their devotions that foreigners could hardly be more remote. Unnecessary deaf-mutism is one of the commonest causes for the wreckage of wedded lives that might have been perfect.

If you love your husband or your wife, keep saying so. Deeds are not enough. Love has ears that hunger and the heart feeds through its ears. What on earth is more pitiful than the mutual silence of a man and a woman who have dwelt together for years and lost the habit of making love until both are incredulous of its existence?

Outside the home there are roving men and women willing enough to offer feasts of flattery and courtship, and the husband or wife who never pays tribute to the charm of his or her partner is simply driving that famished beggar to other tables where the welcome is warmer if less sincere. Men and women exist by the millions who let true love die because they are too timid or too grim to give it what it is starving for in the presence of a hidden banquet.

Basin of Pacific Ocean Engirdled by Ring of Volcanic Mountains

THE volcanoes which erupted recently in the State of Vera Cruz, Mexico, and in Alaska are in that belt of volcanic activity which engirdles intermittently the huge basin of the Pacific Ocean, says a writer in The New York Times. This ring of volcanoes may be traced, on this side of the Pacific, from Cape Horn to Alaska, while on the other sides the cones are found in Japan, the East Indies, New Zealand and other islands.

In South America, the Andes are studded with volcanoes, some of which are among the loftiest in the world. In April, 1932, a number of volcanoes roared into activity, terrifying inhabitants for 400 miles and sending dust as far away as New Zealand, 6,000 miles distant. Desabazado, Chico and Planchon in the Andes erupted again in July, and last January Llamas, in Southern Chile, poured smoke six miles in the air.

Central America has a large number of active volcanoes. In January, 1932, Acate-nango, Fuego and Agua, in Guatemala, burst into activity, covering several cities with a blanket of ashes. Six months later Ometepe, Nicaragua's largest volcano, erupted to send ashes thirty-six miles away. Last November Rincon de la Vieja (Old Woman's Corner), in Costa Rica, went on a rampage. Last Summer one of Mexico's largest volcanoes, Ximantecatl, showed activity.

Volcanoes in United States

FEW volcanoes are active in the United States. Mount Lassen, in California, shows occasional small outbursts. Mount Hood, in Oregon, exhales vapors, as also does Mount Ranier in Washington. The Mono Valley craters and Mount Shasta are extinct, like most of the many volcanic peaks in the Cascade Range. Mount St. Helens, in Washington, was in eruption in 1841 and 1842, and Mount Baker in the same state was active in the following year. An eruption occurred in 1857 at Tres Virgenes, in the South of California.

Several volcanoes in the Aleutian Islands, off Alaska, are often active. Shishaldin, one of the highest peaks in the Aleutian chain, erupted violently in February, 1932. It shows spectacular activity every few years. It is said that in the islands and peninsula there are fifty-seven craters either active or recently extinct.

In Alaska itself there are several volcanoes that have at one time been in eruption. Among them are Mount Fairweather, Mount Edgumbe and Mount Wrangell.

GOIN' FISHIN'?

By ALICE PAGE

That evening the boys of the village stood about in groups talking, and every time Algy got near a group, one of the boys would ask quite politely: "Hello, Algy. Goin' fishin'?"

Algy was rather puzzled. "No," he said, "I am not goin' fishin'."

"Oh, pardon me," came the rejoinder, "I thought you were."

In the tool shed at the bottom of Bill Green's garden, later in the evening, four boys were just bringing to a close a very important meeting.

"Well," said Bill, "I bet that will about settle him for good. And mind you have your sister Gerty right at the back of that fence, Tom."

"All right," answered Tom. "Did you get a hiding, Bill?"

"No, I didn't," said Bill. "Ma said I was getting too old for her and dad was to do it, and dad said he began to think that every time ma tried to knock one devil outa me, she knocked two in, and while they was arguing I slipped out and I ain't been back since."

Ten minutes later Bill met Algy. "Hello, Algy," he said. "I was looking for you. You lost your knife?"

Algy hesitated. He hated to own up, but he had to have his knife.

"Why, yes," he said slowly. "You got it, Bill?"

"No, I haven't," said Bill, "but I know who has."

"Well, please tell me, Bill," begged Algy, "and I'll try and help you some time."

"Well," said Bill, "I don't know if I can find him," he said. "He was going to take it to your ma. You come with me and see if we can find him."

Bill adroitly led Algy into the lane at the back of Tom's cottage. Tom was just coming out of his back gate.

"Here's the chap who's got your knife," he said to Algy.

Algy held out his hand for the knife. "Oh, thanks, Tom. I'll do anything for you I can," he said with relief.

"Well, that's all right. Come to think of it, Algy, there's something you can do for me. Listen," said Tom. "Bill and me want to go fishing tomorrow morning early, and we want you to keep watch for us. I'll bring your knife with me. I haven't got it now and ma's out."

"No," said Algy. "I'm not goin' fishin'."

"Well, then," said Tom, "I'll take the knife to your mother tomorrow, so that'll be all right. But you said you'd do anything for me," he added in an aggrieved voice.

Algy looked glum and for a minute there was silence. Then his face cleared.

"Well, all right," he said, "I'll come; but how will I be able to wake so early?"

"I'll tell you," said Bill. "You get a long piece of string an' tie it round yer ankle an' drop it out the window, an' when we come along we'll just gently pull it an' wake yer up. You better have a ladder and come out the window, then you won't wake your ma."

"All right," agreed Algy. "I'll come if you give me the knife now."

"You promise on your word of honor and I'll see if my ma's back," said Tom.

"All right," said Algy. "I promise."

Tom went into the house. His sister sat on the back step. As Tom came out with the knife he stopped to speak to Gerty. "I say, Gerty," he said, "I dropped a farthing just inside the gate. You can have it if you can find it." Gerty was off like a shot.

Tom carefully shut the back gate behind. "Before I give it to you, Algy, you promise, cut your throat, you'll come fishin' in the morning."

Algy wet his finger in his mouth. "See my finger's wet?" He wiped it on his pants and held it out. "See my finger's dry. I'll cut my throat before I tell another lie. I'll tie a string round my ankle and you can pull it and wake me up, and I'll go fishin' with you at five tomorrow morning."

"All right," said Bill and Tom together, "we'll be there."

Inside the gate a little girl stood with a farthing clutched in her hand, her mouth and eyes wide open. As the boys' footstep retreated down the lane she drew a long breath. "O-o-er," she said in astonishment. "Algy's goin' fishin'!"

As Algy sat on the edge of his bed that night, tying the string to his ankle, he had a speculative look in his eye. "Well," he said at last, "I got to be ill in the morning. Best thing I can have is toothache."

At five next morning he felt a tug at his ankle. He jerked the string to let the boys know he was awake, but the tug came harder and he hastily slipped out of bed. The string jerked his foot off the ground and he had to hop. He didn't dare call out to the boys, or his mother in the next room would hear. Frantically, he hopped to the window and signalled to the boys, but they never once looked up. His leg was going out the window now. He tried to reach his ankle, but by now he was sitting on the window ledge, his foot beyond his reach and his leg sticking out in front. He looked down in the half light tying the end of that string to the clothes post. Then the boys turned to the gate, and as the gate quietly shut behind them, a whisper floated up to Algy: "Algy, goin' fishin'!"

For over two hours Algy sat on the sill and it seemed to him that every boy and girl in the village was in the back lane. The villagers were very early risers and eight o'clock was quite late for them.

The lane was full of giggling girls and laughing boys. Every few minutes a stage whisper would float up from the crowd: "Hello, Algy. Goin' fishin'!"

The worst of it was Algy had locked his door so that his mother wouldn't come in and see the string. He heard her come upstairs and shake the door.

"Algy, what's the matter?" she asked. "Open the door."

"All right, ma," he called in desperation.

"She went downstairs very puzzled and not a little anxious. Picking up the basket of wet clothes, she went out to hang them on the line, and for the first time saw the children in the lane."

"Look, Mrs. Patmore," cried Gerty. "Algy was goin' fishin' and the boys tied him up."

Mrs. Patmore looked up at the window, then hastily ran into the house and in a few seconds returned with the knife and cut the string.

"Here, you, Gerty," she called. "You dare to say my Algy was goin' fishin'?"

"Well, he was, Mrs. Patmore," asserted Gerty. "I was in our back garden and I heard him promise to go fishin' with our Tom and Bill Green. He promised, 'cut your throat,' too."

Mrs. Patmore glared at the two boys. "So it was you two bad boys, was it?" she stormed.

"No, it wasn't," said Bill. "Gerty told my ma I was goin' fishin, so she locked me in and she only let me out half an hour ago."

"And it wasn't me either," chimed in Tom. "Gerty told my ma and I was locked in, too."

"Well," demanded Mrs. Patmore, "who tied this string to the clothes post?"

Of course no one knew, but as Algy's mother slammed into the house, two boys, who had been with Tom and Bill at the meeting in the tool shed, solemnly winked at each other.

Some hours later Algy opened his back gate. Furtively, he looked up, then down the lane. Not a soul in sight. Then he stepped out into the lane and at once his eye was caught by a large piece of cardboard tacked on the fence.

On its white surface was printed in black shoe polish: "Perfect specimen of a reel, live tail-tale-it!"

And from both ends of the lane came the question from invisible boys: "Hello, Algy. Goin' fishin'?"

Security

He does not change, though centuries have crushed

Kings and their mighty kingdoms into dust,

The little child that gentle Mary hushed

Remains the deathless symbol of our trust.

He does not change, though prophets false arise

Acclaiming idols in each passing age,

The Child that slept to Mary's lullabies

Remains the God of peasant and of sage.

He does not change, though from our lives depart

High dreams and laughter—even love may go;

He is a sweetness nestled in each heart,

The only changeless beauty that we know.

A New Version

Ignorance and a ready wit may some times go together.

"We had to write about George Washington today," said a schoolboy to his mother.

"I hope you didn't forget to tell about the cherry tree?"

"Oh, no, I said he sawed it down."

"Sawed it down! He chopped it down with his hatchet!"

"Yes, I know, but I couldn't spell hatchet."

Hymn of Praise

Let the whole creation cry

Glory to the Lord on high!

Heaven and earth, awake and sing

God is good and therefore King.

Praise Him, all ye hosts above!

Ever bright and fair in love!

Sun and moon, uplift your voice,

Night and stars, in God rejoice.

Warriors fighting for the Lord,

Prophets fighting for the Lord,

Prophets burning with His word,

Those to whom the arts belong,

Add their voices to the song.

Kings of knowledge and of law

To the glorious circle draw;

All who work and all who wait

Sing the Lord is good and great.

Men and women, young and old,

Raise the anthem manifold;

And let the children's happy hearts

In this worship bear their parts,

From the north to southern pole

Let the mighty chorus roll—

Holy, holy, holy One

Glory be to God alone.

—Stopford Brooke.

THIS DOG'S LIFE

By DAVID NEWELL
Norwegian Elkhound

When people think of hounds, we're apt to think of dogs whose ears are lapped. But this Norwegian elkhound's ears stick up just like a wolf's or deer's.

And though he doesn't look like a hound, he hunts with keen nose to the ground.

And trails a bear or elk with ease—

For big game he's among the best.

I wish that you could see him fight: He's rough and tough and quick as light. He'll bite a bear and jump away, And keep that bear right there at bay!

In wolfish texture of his coat, He's like a shepherd dog, you'll note. In fact the police dog of today Evolved from him the breeders say.

To Daffodils

Fair Daffodils, we weep to see

You haste away so soon;

As yet the early-rising sun

Has not attained his noon;

Stay, stay,

Until the last day

Has run

But to evensong;

And having pray'd together, we

Will go with you along.

We have short time to stay as you,

We have as short a Spring;

As quick a growth to meet decay

As you, or anything.

We die

As your hours do, and dry

Away.

Like to the Summer's rain;

—R. Herrick.

To Blossoms

Why do ye fall so fast?

Your date is not so past,

But you may stay yet here awhile

And go at last.

What! Were ye born to be

An hour or half's delight,

And so to bid good-night?

'Twas pity Nature brought ye forth

Merely to show your worth,

And lose you quite.

But you are lovely leaves, where we

May read how soon things fade;

And after they have shown their pride

—R. Herrick.

To Autumn

Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun;

To bend with apples the mossed cottage trees,

And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core;

To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells

With a sweet kernel; to set budding more,

And still more, later flowers for the bees,

Until they think warm days will never cease,

Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?

Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find

Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind;

Drowsed with the fume of poppies, while thy hook

Sparres the next swath and all its twined

And sometimes like a gleaner thou dost keep

Steady thy laden head across a brook;

Or by a cider-press, with patient look,

Thou watchest the last oozings, hours by hours.

Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?

And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue;

Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn

Among the river sallows, borne aloft

Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies;

And full-grown lambs loud bleat from hilly

Hedge-crickets sing, and now with treble soft

And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.

—John Keats.

Sing to Me of Shawnigan

(To R.M.W.)

Aye! Sing to you of Shawnigan?

That will I gladly do:

Thrice happy muse, if thus she can

Regale the heart of you!

Here, from this quiet nook, behold

An area serene,

Whose hallowed hills a hundredfold

Immortalize such scene.

Pringed as if by an emerald band,

The lake lies crystal clear:

What now assaults the ear?

As if to listen, lo, the larks

Loom closer when a bird

The very soul of me beguiles—

So sweet the song I hear!

So, let my humble minstrelsy

Subservient be to this—

A little brown bird in a tree,

Whose every note is bliss:

Whose song is but the counterpart

Of all earth's loveliness,

Reflected in your loving heart;

And in your eyes no less!

—Mary H. Rathbone.

Winsome Girl Given Alice Role

Above is a new portrait of Charlotte Henry, luckiest of 7,000 English, Canadian and United States girls who sought to play the coveted title role in the motion picture version of Lewis Carroll's famous children's story, "Alice in Wonderland." Selection of the cast for this film has taken nearly a year, and the picture will not be vitally changed from the original story. Twenty-seven motion picture stars have been carefully picked to take the parts of the Mad Hatter, March Hare, the Duchess, and other famous characters in the book.

This Month's Anniversaries

Pierre Corneille

ON October 1, 1684, died Pierre Corneille, the famous writer of French plays. Shakespeare was still living when Corneille was born in Rouen in 1606. In those days the French had no high opinion of English writers and after Corneille had made himself famous in comedy he learned Spanish in order to read Spanish plays and learn the story of their hero, The Cid. He published a play about him when he was thirty years old. Corneille has been called the creator of French tragedy. He wrote a great many plays and was an old man when he laid down his pen, but his later dramas are forgotten. Many boys and girls in these days have the opportunity of learning to understand as well as to speak French. This is a privilege they should value highly. Corneille is among the authors whose works have been translated for young people.

Lord Willington

ON October 2, 1926, Lord Willington took office as Governor-General of Canada. Perhaps some of you remember the morning he turned the first sod of the bathing pool when he addressed the High School students some time before. Everyone who was present felt that the tall gentleman and his smiling lady loved children. Lord Willington, who was Freeman—Freeman-Thomas is sixty-seven years old. Lady Willington is the daughter of the First Earl Brassey, noted as a statesman and author. He was a celebrated yachtsman, and his wife wrote the "Voyage of the Sunbeam." Their Excellencies lived in Canada from 1926 to 1931. Ever since Lord Willington has been Governor-General of India. He had formerly been Governor of Madras and of Bombay. Among the distinguished men Great Britain has sent to preside over the affairs of Canada, Lord Willington holds an honored place.

Time to Plant Bulbs for Pot and Outdoor Blooms

NOW is the time for planting bulbs for winter and spring bloom. When winter arrives it will be too late; the chance to have pots of beautiful flowering bulbs during the winter months and beds of brilliant tulips, daffodils and other lovely flowers in the spring will have been lost.

Bulbs of fragrant hyacinths, for instance, if planted early in October should be ready to bloom by New Year's Day. For house bulbs, the hyacinth and daffodil are perhaps easiest to handle, but tulips and crocuses may be grown with success if a little more attention is given to the matter of temperature.

The soil for bulb culture need not be rich, but it should contain a considerable proportion of vegetable matter and sufficient sand to allow easy drainage. Ordinary garden soil may be used if mixed with a proportion of leaf-mould and coarse sand. Hyacinths give good results with one bulb to a five-inch pot, but more pleasing effects may be secured by using larger pots that will accommodate from three to five bulbs. For bulbs of any kind, six-inch pans about five inches deep are most satisfactory and convenient to planting, the deeper pots, and with regard to planting, the following is the practice found by experience of the various horticultural societies to be most useful:

Method of Planting

MIX and sift the soil, place a piece of broken pot or a layer of gravel in the bottom of the pot to provide drainage; fill the pot two-thirds full of loose earth, press the bulb into position, base down, cover the bulb to a depth exposing the tip, and press the soil around firmly. A half-inch space at the top of the pot should be allowed for watering. Do not crowd the bulbs in pots, nor set them too far apart. For crocuses a shallow pan is perhaps the best receptacle, placing the bulbs no wider than an inch apart in the soil.

Soak thoroughly before setting away in a dark, cool place. For tulips, narcissi, hyacinths and crocuses the pots should be stored from ten to twelve weeks, say, in the basement where the temperature may be kept down to about forty-five degrees or lower after the cold weather sets in. Paper white narcissi do not require to be placed in a cold, dark place as the other bulbs do. Leave them in the cool for eight or ten days, when they may be brought to a window in the living room to develop their tops and bloom, which they will do within a few weeks.

Ready for Forcing

WITH regard to the other bulbs, the pot or pan is ready to bring out for forcing when the white roots appear through the hole in the bottom, and when the upper growth has advanced an inch or so above the soil. The bulbs should be brought out first in a moderate light and cool temperature for a week then gradually introduced to warmer conditions and stronger light for the full development of the bloom. When the flowers appear, the plants should be removed from the direct rays of the sun, and it is well to remove them to a cool room at night.

The brilliance of the beds of tulips, daffodils and other bulbs next spring will depend on how well the gardener has planned and planted them during the present enacting days before the advent of winter. When bulbs are to be set in the perennial border, it is well to place them in groups of a variety of five, seven or nine, the groups arranged irregularly and several feet apart. The late tulips, including the Darwins, Breeders and Cottage, are perhaps most satisfactory for this grouping. Bulbs should be planted from five to six inches deep for tulips, daffodils and hyacinths. Smaller bulbs, such as crocuses, snowdrops and others, should be planted shallower according to their size.

Grouped in Colors

EARLY tulips are perhaps best for solid beds. In which annuals are later to be planted. These look best if grouped according to color, and in such design as may be chosen. The distances apart at which bulbs are planted vary with the size of the bulb and variety of the plant. Large size tulips may be set six inches apart, and narcissi from four to nine inches; anemones, crocuses and other small bulbs from two and one-half to four inches apart.

A convenient way to plant bulbs is to remove the soil from a part of the bed to the right depth, and place the bulbs in position, then carefully return the soil without disturbing the position of the bulbs. The remainder of the bed should be similarly treated. This plan has the advantage of insuring an even depth, which is an important factor in securing a uniform flowering season. In soils that are heavy, a thin layer of sand immediately under the bulbs is recommended.

Many Characters Enter Into High Production in Poultry Flocks

IN POULTRY breeding there seems to be a tendency to believe that making a male out of a high record dam to hens which themselves have high records, will give the final product and spell success; however, the most thoughtful breeders believe that high egg production is not a definite character, but is rather the result of a combination of several production characters, each of which is distinct and inheritable.

Among these characters may be mentioned precocity, broodiness, intensity, high persistency, and they are no doubt combined in different ways, also probably inherited, from both the sire and the dam. It means that the trap-net and banding systems may single out the good producers, but a careful analysis of records must be done to find out the best reproducers.

Breeding and Feeding

AFTER giving much care to secure birds from the best matings possible of pedigree stock, the problem of production for too many beginners seems to end. The mistake is paramount as results often show. Feeding at all times is in the mind of thoughtful breeders, one of the most intricate problems they are faced with.

The results of sixteen years of this kind of work show real progress at Dominion Experimental Farm at Cap Rouge, Que., and it is believed that this is due partly to breeding, partly to improvement in feeding and management. Starting with 4 per cent hens which had laid over 160 eggs the first year, the management is working with birds having reached the 200-egg mark, with the eggs weighing at least twenty-four ounces to the dozen.

In order to make further improvements, pullet year egg production, egg weights, early maturity, standard qualifications, hatchability and mortality must be kept in mind in selecting females, while the young males to be used should be selected according to the average of the sister flock records, and should be vigorous and possess the standard qualifications.

Methods of Controlling Club-Root Disease in Cabbage Family

CLUB-ROOT is a serious disease of cruciferous plants including such vegetables and flowering plants as cabbage, cauliflower, radish, turnip, rutabaga, mustard, kohlrabi, candytuft, sweet alyssum, etc. Diseased plants often wilt during hot days and make a partial recovery at night. The plants are usually stunted and do not grow normally. The typical symptom is the appearance of irregular malformations in the form of swellings that appear on the roots of diseased plants. The fungus causing the disease lives in the soil and is especially prevalent in moist acid soils.

Methods of control are:

1. As the causal fungus will not grow in alkaline soils, apply hydrated lime to infected soils in the autumn or early spring. Tests conducted by the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Summerland, B.C., have shown that an application of hydrated lime in cabbage fields at the rate of three tons per acre, markedly reduced the percentage of infected plants and materially increased the number of marketable heads. Limestone is unsatisfactory.

2. Thorough drainage of the soil is often helpful in controlling the disease.

3. Use only a fresh, well drained seed-bed containing sterilized soil or soil positively free from any fungus infection.

4. If diseased seedlings are found as shown by swellings on the roots, none of the plants from the seed-bed should be used—they may all be infected.

5. It is never safe to use plants, tools, equipment, etc., from fields where club-root has been present, as infected soil may be carried to a non-infected area.

6. Practice crop rotation of at least six years. Any plants that do not belong to the cabbage family such as grains, celery, onions, etc., may be used.

7. During crop rotation, keep areas free from weeds of the cabbage family, which are subject to the disease, such as wild cress, wild mustard, shepherd's purse, etc.

Patience Required to Obtain Satisfactory Wisteria Blooms

By DEAN HALLIDAY

THE culture of wisteria so as to obtain satisfactory bloom as early as possible is somewhat difficult. The vine has few fine roots and therefore does not transplant readily, taking some time to become established. It is advisable to give it fertility at first to hasten its growth, but later it will be found to bloom more readily if the soil is not too fertile.

Many inquiries are made as to why wisteria does not blossom. There are many reasons why wisteria are slow in coming into bloom and the following are some of them: It is their nature not to come into bloom until they have attained some years of age.

The source from which the plant has been derived will exert an influence; if a seedling it is likely to be very slow in blooming. The best plants are obtained by grafting a desirable variety upon one of our native varieties, wisteria frutescens. Grafting assures one of obtaining just the variety desired and by taking the scion from a blooming branch it no doubt tends toward early bloom. Layering and making cuttings from good varieties also assure success. Layering is the practice of making stems take root while still attached to the parent plant.

Tip to Lawn Growers

ALL forms of nitrogenous manure increase the growth of grass at the expense of clover. On the other hand, phosphatic fertilizers increase the proportion of clover. This is sometimes overlooked by owners of lawns who, rightly deprecating the spread of clover upon them, do the very thing to increase the clover by top dressing with a phosphatic fertilizer, such as superphosphate or basic slag, instead of relatively stimulating the growth of grass by applying nitrogen in the form of, say, of sulphate of ammonia. Increased growth is obtained chiefly in the spring by nitrogenous fertilizers, but the increase through phosphatic fertilizer is maintained throughout the growing season.

Girls Take Things Seriously

Farmerettes who arose as early as 3 a.m. to journey to the Fair at Toronto had a great day, despite the inclement weather on their arrival. All modes and styles were worn by the country lassies. Serious-minded girls took active part in the various contests, one of which was the patching contest. For it seems that farm girls have a lot of patching to do these days. Above is shown Helen Feistead, age 18, of West Hill, with her entry in the cattle judging.

Eliminating Liars From the Layers in the Flock

"CHICKEN, is you layin' or is you lyin'?" exclaimed Rastus as his one hen poultry flock burst forth into loud acclamation of alleged performance. That's an old joke, it's true, but it suggests with graphic good humor one of the basic principles of success in poultry raising. Any poultryman who persistently eliminates the liars from his flock will increase his profits from the flock to an almost unbelievable degree.

The value of a regular, scientific culling out of the drones from a poultry flock is vividly illustrated in the results of a survey conducted not long ago by the College of Agriculture, of the University of Illinois, and their farm advisers. The average profit on 264 flocks averaging 161 dozens each was eighty-six cents per hen, but the average on the best two-thirds was $2.28 per hen. Of course not all of the least productive one-third deserved to be eliminated, but there certainly must have been an astonishingly large number that were getting food and attention without giving an adequate return on what it cost to keep them. Culling out and marketing such hens can only result in a decreased expense account and a vastly increased average profit for each hen remaining.

Is No Mystery

THERE is nothing difficult or mysterious about culling, nothing a person of average intelligence could not learn in a short while. First of all, start with the chicks as soon as they are out of the shell. Any that are obviously deformed should be killed at once. Culling should be made a continuous process from that time on.

At least once a month the growing stock should be looked over and the undesirable removed from the flock. All thin, undersized, scrawny, "crow headed" birds should be discarded. Such pullets will eat their heads off, but will never develop into profitable layers, so you are better off without them than with them. Further culling will be in order when the young birds reach laying age. Those that are backward in maturing should be discarded. Two hundred days is a fair age for a pullet of the heavy breeds or 180 to 165 days of the light breeds to start laying, but those taking more than that are unlikely to develop into good layers.

Molting Time

FOR mature birds, the time of the molt is an important indication of laying habits, although other factors should also be considered. Generally speaking, hens that molt late in the fall are the best layers. The poor layer exhausts her energies early and may start molting anytime during June, July or August. The hen that is just beginning to molt late in August, early in September or later is usually the one to keep. All small undersized hens for the breed should be discarded. The eggs they lay are usually small, and they should never be used as breeders.

During the normal laying season, there are a number of points by which the laying capacity of hens may be judged more or less accurately. The eye of a good layer is prominent, bold, bright, snappy, set in an oval socket. The comb and wattles will be large, full, smooth, waxy to the touch and bright red in color. Poor layers will show exactly opposite characteristics in these respects.

The state of the vent is another important indication of lay condition. The laying hen has a large, moist, dilated vent. That of the non-layer is small, hard and puckered.

Size Up the Back

THE back of the good layer will be long and broad all the way out. In the poor layer it will be narrow near the tail. On either side of the vent may be felt the points of the pelvic pin or lay bones. In the good layer these bones are thin, straight and flexible. In the poor layer they are curved, thick, with layers of fat and rigid. The measurement of these bones is taken at the terminal or extreme end and includes also the skin, fat and gristle over them. If the spread between the pelvic bones is two fingers or less, the hen is probably not laying. If it is two fingers or more, it generally indicates that she is laying.

To accommodate the extra food a good laying hen must eat and the expansion of the laying organs, the rear of the keel bone of the good layer will be a greater distance from the pelvic bones than it will be in the poor layer. This shows abdominal capacity, which is very important and measured by the number of fingers that can be placed between the keel bone and the pelvic bones. With smaller breeds like Leghorns, a spread of three or more fingers indicates laying condition. With larger breeds the spread should be four fingers or more. Other things being equal, a long bodied fowl measuring three fingers, is equal to a short bodied fowl measuring four.

Color of the Skin

ABSENCE of yellow color around the vent and a whitish or pinkish color of the skin indicates that the hen is laying. If we also find a bleached eye ring, while bleached legs and beak she has been laying for some time.

We have discussed in as great detail as space permits some of the more important points by which to be guided in culling. Do not depend on any one factor in judging your hens, but form an opinion based on all considered together. Cull carefully, persistently and relentlessly, and before long you will have a flock of real dividend payers. It takes time and patience, to be sure, but the reward is well worthy of the effort.

Mechanical Injuries Cause Potato Losses

FOR some years farmers in the potato-growing sections of Canada have been reminded of the necessity of preventing mechanical injuries to potatoes whether grown for seed purposes or for table use.

The most common mechanical injuries are cuts, cracks, skinning and bruises. Cuts are most noticeable, but bruises are considered of greater importance because what may appear to be a minor blemish is actually an area of crushed tissue giving rise to many internal cracks, the forerunners of storage rot resulting from mechanical injuries and responsible for appreciable losses. Of the agencies causing such injuries the potato digger is the chief offender. The potatoes may also be damaged as they are picked up and hauled to the cellar.

It has been determined experimentally that tubers are injured but very slightly when poured from a basket into a sack from a height of twelve inches. When poured from a height of thirty inches, however, injury by cracking and bruising is very severe.

As a further precaution against such injury the newly dug potatoes should be left exposed to the air for at least thirty minutes. Furthermore, the potatoes should be reasonably mature, as tubers crack very easily if they are still growing rapidly at digging time. By avoiding late planting this source of injury may be materially reduced.

Time to Plant Tulips

TULIPS may be planted from the end of September to November. October, no doubt, is the best time. The soil need not be rich. Any ordinary garden soil is suitable, but it should be well dug and drained. A position in full sun suits them best, but they will bloom in half shade for a season or two. The bulbs may be left in the ground until they become crowded and the flowers are small, or they may be lifted each year.

The time to lift them is when the foliage is turning brown, or, if the space is needed earlier than this, the bulbs should be planted close together in a shallow trench in the back garden until the foliage dies. The bulbs should be stored in bags and kept dry all summer. In the fall, the large sized ones may be replanted in the border, and the smaller ones planted in a row in the vegetable garden for a year or two until they grow to blooming size.

The Garden Week by Week

By NORMAN W. F. RANT, F.R.H.S.

A FRIEND of mine was walking around the garden the other day and he made this remark: "Why plant a two-bit plant in a five-dollar hole?" He went on to explain that during the past few years he had been building "up" a garden and that now he never planted anything in it that was not the best of its kind.

"I have trenched that ground, nearly an acre, two spits deep. I have imported good soil to a depth of from eighteen to twenty-seven inches and put it all over the place and I reckon that every hole I dig to put in a tree, a shrub or a plant has cost me $5, and therefore I say, why put a two-bit plant into a five-dollar hole?"

Of course, there are many two-bit plants that are quite worthy of a five-dollar hole, and, I don't think my friend meant to be taken too literally. What he meant was that it is a mistake to put in an ill-grown, badly-shaped tree or shrub when a well-grown one will take no more looking after and, will cost only a trifle more. The first cost of a tree or a shrub is not much when one reckons the cost over the years that it will exist in the garden. I was only looking at a Cox's orange pippin tree the other day. Six years ago that tree cost exactly $1 and today it has at least five boxes of apples on it, which shows that original cost of the tree is a mere nothing and the same may be said of ornamental trees and shrubs though, of course, the return is not in fruit but beauty and satisfaction.

Poor Lavender

SOMEONE was asking the writer the other day why the lavender was so poor this year. I think that the great heat had something to do with it, for the flowering season was over in a very short time. It is very important to cut back lavender just as soon as the flowers are over, for then the new growth will start and the bushes will be well clothed before winter sets in. Otherwise, the plants will have a shaggy appearance until spring. Further, by cutting back early, the life of the plant is made longer and it will not have to be replaced so soon as a plant that is not thus taken care of. Lavender makes a beautiful hedge for a rose garden, the grey foliage going well with anything pink. The great thing is to plant young plants and then keep them shapely by careful and constant pruning.

Roots Are Important in Rations of Sheep

WHILE there is little danger of overfeeding roots to sheep, the quantity which can be profitably fed is limited. When feeding one and a half to two pounds of hay, approximately one and a half to two pounds of roots may be fed per head per day. Occasionally, as much as four pounds may be fed profitably, but, when feeding roots, the point must not be lost sight of that they are mainly useful as a source of succulence, and a relatively small quantity is effective for this purpose.

Manure is not as safe a feed as turnips, particularly for rams. Carrots can be used successfully to take the place of swede turnips, but are a less reliable crop in that they are more difficult to grow with success. No class of sheep derives more benefit from roots, particularly swede turnips, than the breeding ewes.

The Demands of Crops on Soil Fertility

A TWENTY-FIVE bushel crop of wheat (grain) removes from the soil about thirty pounds of nitrogen, twelve pounds of phosphoric acid and seven pounds of potash. A 200-bushel crop of potatoes (tubers) removes about forty-two pounds of nitrogen, 118 pounds of phosphoric acid and sixty pounds of potash.

If the mean of these figures for wheat and potatoes is taken and it is assumed that the average amounts represent the normal draft made by the growth of crops on the soil, plant food substances (nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash) it may be estimated that cropping results in an annual loss to the soil of thirty-six pounds of nitrogen, fifteen pounds of phosphoric acid and thirty-three pounds of potash.

Rations for Fall Pigs

THE Fall suckling pig which has been fed at five weeks of age on a supplementary ration of equal parts of middlings and finely ground oats from which most of the hulls have been sifted, is in good shape for the weaning ration which should be fed sparingly three or four times daily, the meal being preferably soaked and fed as a warm slop with milk.

Middlings 300 pounds, oats 300, shorts 100, barley or corn 100, bran 50, is an excellent ration for four months of age. Where middlings cannot be secured, the following mixture is good: Oats 300, shorts 200, bran 50, corn or barley 100. Bran is a very necessary addition to the ration of the winter-fed pig.

Adaptation of Crops

THERE are some crops which are not well suited to very fertile soils; buckwheat, for example, often produces too much straw and too little grain on rich soils, especially those soils which are very high in nitrogen. Oats are likely to lodge badly on soils too rich in nitrogen. On the other hand, a fertile soil is essential for profitable yields of wheat and barley. Rye will grow well on rich soils, but it is also a particularly good crop for light infertile soils. Turnips require a fairly fertile soil, but, if the soil is unbalanced in its fertility by having an overabundance of nitrogen in comparison with other elements of fertility, there will be luxuriant tops but small roots.

PERENNIAL PHLOXES are subjects which are not always a success in the garden. The phlox is a gross feeder and must be treated accordingly. While it is quite possible to keep the plants blooming freely over a period of two or three years, by thinning the growth in the spring, still they should be broken up and re-planted in a fresh place at frequent intervals. The ground should be well and deeply dug and plenty of manure should be incorporated with the soil. Further, if the best results are to be obtained, they should be fed with liquid manure to keep them vigorous.

It is getting to be the proper time of the year for making or re-making and planting the rock garden. The good rains we have had will be found to be a great help for this work. Subjects like Aubrietia, if moved now, will get a wonderful hold in the ground before the winter sets in with the result that the bloom next spring will be far better than if the planting is delayed until later on. The same may be said of almost every rock garden subject. This is the very best time to move the encrusted section of the saxifrage. Planted now they will make a lot of growth before frost sets in.

A great advantage of early planting of rock garden plants is the fact that if their roots get a hold on the soil before frost, the danger of heaving, so disastrous to these little things, is reduced to a minimum. Even so, however, after a hard frost, one should go around the rock garden with an eye for anything that has lifted at all and the plant should be carefully pushed back into its place. Last winter was a bad one in this respect and many hundreds of plants were lost by this heaving by frost.

Moving Shrubs

THE rock garden shrubs should be planted as soon as possible. The cotoneasters, which move so badly in the spring, should be planted without delay. The same may be said for the creeping junipers and other dwarf evergreen trees and shrubs. There are so many of these subjects to choose from now that everyone's taste can be satisfied. There are dwarf trees with light green foliage, with mid-green, dark green, grey and golden, all of which are so small in stature that they may be planted in the smallest rock garden. The Japanese maple should not be overlooked, particularly if there is a pond in the rock garden for it to hang over and reflect its red colors in the water.

Fall Dipping of Sheep Improves Health and Condition of Flock

THE open season is drawing to a close and soon livestock must be housed for the winter. It is during this period that external parasites get in most of their work and that work, as everyone knows, does not encourage the production of mutton nor the growth of wool. In fact, the tendency of a sheep infested with ticks is just in the opposite direction. Lambs lose weight just at a time when the owner is preparing them for the Christmas market and the old ewes which should be thinking of the lambs to be born and the wool to be shorn next spring, spend most of their time scratching.

And dipping is not only worthwhile from the standpoint of freeing the animals of all ticks and other pests. Old shepherds are now fully convinced that there is a real tonic value in such a proceeding. Just as shampooing the hair on Saturday night keeps baldness at bay so does a good dip stimulate the skin of the sheep and promote cleaner and healthier wool.

Interesting Experiment

REX BORD, a big sheepman of Klamath Falls, Oregon, as an experiment, compared notes on two lots of 386 sheep, one dipped and the other undipped. It was not a question of ticks, because Mr. Bord has made a practice of dipping for years. True the undipped lot did show some of the parasites and no doubt would have shown a lot more if the experiment had gone over the year, but it was the difference in wool growth in which Mr. Bord was most interested.

Not only were there absolutely no ticks on the dipped lot but this bunch produced 3,008 pounds of wool compared with 2,872 for the other, or a gain of about one-third pound per head. At today's prices this would be worth about four cents or a good deal more than sufficient to pay all the extra cost of dipping. In general health, the increase in weight and the saving in feed, would all be extra dividends.

Must Be Well Saturated

SHEPHERDS are advised to select a warm, bright day in the early fall for dipping. It is important, authorities point out, to use a new dip, of full strength, and to make sure that the animals are fully immersed and are put through the solution slowly so that the fleece will be well saturated. With the convenient powder dips, one dipping is enough as the mixture stays in the fleece long enough to deal with any mites which may hatch later from the eggs on the animal at the time of dipping.

Along with dipping sheepmen are also advised to give the winter quarters a good cleaning out and disinfecting with a Government approved and fully guaranteed disinfectant. There is not much advantage in putting clean sheep or other livestock into dirty quarters.

For very small flocks or odd purchases, or in the case of a few animals coming back from the late fairs, there is now a dry powder, which may be sprinkled over the animal and rubbed in. Being dry, it can be applied regardless of weather conditions and for a few or individual animals it is the cheapest. This, along with the powder dips mentioned, has been tested and approved by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, a growers' organization which is not only interested in the grading and marketing of wool but also in all problems pertaining to the Canadian sheep industry.

Wagner Ring Is Assured

LONDON (NANA).—Robert Parker, the singer, who hails from America, is a brave man. He has organized a first-rate opera company and proposes to tour it in the English provinces this autumn, with a possible season in London at Christmas. He has chosen an all-Wagnerian repertory and swears he will make the venture pay. His artists include Florence Eastman, Florence Austral, Walter Widdop, Horace Stevens and other well-known British singers. He will give the "Ring" in full at popular prices.

Meanwhile Sir Thomas Beecham is to conduct the opening night of the new season at Sadler's Wells, where the prices range from ten cents to $1.50, and the performance has become so good that the British Broadcasting Company is paying over $3,000 a month for the privilege of broadcasting one opera a week. "La Bohème" was chosen for the opening night, and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Snow Maiden" and "Tosca" will follow. "Orpheus," which has not been seen in London for many years, will be given during the first few weeks. The theatre has also established a thriving school of British ballet.

VANITIES ARE NOT SO GOOD

By JACK GAYNER
United Press Drama Editor
NEW YORK (UPI).—The Summer in New York was extremely hot at times and it must have been then that Earl Carroll ran across an idea which seemed to him to be the best. We will keep with the heat. We will take, said Carroll, an edition of my annual "Vanities" musical revue and combine with it a murder mystery. We will put them together on a stage, shake well, and give them to the public. We will have "Murder at the Vanities."

All this has come to pass, but in these early cold days of Fall the original glamour of the idea has faded before an actuality which is not good entertainment. It is said to have to report in this vein for this reviewer, that the idea of a murder mystery and a musical comedy to give the truant season that bit of a fine musical show it needs so greatly.

FILM ACTRESS SEEKS VOLUME

HOLLYWOOD.—Somewhere in the world, perhaps in a private collection, or on the dusty shelves of a second-hand book store, there is a book for which Allison Skipworth would pay a lot of money. In fact, after thirty years, the Paramount actress now in "Tillie and Gus," has launched another search for it. The volume is Oscar Wilde's "The Happy Prince," with an engraving of the fly leaf penned by the author himself to the actress forty years ago.

The epigram, as Miss Skipworth remembers it, reads: "Advice to a bride. Never worry over trifles and still less over serious matters. It is impossible to exaggerate the unimportance of everything."

OFFER REWARD
"For years I kept that volume among my possessions," Miss Skipworth explains. "Several times collectors offered many thousands of pounds for it, due to the fact that the epigram was one of the few unpublished pieces of Wilde's writings."

About the time Daniel Frohman brought me to America to make my singing debut, the book disappeared. Whether it was lost or stolen I never found out."

Collectors and book stores on two continents have been notified by Miss Skipworth's agents that a liberal reward for the book's return will be paid and that no questions will be asked.

Charles Laughton To Leave Movies

For a nominal salary, reported to be $20 a week and living expenses, Charles Laughton will turn his back on Hollywood and a screen contract running into four fat figures weekly, to return to London and participate in a novel theatrical venture.

Laughton is one of a group of eight who have banded together as a stock company to produce classical plays in London during the winter. They will defray cost of production, costumes and settings and enact the roles.

Laughton will depart on completion of his current role for Paramount opposite Carole Lombard in "White Woman." He will return to Paramount in April.

Lady Palmist: "Don't worry! The dark clouds will soon roll by, the sun will come peeping through."

Film Couple Divorced

HOOT Gibson, film cowboy, and Sally Eilers, beautiful actress, are now free of marital bonds as the result of a secret Mexican divorce granted nearly a month ago. This photo shows them soon after their marriage at Gibson's Sausal, Calif., ranch. Gibson denied rumors that he is to marry June Gale, another actress.

Original Vandyck Bought in England For Ten Shillings

LONDON.—A poor woman of Birmingham, England, who loved beautiful things, recently scraped enough money together to buy a canvas she had for some time coveted in a shop window. The picture cost her ten shillings. Now crowds are reported to be invading the Birmingham Art Gallery for a view of it, for S. C. Kaines Smith, the keeper of the gallery, to whom the poor woman showed it, has pronounced it to be an authentic Vandyck. Most of the art critics of London papers agree with him.

A. C. R. Carter, of The Daily Telegraph, has seen up with the picture and has written a story about it. "Kaines Smith has certainly hit upon an attractive plan of 'drawing the town,' he says. 'A Vandyck which had been bought for ten shillings is an irresistible bait to the man in the street, and if those persons who have been lured to visit the fine gallery for the first time stay to admire their city's famous collection of works by Ford Madox Brown, Rossetti and Burne-Jones, the cause of art will be furthered.'

HEREDITY IS PLAY THEME

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP).—The London Autumn theatrical season has opened with at least one play which seems destined to make a lasting impression. "A Sleeping Clergyman," by James Bridle, Glasgow doctor who has already written dramatic works to his credit, notably "The Anatomist," was first produced at the Maitland Festival this summer.

The influence of heredity forms the theme of the play. A bacteriologist saves the world from a visitation as terrible as the black death and the author shows the extraordinary character of this man resulting from the mixture of good and bad qualities in his parents and grandparents. The play is built somewhat in the "Pedigree" style of a Galsworthy novel. In almost every line there is something bracing to the intelligence and the acting of a high character.

SIR JOHN MARTIN-HARVEY. A chilling revelation, however, is accorded by the critics to the Autumn production of Sir John Martin-Harvey. "If Only Father—," is by Roy Jordan, a young author now dead. There is surprise in London that an actor-manager of Martin-Harvey's great experience could be prevailed upon to take up such a sickly work. Apparently the author had in mind "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

GENERAL'S LUCK
"The great Duke of Marlborough, as I have stated, found his Vandyck in Munich. Another soldier picked up a Van Eyck near Brussels. Wounded badly at Waterloo, Major-General Hay was carried to private apartment. As he lay in bed his eyes were riveted by a little panel picture on the wall. After

And besides, I'm not made of stone!"

Artistic Genius Found Living in Basque Pyrenees

By JOSEPHINE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

PARIS.—An obscure drama of genius has just been revealed in the discovery of a cabin crumpled in a flank of the Basque Pyrenees of 1,000 etchings, designs and lithographs which are said to equal in their daring fancy and perfection of execution those of the immortal Durer, Goya and Gustave Dore.

One night, fifteen years ago, the art student, J. P. Tillac, picked up on the quay in Paris, Lot's enchanting tale of the Basque country, "Ramonchico."

From that moment Tillac was like a hermit shut in his cell, burning with the sacred fire. The Latin quarter knew no more the silent thick-set youth with the fiery eyes. He had gone to seek the magic of the Basque country, conjured up in the haunting visions of Lot's "Ramonchico."

Here J. P. Tillac established himself. He watched the smugglers with their feline step, the Spanish gypsies with their wild romantic tales, the mountaineers with their supple limbs pass his hut.

With uncanny power, with the insistent desire to catch the expression, the attitude in that furtive instant when a being reveals himself, Tillac watched and watched. Every studied stroke was winged with intensity, with the illusion of life.

Berges had tried, Calame had tried, Arrue, Pierre Labrousse had tried. Tillac succeeded.

CREATIONS SPLENDID
He had fixed immutably and forever a type. The Basque mountaineer had given his imagination to life, he had started his genius into creating a new world apart.

Now he descended from his mountainerie to watch his adopted countrymen, eating, worshipping, playing, pelots, from the inn to the church, from the hill to the square, and at night to the mountain villages, where, in the open air, light feet kept time to the fandango.

At times he took up his staff and walked down the hills to Spain. Hundreds of water colors of enchanting beauty and uncanny horror resulted, illustrations to Calderon's "The Vengeance of the Conqueror."

But the more an artist separates himself from the crowd, the more he arouses human curiosity. Paul Paure, the writer, came down the other day from Paris to hunt out the artist recluse. He prevailed on his friend, Francois Jammes, to come over with him from his home at Hasparren, near Cambo.

EXAMINE WORKS
Tillac received them in his simple hut. They sat down rather constrainedly at first on the primitive chairs.

Then the artist opened the high cupboard at the back of the room, pulled out the drawers of the stand. Soap, chairs, table, the knees of the visitors were covered with papers and canvases, designs, water colors, drawings, etchings. The humble hut had become a magic circle of color line and beauty.

For four hours the work of the artist was examined.

An ecstasist is a man who is too full of himself to hold anything else.

NEW YORK.—Enthusiasm is rampant at United Artists over "The Private Life of Henry VIII," just received from London Films and viewed behind locked doors by United Artists executives, who came out raving about the performance of Charles Laughton, the direction of Alexander Korda, and the general excellence of the entire story and production.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII" elicited from Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., when he saw it at a private showing in London, the praise that it was the greatest motion picture he had ever seen.

United Artists declares the picture is bound to create a sensation when it is released, which will be at an early date.

MOULIN ROUGE IS BEFORE CAMERAS
HOLLYWOOD.—"Moulin Rouge," Constance Bennett's first starring vehicle for 20th Century Pictures, has gone into production with Franchot Tone replacing Robert Montgomery as Miss Bennett's leading man.

One of Hollywood's most rapidly climbing male stars, made an impressive screen debut recently with Joan Crawford in "Today We Live." When M-G-M offered this promising and talented young actor to Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck in place of Montgomery, who was needed for the M-G-M production of "Two Thieves" they readily agreed to the change.

"Moulin Rouge," which will be released by United Artists, will be a lavish musical extravaganza based on a French play by Lajon de Bri, and will be directed by Sidney Lan- den. When M-G-M offered this promising and talented young actor to Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck in place of Montgomery, who was needed for the M-G-M production of "Two Thieves" they readily agreed to the change.

German film stars now in the United States may be ordered to return to Germany to participate in the "cultural rebirth" of the Reichsfachstaff, controlling movie organization at Berlin, reveal, among the screen players subject to such an order, are Marlene Dietrich, Dorothea Wieck and Liane Haid.

Refusing to state whether Chancellor Hitler already had ordered her to return, Miss Dietrich is quoted in Paris as saying she never expects to make any more films in Germany.

master artist held the writers spell-bound.

Paul Paure hurried back to Paris and acclaimed his discovery. The art world of Paris hailed the genius of Tillac. Orders poured in.

But Tillac did not fill them. He did not go to Paris. Lot had been right. He who loves the Basque country never recovers.

Tillac had sought solitude to work. He found it a circle from which he could not escape, and Paris is already beginning to forget "Ramonchico."

Puppet Theatre Remains

LONDON (NANA).—London's smallest theatre consists of a single room and holds an audience of twenty-five people. It is situated over a shop in a West-End mews, and has a stage seven feet high and no dressing rooms.

It is the London Marionette Theatre, and during the seven years of its existence its owners have made and clothed all its puppets. Performances are given once a month throughout the winter and there is no charge for admission, a collection being made during the performance.

One of its chief operators, who also makes puppets, is Waldo Lanchester, a brother of Mrs. Charles Laughton. He believes there is no serious limit to the type of play that can be performed by marionettes, provided there are plenty of changes of scene. He even visualizes "Hamlet" on the marionette stage, though so far he has not attempted it.

One of the greatest successes in the little theatre has been Pirandello's "The Man With a Flower in His Mouth," in which there is hardly any movement and only three characters, two of whom remain seated throughout the performance. This play was recently televised in two stages in the United States after a year's banishment from this country, during which period she had adopted Canada. The brilliant mezzo-soprano was born in England and went to Canada with her parents at an early age. They settled at Guelph, Ont.

WASHINGTON (CP).—Ivy Dale, youthful Canadian opera singer, is to appear at the Gala Opera Festival in Washington Auditorium, and will sing the mezzo-soprano lead in "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Miss Dale returns to the operatic stage in the United States after a year's banishment from this country, during which period she had adopted Canada. The brilliant mezzo-soprano was born in England and went to Canada with her parents at an early age. They settled at Guelph, Ont.

Her early vocal training was obtained in Guelph, which had already given to the world the great Canadian tenor, Edward Johnson. She later studied under the Italian, Carlo, in Toronto, and won a gold medal, the first prize, in a Dominion singing contest.

The music-loving citizens of Guelph, anxious to help what promised to be the feminine counterpart of Johnson in the operatic world, made her a presentation of money sufficient to pay for training in New York, that would prepare her for the opera and concert stage.

Young Ivy entered America through "the back door"—she crossed the border just like any native-born Canadian used to do, without going through any formalities, forgetting she was English-born and needed a quota number.

ORDERED DEPORTED
She stayed in New York for four years—and made good. In the summer of 1932 she drew attention by singing in outdoor grand opera. The Immigration Department heard about the fuss being made about this "Canadian songbird," and decided to investigate her status as an alien. She was taken to Ellis Island and ordered deported.

But Ivy's neighbor in Guelph, Justice, became interested in the welfare of anyone who would enhance the good name of his home town and constituency. Intervened, and Miss Dale was allowed to depart voluntarily—through the front door.

American Immigration Law is specific in stating a deputy must not apply for re-admission within a year and a day of the date of deportation. Ivy was due to apply on September 29, just two days before her scheduled appearance in Washington, but no difficulty in securing her entrance is anticipated.

During her year in Canada Miss Dale succeeded in making herself well known in the country of her domicile. She appeared on the concert stage in Toronto, sang over the radio, and gave a recital at Guelph, at which Mr. Guthrie was patron.

PLACE BUST IN PUBLIC GARDENS
HALIFAX, Oct. 7 (CP).—A tree in the public gardens has been felled and its roots dug up to make way for a bust of Sir Walter Scott, modeled after the famous "Abbotsford" bust, and presented to the city by the North British Society.

Unveiling ceremonies took place at Dalhousie University a year ago, so there will be no ceremonies in connection with the placing of the bust at the entrance to the public gardens.

Thus Sir Walter will face his famous countryman, Bobby Burns, whose life-size statue stands just across the street among the trees of Victoria Park.

SARI MARITZA

PROVING that one might be alluring without the styles and frills of 1933, Sari Maritza dons a broad straw hat and a checked dress, a mode popular among the younger set years ago, and casts an over-the-shoulder glance to demonstrate. She wears this in one of her new movies.

Wonder Hero Is Joyous

LONDON (NANA).—J. B. Priestley's new novel, "Wonder Hero," has made joyous holiday reading for thousands of his admirers. Its hero is a young man from the North who is brought to London and boosted by a stunt newspaper, and its heroine a girl who has won a beauty competition, achieved momentary fame and been left derelict.

Mr. Priestley has spent most of the summer in the Isle of Wight, where he recently purchased for his family a beautiful old house called Bellingham Manor. The novelist and his wife saw the house on a Sunday, visited the agent Monday and completed the purchase Tuesday.

Bellingham Manor was built in 1621, has paneled rooms, an old staircase and a sheltered landing. It is believed to have been visited by Charles I.

The Isle of Wight has always been a favorite haunt of writers. Tennyson lived there for many years, as did Mrs. Craigie, better known as John Oliver Hobbes. Temple Thurston was there at one time, and at present Alfred Noyes has a house at St. Lawrence, near Ventnor, where he has Lord Jellicoe as a near neighbor.

The set for the Market Square took 300 workmen three weeks to build, with the aid of eighty-three full-sized scale drawings and 204 blue prints. Twelve thousand five hundred plaster bricks were used; 1,400 superficial feet of plaster stone-work; 1,400 imitation slates; 1,350 tons of nails and bolts; 7,950 square feet of glass; 3,400 pounds of paint; 2,750 feet of tubular scaffolding; 1,600 feet of railway lines and 1,456 railway bolts.

A steam train of the familiar Belgian type was made—and made so. Special roads of cobblestones were constructed, and a thousand unemployed from the British Legion were trained to drill like German soldiers in costumes used by the German soldiers in the war.

Berlin, and the production scenes were supervised by a German sergeant-major.

Victor Saville, the director of the picture, has just finished another, "Friday the Thirteenth"—which deals with aspects of London life, and is going to make the talkie version of Louis Golding's book, "Magnolia Street."

NEW VERSION TO BE PRODUCED
MOSCOW (NANA).—Mr. Meyerhold, the well-known Moscow theatrical producer, is going to make a new version of Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatra."

The bulk of his material will be drawn from Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra," but it will include something from most of the classical dramas which have ever been written, and poems or plays on the Egyptian queen and her lovers. Pushkin will be one of the dramatists whose work will be thus included in the new piece.

"Hamlet," Soviet version, the great feature of this year's theatrical season, wherein Hamlet was shown as a modern cynic working for his throne and putting up the ghost as a "stunt" to that end, and with Ophelia depicted as a modern young thing (she makes her first appearance on horseback), too fond of parties and getting in the way of Hamlet's main ambition anyway—this, Stalin has decided, is not Shakespeare, and most Bolshevik critics have agreed with him. None the less, it has been drawn crowded houses, from Russians and visiting foreigners alike.

UNIVERSITY TO GET RARE BOOK
HALIFAX, Oct. 7 (CP).—George Matthews has returned home after spending a pleasant summer in Nova Scotia. Before leaving he presented a copy of "Leaves From the Journals of Our Life in the Highlands," by Queen Victoria, to Dalhousie University.

The valuable book, handsomely bound, was presented to Sir Edwin Arnold by the Queen, and is photographed by Her Majesty. To Edwin Arnold, Esq., from Victoria B. C. June, 1886. It covers the period between 1848 and 1861, and was edited and published by Arthur Helps.

At the university, it will rest among other treasures in a case in the reading room of the library.

Inspector: "But I tell you, sir, this train doesn't go to Derby. It goes to Bristol."

Passenger: "Well, don't stand there—don't nothing. Go—on! tell the driver."

What's New and Interesting for the Women

Jugoslav Customs Quaintly Combine Humor and Pathos

Heroic or humorous, playful or pathetic, gay or grave, but always colorful, always picturesque, always deeply rooted in some healthy human instinct of old. Such are the innumerable popular customs and beliefs of the Yugoslav people, intactly preserved over endless centuries and religiously followed to this very day.

The stranger, keen on gaining a more intimate insight into the soul of this people, will not find it difficult to be a welcome guest at the various popular ceremonies. A little goodwill and a little sense of humor will win the heart of the Yugoslav, and then his confidence knows no boundaries.

Various districts have their own particular customs, and many have grown famous throughout the country. There is, for instance, Dalmatia. There one should witness the "Bijelki" song, a knightly game of ancient times, which is revived in Rijeka every fifteenth of August. It is a colorful historic pageant, in which gorgeously attired riders compete in the throwing of spears through special rings while their horses are in full gallop. The enthusiasm of the competitors is matched only by that of the on-lookers, who travel many miles from neighboring districts to watch the games.

A similar game is played on St. Vincent's Day on the island of Korcula. In this case sword duels are fought between two rival groups, dressed in national costumes, to the rhythm of bagpipes and drums. The same game is played with local variations in dress and ceremony in the Boka Kotorska on its saint's day.

WEDDINGS

Weddings, full of formalities, superstitious acts, speeches and prayers, and also funerals and church festivities, as well as the customs and ceremonies of shepherds and peasants, are of great source of interest, both to the ordinary observer and to the serious student. One must see the famous "kolo" danced by Dalmatian boys and girls to the music of bagpipes. The dancers do not touch each other except where their fingers reach in one another's belt, and in a circle, dance to a slow rhythm. In the vicinity of Dubrovnik the "kolo" is danced to the tune of an ancient, three-striated instrument, a forerunner of the present violin.

Bosnia and Herzegovina, besides their patriarchal customs, offer the additional attraction of an unusual atmosphere. Although Yugoslav of race, the Mohammedan faith of a large portion of the population has given this province a strikingly different culture which cannot be found anywhere else in Europe any more. Yugoslav Mohammedans themselves are convinced that in Bosnia and Herzegovina Mohammedanism lives better preserved than in Turkey.

Nowhere else in Europe can such a ceremony be seen as a wedding procession in Bosnia, the bride carrying a veil heavily decorated with gold coins, glass beads, and an array of feathers; the bridegroom in full battle attire; the wedding guests, very often on horseback, headed by the flag bearer and accompanied by a sort of wedding clown, who adds to the gaiety of the guests and onlookers in spite of the incessant regular and shooting.

OLD HOLIDAY

An old Yugoslav holiday is that of the patron saint—the Slav—which, although an orthodox church custom, originates in ancient ancestor-worship. Candles are lighted on this occasion, cooked wheat is served, a specially prepared cake is cut with strange ceremonies, and while various chants accompany the event to which friends and relatives are invited.

No less interesting is the habit of giving presents in honor of the dead. The dead are supposed to partake of the food and drink prepared on such days, and the feast is often served on the grave itself. It may be nearer to the lost one; after the meal a part of the food and drink is left on the grave for the dead. Very often the dead are buried with objects that might prove useful on their long journey; money, too, is often put in the grave.

At Christmas the "yule-log" is burned, and straw brought into the house, while at Easter eggs are colored. When Spring comes Bosnian and Croatian boys go calling, on this occasion making a tumultuous noise with wooden pots, as it is believed that this noise will drive away demons and witches. On St. George's Day boys in Croatia dress a playmate in green foliage and go visiting with him from house to house, singing songs besetting the occasion.

A custom practiced in time of great drought is the "Doodla," the so-called "rain-maiden"; a little girl, often a gypsy, covered from foot to head in green foliage, is taken through the village, and her company dancing and singing ritual songs; housewives pour water over the rain maiden, and give some gift.

South Serbia particularly is an inexhaustible source of quaint ancient customs. Weddings, funerals, and the various ritual visits, all are full of unusual charm. Here more than anywhere else the bride must observe all sorts of precautions that she may escape being bewitched; during the wedding she remains silent, stands aside, and is careful not to do anything that might bring bad luck.

PALM SUNDAY

On Palm Sunday girls in their best clothes go through the village singing ritual songs. At Whitman the young men perform various dances and scenes with wooden swords.

Strange is the ritual of brotherhood or sisterhood (in Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, Serbia); two persons, usually young people, anxious to turn their friendship into blood-relationship, will taste of each other's blood. This is accomplished by drinking the drop of blood from a small puncture in the friend's finger, and the ceremony is given the blessing of the priest. Customs in the north of the country contrast greatly with those of the south. Here the land is flat and fertile, and its inhabitants wealthy. Abundance and ease have made customs generous and expansive and full of music and songs familiar to the Western ear.

RING DANCE

To witness a Slavonia ring dance is to see the Panonian plain reflected in the rhythm of the human body. At Whitman a pantomime is played by girls, one of whom is the "queen" and another the "king" and is accompanied by ancient songs and simple melodies. In these parts of the country much attention is given to the harvest. Usually, when the crop has been gathered, a girl-harvester crowned with a wreath made of corn-ears leads the army of singing harvesters to the house of the owner, who royally entertains them with food and drink. Slovenia and Croatia know bonfire, and all ceremonies performed in these parts, religious or otherwise, are resplendent with brilliant coloring of costume and detail.

Is Grand Old Lady

Mme. Schumann-Heink, Seventy-Two, Much Beloved as Singer and Guest

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, seventy-two years old but still singing for her public, is fond of referring to herself as "just an old peasant mother," but the Madame really is in the grande dame, in spite of her warm handclasp to all who are present to her, her quick wit, ready smile and twinkling black eyes.

These same bright black eyes easily fill with tears of genuine emotion when anything touches her. "You're making me cry and washing off my make-up," she declared when at a recent banquet, given in Cleveland in her honor, Lila Rokson, former contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, spoke feelingly of the love that the Madame showered on all around her and which was "returned a thousand fold, pressed down and running over." And Madame vigorously dabbed at her eyes with her pocket handkerchief.

At another affair also given in Cleveland in her honor by the feminine members of the press, Mme. Schumann-Heink stated that she "had no manners whatever," and proceeded to tuck her table napkin into the bosom of her dress by way of illustration. But her self-styled lack of manners did not prevent her, in either case, from being a delightful and inspiring guest.

The Madame's home is in California, but with her son George, who limps from wounds received in the Great War, she motored across the country first to sing at an exposition in Cleveland, and later to Washington, where the Government has asked her aid in putting over the NRA programme.

In spite of her seventy-two years, Madame Schumann-Heink has the complexion of a young girl, and with her snowy hair and bright eyes is most attractive.

"I have proposals, too," she admitted, looking delightfully shy. "But no, I don't accept. I couldn't do so. I like if I had a husband. He wouldn't let me. And I like to live alone. And I have my children. They are my whole life. There are eight of them; eleven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren."

In New York the Madame has a tiny apartment, she says, where "I

Is Fashion Going Buxom a la Mae West

Actress Says Curves Are Prettier and Healthier

By LIBERTY

Time was when a man's proudest boast was that he could span his best girl's waist with his hands. A girl with an eighteen-inch waistline was the envy of her sisters, and a measurement of twenty-five inches around the middle was something to be suppressed. Even one's best friends spoke of it in hushed tones. A girl with such a span was absolutely fat.

Is the wasp-waist coming back? Mae West, of stage and screen fame, has set the fashion in her picture "She Done Him Wrong," and although smart courtiers deny that

Mae has much to do with it, and that they themselves set the fashion a year or more ago, the "Mae West" frocks are going over big with women generally. Modified, of course. No more eighteen-inch waists—but curves and well-developed busts and slender waistlines, nevertheless. Mae thinks it's a good thing, and will improve women's health and add to their natural charm. She says the girls have been under-feeding themselves and losing their vitality because of their desire to look slender and shapely. "Take a look at the parade of fashion in silhouettes at the bottom of the picture. Eighteen ninety-five and 1905 show the full figure above the slender waistline. Then the waist began to lose its curves, until the shapeless figure of 1928 reached the apex of that style, the boyish figure reached its height. Nineteen twenty-nine saw a slight return to the gay nineties era. And the figure at the right, above, shows just how far we have come, and how closely we are following the 1895 and 1905 models. Skirts are not quite as voluminous, but fullness is gradually creeping upward. The hips are curving and gently curving hips are there, in modified form, of course, but unmistakably present. The scintillating Mae is shown in two of her very elegant gowns worn in her picture. One doubts if the be-feathered chapeau in all its glory will ever return. Modern life does not lend itself to such top-heavy arrangements. But, considering that women seldom have paid any attention to the practical side of fashion, they may adopt these huge chapeaux regardless, if they consider them attractive enough. The point is: Where do we go from here?

Bright linings are on the increase—Lanvin has silver for dark coats—and blues and frocks of the same material and color as the coat lining continue in vogue. Black and grey will be smart right through the Autumn and Winter and there are more greens than ever. Muffs are reviving, particularly in the skunk that has white in it and Alaska seal. Trains for formal dresses are shorter this year with the rest of the skirt longer. ## Prepare for Winter With Many Parties

By KATHARINE BAKER

Now that propriety is unmistakably flitting around that corner, everyone is feeling better. In many homes, the tall, deep beverage glasses are taken down from the top shelf and are carefully dusted. So are the squat tumblers that hold a lot—everyone ready for good cheer and good living this coming Winter. Happy the housewife who has made some provision for imprudent parties, by keeping her cupboard well stocked with good things that are quickly served. Unexpected guests never disturb the welcome of the hostess who can visualize a jar upon jar of bright jam or jelly in fruit cellar. Harvest days bring rich, colorful foods that make wonderful jelly to go with the crackers and cheese that have become so universally popular for late supper or as a "bite" to go with any beverage in the evening.

Current, apple and grape jelly have also been favorites with men. Some of the newer jams and jellies have just a taste of nippy spice in them that gives a new flavor. Spiced pear jam that can be made now, is very low cost is one of the clever new recipes, and makes a delicious spread for toast, either early in the morning or late at night.

RIPE PEAR JAM

Four cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit, 7½ cups (3½ lbs.) sugar, 1 cup bottled fruit pectin. To prepare fruit, peel, core and crush completely or grind about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. If desired, about 3 teaspoons sugar may be added. Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, so prevent floating foam. Pour quickly and cover at once with hot paraffin.

Makes about 11 eight-ounce jars.

Jam With A "Kick" Is Favored

LONDON.—Hostesses of Scottish house parties find that breakfast is the most popular meal of the day, and a number of food novelties have been launched this season, including jams with a "kick" in them.

Lemon marmalade with brandy, peach preserve with rum, and strawberries in brandy are particularly in demand, and are delicious when eaten with oatmeal.

Another novelty is a non-alcoholic jelly made from passion fruit. For dinner, fruit and vegetable jelly are served as an accompaniment to game, since rich and creamy sauces are not for those who slim. The fruit jellies are usually rowan or worleberry, while tomato, thyme and sage are used for the vegetable varieties.

Wallpaper Saved by Few Tacks

When hanging a picture frame, drive a small brass-headed tack into each lower portion of the frame, in back. It prevents the marks on the walls that are so troublesome. In this way the pictures are held from the wall a fraction of an inch, thus allowing the air to circulate behind them.

Coming Back Of Muffs Is Prediction

PARIS.—Skirts are tending towards geometrical shapes that make the wearer look rather like a cubist, drawing and with them go high-necked blouses, the high neckline still being kept soft only.

Contrasting Accessories Give Jaunty Air to Tailored Grey Dinner Frock With Silk Skirt

Gloria Stuart Wearing Grey Dinner Dress; Inset, Grey Silk Duvetone Hat.

By MME. LIBERTY

THERE'S a lot in the way a garment is trimmed nowadays. And while that is not a particularly new story, the method of trimming is different.

And very apropos of that remark is the tailored dinner dress worn by Gloria Stuart, screen player, in her latest picture. The frock has a silk skirt, by the way.

duroy certainly give it a swash-buckling air that is very fetching. Royal blue and grey is a very fetching color combination for the fair-minded Gloria, but there are many shades that might be as effectively combined for brunettes, red heads or the medium brown.

Vegetables Are Now Jellied as Winter Relishes

Peppers and beets make into colorful accompaniments for meats. Perhaps a vegetable is not a vegetable when it is made into a sparkling mould of relish to garnish cold meats or accompany hot ones. Red and green peppers, beets, vegetable marrow and tomatoes make these clever new dishes and at surprisingly low cost.

PEPPER RELISH

Two cups (14 oz.) prepared pepper, 1½ cups cider vinegar, ½ cup (2½ lbs.) sugar, 1 bottle fruit pectin. To prepare peppers, cut open about 1 dozen medium-size peppers and discard seeds. For best color, use equal amounts green and red sweet peppers. Put through food chopper twice using finest knife. Drain pulp in sieve. Measure vinegar into large kettle. Add prepared pepper, packing it solidly into cup until juice comes to top. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just five minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating pulp. Pour quickly and seal at once with paraffin. Makes 9 eight-ounce jars.

BET RELISH

Two cups (14 oz.) prepared beets, 1½ cups cider vinegar, ½ cup (2½ lbs.) sugar, 1 bottle fruit pectin. To prepare beets, cook about 1½ pounds beets, slip off the skins, and grind. Follow directions for pepper relish given above.

Household Hints

After the linen has been laundered, place it at the bottom of the drawer, using the other pieces first. This gives all the towels, sheets, shirts, etc., equal wear, and prevents any pieces from becoming yellow.

To make a serviceable clothespin bag, cut the bag out of heavy ticking and fasten it to a wooden coat hanger. This bag can be hooked over the clothesline and pushed along the line as required.

Before cooking rice, grease the pan with butter, or put a piece of butter on the rice, and this will prevent it from sticking to the pan when cooking.

Table napkins can be made from the good pieces of a worn tablecloth. Cut in squares and hem or hemstitch. They can be used by the family and will save wear on the newer napkins.

To restore the seat of a cane chair, turn the chair over and with hot water and a sponge, wash the underside of the cane seat until it is thoroughly soaked.

Keep a cord or an empty spool over the point of scissors to avoid accidents when children are around.

A saucer of fresh milk placed in the larder will keep meat from becoming tainted. The milk will become so impure that no animal will touch it.

Flashlight Useful With the Children

When you want to take a look at the youngster's throat and cannot seem to get a good light on it, remember the flashlight. You can hold that in any position to get a good light.

Birds of a feather are all flocking together on hats this season. When birds with outspread wings and the head peaking over the tip of a brim as if to say to the lady under the hat, "I'm doing my best to make you look beautiful and all you have to do is smile and look sweet. Birds outnumber ribbon and flowers and pins for hat trim, and they are, somehow, to match something listed as an accessory—purse, gloves, belt, collar and cuffs, etc.

Style Whimsies

An Edwardian note is observed by many of the Paris dressmakers in knotted ties and loosely draped shawls used for trimming and the ash-ends making trains on lovely evening gowns of satin or lace. Fox collars on three-quarter length coats, somewhat, to match something listed as an accessory—purse, gloves, belt, collar and cuffs, etc.

Sleeves seem to just wind off the shoulders and wrap the arm more casually than definitely planned. If there are open spaces here and there it's all right, and often the sleeve is not attached to the bodice under the arm at all.

There is a sleeve extending from elbow to wrist and removable, doing lower arm duty as a glove, but requiring a wrist mitten for dinner-time before going on to more formal things when both are removed.

A toque in white felt is trimmed with white monkey and is accompanied by a collar, circular and extending over the shoulders an inch or so, also trimmed all-over with white monkey. The fabric under the monkey fur on the collar is called Rodier U 538, and both hat and collar are creations by Suzanne Grillet.

Style Whimsies

The Chinese doublet will be a popular blouse number this season. It is developed in rough silk, slightly fitted at the waist, slit at the sides and buttoned up the front with buttons that resemble frog fastenings.

According to Paris, it's smart to combine tomato red with turquoise.

For evening you may wear violet, Persian red, royal blue and cherry. If you prefer neutral colors, however, brown, white, burgundy and black also are "good."
